Horse Ride Fall Fatal To Local Boy

William Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith, 325 S. 11th St., died in Penrose hospital from injuries suffered when he was either thrown or fell from a horse near Woodland Park.

"We'll probably never know what happened," an official said.

Sheriff Rufus Jones of Teller County said the Smith boy had gone on the outing with several companions.

About two miles east of Woodland Park along U. S. Highway 24, the youngster's companions rode on ahead, leaving William behind.

About 1:15 p.m., a passerby noticed a horse, reins looped around its neck, trotting down the road toward a ranch. He investigated and found the youngster lying on the road near the Four-Bit Ranch.

The unidentified man contacted rancher Thomas Sorrel, Ute Pass, who took the boy to Penrose Hospital in his station wagon where young William died a short time later.

An autopsy was to be performed by County Coroner Dr. Raoul Urich to determine the exact cause of death.

Castro Must Be Destroyed, Says U.S. Legion Chief

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI)— The national commander of the American Legion has called for an all-out effort to destroy the Castro regime and "remove the cancer of communism from this hemisphere."

James E. Powers, national commander who spoke at the annual regional meeting Sunday in Santa Fe, said he believed total economic sanctions, a tight blockade and direct military intervention in Cuba should be employed if necessary.

The Macon, Ga., commander, who was in Latin America during the October crisis, made his remarks at a banquet honoring the state legislature and in an interview afterward.

"We believe that total economic sanctions are in order against Cuba, and that as tight a blockade as can be achieved should be reinstated," Powers said. "We believe that should these methods fail to bring Castro to his knees, then the organization of American states should make available to freedom-loving Cubans all the resources at their command to de-

Denverite Lost With Airplane

BRYCE CANYON, Utah (AP)— A light airplane flown by Robert McFarland of Denver was reported lost Sunday enroute from Las Vegas, Nev., to Grand Junction, Colo.

The Civil Air Patrol said the plane was last heard from at 2:04 a.m. when it reported to the Federal Aviation Agency's station at this southern Utah spot.

Search planes found no trace Sunday but planned to try again today between Bryce Canyon and Green River, Utah.

Cubans Are Told Clothing Will Be Rationed Now

HAVANA (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro, speaking a few hours after the announcement of new rationing measures, today predicted better times ahead for the Cuban people.

"What we have now are the fruits of the past," Castro said in an address to a medical congress attended largely by delegates from Russia, the Soviet satellites and Communist China. "One day we shall reap the fruits of the present."

Castro's two-hour speech in the Charlie Chaplin Theater—his second in two days—was one of the mildest in some time and included only a few attacks on American "imperialists" and pro-American president of Venezuela, Romulo Betancourt.

The Cuban government announced Sunday that rationing of clothing and clothing materials would begin Tuesday. Food, shoes and gasoline already are rationed in Cuba.

The government's Consolidated Products Enterprise (CPE) announced in the official press that the rationing is necessary to insure "that the workers and people can purchase clothing in a just and equitable manner, avoiding speculation and hoarding."

Castro said in a speech that

U.S. Soldiers Will 'Shoot First' Now In Viet Nam War

By NEIL SHEEHAN

SAIGON, Viet Nam (UPI)—The United States has decided to permit its soldiers to shoot first in the Vietnamese guerrilla war without waiting to be fired on by the Communists, it was reported today.

The move is aimed at checking the mounting U.S. casualty rate in the undeclared jungle war, according to informed sources.

Another American died Sunday. A young machine gunner was killed when two U.S. Army H21 helicopters were downed by Communist Viet Cong ground fire.

The machine gunner, a private first class, was not identified. His death brought to 52 the number of Americans killed in combat since the United States began its military buildup in South Viet Nam in 1961.

Informed military sources said the new "rules of engagement" will permit the U.S. Army's new H21 gas turbine helicopters to open fire on "positively identifed" guerrillas without waiting to be fired on first as heretofore.

The sources said the effectiveness of the heavily armed craft, known by their crews as "Hueys," in protecting the more vulnerable H21 troop carrying helicopters is expected to increase under the new rules.

The Hueys now will be able to precede the H21's into a troop landing zone and keep the guerrillas busy while the troop-carrying helicopters unload assault forces and then get away.

U.S. military observers in Saigon feel that if the Hueys had been able to follow this procedure during the battle of Ap Bac last month, the Viet Cong would not have been able to shoot down so many helicopters. Two Americans were killed and several others were wounded in the process.

U.S. officials denied press reports that the United States might withdraw its Air Force combat units from South Viet Nam.

The reports claimed the withdrawal was under consideration because of charges that heavy government air strikes against

Another Earth Tremor Noted In Libya Area

BENGHAZI, Libya (AP)—New earth tremors struck the ancient town of Tolemaide during the night but it was not known today whether there were any casualties.

Tolemaide, a town of about 500 people settled by the Greeks before the birth of Christ, is 18 miles from El Marj, where 261 died in an earthquake last week.

In that shattered town, authorities abandoned the search for bodies and began making plans to rebuild.

Conviction of 187 Negroes Set Aside by Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court set aside today the conviction of 187 Negroes on breach of the peace charges brought after they demonstrated against racial segregation on the South Carolina State Capitol grounds.

The Negroes, high school and college students, carried placards and paraded about the Capitol at Columbia, S.C., on March 2, 1961. The State Senate was in session at the time.

Stewart's opinion said that "In arresting, convicting and punishing the petitioners (the demonstrators) under the circumstances disclosed by this record, South Carolina infringed the petitioners' constitutionally protected rights of free speech, free assembly and freedom to petition for redress of their grievances."

Joining Stewart in the majority were Chief Justice Warren and Justices Black, Douglas, Harlan, Brennan, White and Goldberg.

Clark's dissenting opinion said that the demonstrators "of course, had a right to peaceable assembly, to espouse their cause and to petition," but, he added, "In my view the manner in which they exercised their rights was by no means the passive demonstration which this court (the majority) relates."

16 Churchmen From Russia to Visit Denver

DENVER (UPI)— Denver churchmen are girding for the arrival of 16 Russian churchmen this week.

Rev. Carl McIntire, Jr., of Collingswood, N.J., has hired a hall for a "protest rally" and has promised to picket each meeting the visiting Russians attend.

McIntire has claimed the Russian clergymen are "spies."

The church leaders from the Soviet Union are returning a visit made to Russia last year by 13 members of the National Council of Churches.

The group will arrive in Denver Thursday and remain through Sunday, then travel to other U.S. communities in smaller groups.

Probe of News Strike Possible, Rocky Declares

NEW YORK (AP)— Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says he may appoint a board of inquiry, with subpoena powers, to look into the 80-day old New York City newspaper blackout.

The head of the striking printers says that if such a board were set up, "we'd respond." But as to accepting the findings of the board, adds Bertram A. Powers, "we reserve the right to accept or reject on the merits of the proposal."

There was no immediate comment by the publishers.

Rockefeller told a television audience Sunday — two hours before printers and publishers began separate talks with Mayor Robert F. Wagner at City Hall—that he "will have to consider a board of inquiry." If Wagner can't get the city's nine major papers back on the streets.

"We have arrived at the end of the road," Rockefeller said. "This thing cannot go any further."

The governor set no specific time for intervening in the dispute that he termed critical — from an economic point of view. He said he would act "pretty soon."

Powers, president of striking Local 6 of the AFL-CIO International Typographical Union, was asked — on a radio program— if the printers preferred Wagner or Rockefeller to act as umpire. Powers replied, "We have no preference."

As the Democratic mayor left City Hall, he said the dispute should not become involved in politics and that he believes the Republican governor feels the same way.

Wandering McKee Will Be Discharged by Army

Pvt. Fred J. McKee will be discharged from the Army this week, it was announced today at Ft. Carson.

He will be separated from the service under the provisions of Army Regulation 635-209 for "unsuitability." The decision in the case came about from recommendations of McKee's civilian medical consultations and Fitzsimons Army Hospital in Denver, where he has been undergoing evaluation for the past month.

Processing has begun and it is possible for McKee to be out of the Army as early as Wednesday. McKee, a 23-year old AWOL soldier from Ft. Campbell, Ky., was captured Dec. 9 near Cripple Creek after eluding the law for several months.

He was discovered inside the cabin of Nona Stodart, 1727 N. Franklin, by the 39-year old Colorado Springs social worker who held McKee at bay with a gun until the arrival of Teller County Sheriff Rufus Jones and four deputies.

Miss Stodart's cabin is eight miles northeast of Cripple Creek.

Probers Blame U.S. Aid For Unstable Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A senatorial study group has reported to President Kennedy that after seven years of U.S. aid to South Viet Nam the country still lacks a stable government.

In fact, the study said the government of the Southeast Asian country "appears more removed, rather than closer to, the achievement of popularly responsible and responsive government."

Most of the blame for this, the report said, is due to policies by South Viet Nam President Ngo Dinh Diem. But, U.S. action, especially the aid program "must bear a very substantial share of the responsibility."

Although the report said the United States has poured more than $2 billion into the former French colony since 1955, it predicted no end to the assistance. "In the best of circumstances, outside aid in very substantial size will be necessary for many years."

The report was the fifth of a series made following a study trip to Asia last year made by four senators led by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont.

He was accompanied by Sens. J. Caleb Boggs, R-Del., and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., and former Sen. Benjamin A. Smith II, D-Mass.

The report said victory in the guerrilla war in Viet Nam is foreseen within one to three years by responsible experts, but, based on past experience, it recommended "caution in predicting its rapid achievement."

South Viet Nam is faced with a "massive job of social engineering," the report said. Outside aid will not help the country, the report predicted, unless there is a "great mobilization of selfless Vietnamese leadership in all parts of the country and at all levels."

The group concluded that U.S. aid to Laos and Cambodia had improved conditions there. It found no need to extend American foreign aid to other Southeast Asian countries which are not now receiving it.

$15.8 Billion Military Authorization Bill Voted

Funeral Rites Scheduled for James Murray

The flag at the Colorado Springs City Hall was lowered to half mast today in memory and respect for James J. Murray, city director of public works, who died suddenly of a heart attack Saturday night.

Mayor William C. Henderson and City Manager John M. Biery said today that the flag would continue to fly at half mast until noon Wednesday.

Additionally, they said, City Hall would not open Wednesday until 11 a.m. so that city employes can attend funeral services.

Requiem High Mass will be held at 9 a.m. Wednesday in Corpus Christi Church, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Anthony G. Elzi, celebrant. Rosary services will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Nolan drawing room. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

The shock of Mr. Murray's sudden death was noticeable today thruout the operation of the City of Colorado Springs. His friends were legion thruout the Pikes Peak Region and elsewhere in Colorado.

"His family has lost an outstanding father and husband," Mayor Henderson said. 'And the city has lost one of its outstanding officers."

These same sentiments were echoed by the city manager and his many close friends in City Hall and the Department of Public Utilities.

"He was one of the best friends I had in city government," Biery said.

But in addition to being a close personal friend," the city manager said, "he has been my No. 1 help in practically everything we have done in city government for several years."

The manager said "it was like losing my right arm. His death

Teenage Denver Girl Missing In Mountains

GOLDEN (UPI)— Officers and volunteers continued an intensive search today for Cordie Aragon, 16, of Denver, in the freezing country near Cheeseman Reservoir.

The girl was with a party of honor students from Manual High School who were hiking in the rugged country nearby.

Officers said she was with the hikers about a mile from the Lost Valley ranchhouse when she decided not to join the group in a climb over a pile of rocks.

When the climbers returned she was missing.

She was wearing a summer blouse and pedal pushers, officers said.

Temperatures Sunday night were near freezing as snow fell in the area.

Millionaires Work Hardest, Getty Declares

"They work longer hours than any other working man," the 70-year-old oil king said Sunday night on a television interview on the British Broadcasting Corp.

But that doesn't mean Getty is ready to retire.

"I've never had the feeling I'm flushed," he said. "I'm strugglin on."

"Of all the classes I know, millionaires are the hardest workers."

Getty said it "was a good thing" he could not take his money with him when he dies because "it might be a burden."

Getty's 70-company empire nets him $11,200 an hour, of $1.9 million a week. He inherited his business from his father.

Realty Recording Act Repeal Is Voted in House

DENVER (AP) — Legislators from rural districts drove through the Colorado House of Representatives today on final reading a bill repealing the Realty Recording Act, based on computation of sales ratio.

Sales ratio has been a part of the state's school law for the past three years.

The vote was 38-25.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

Metropolitan area representatives were snowed under in the final House vote, which came a few minutes after the lawmakers began their eighth week of the session.

All 17 Denver representatives opposed the bill and were joined by Reps. Frank Evans and Betty Kirk West, Pueblo Democrats; Rep. John G. Mackie of Longmont, the Republican floor leader; Adams County Reps. Seiji Horiuchi, R-Brighton and John Kane, D-Northglenn; Jefferson County Republicans Ruth Stockton of Lakewood and Joseph Schieffelin of Golden and Democrat Lowell Compton of La Junta.

In contrast to Friday's preliminary action on the bill, there was no debate.

The measure was the first major one before the Legislature to split party lines. On the final vote the Democratic floor leader, Rep. Allen Dines of Denver voted against the bill, along with the GOP leader Mackie, and Rep. Palmer Burch, R-Denver, the finance chairman. Speaker John Vanderhoof, R-Glenwood Springs, voted for the bill.

The Realty Recording Act, passed originally in 1957, requires the filing of a certificate showing the actual price involved in the sale of every piece of real estate where a transaction takes place. The certificates are used by the Legislative Council to develop the relationship in each county between assessed valuation and actual sales price. As used in the school law, more money goes to counties where the assessed valuation is high and less money is received by those where the as-

SECAUCUS, N. J. (AP) — He could eat six pizzas at one sitting and finish off a case of beer watching television, said his longtime friend.

He was warned two months ago that his weight was endangering his life, said his physician, Dr. A. T. Stokes.

Sally was 39, 5 feet 10 and weighed [illegible] pounds.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Armed Services Committee approved a $15.8 billion military authorization bill today—including $336 million to step up the controversial RS70 reconnaissance strike plane program.

Chairman Carl Vinson, D-Ga., said the extra money would pay for construction of two more RS70s, which the administration doesn't want to build.

"We felt it was our duty to put it in," Vinson said. But he said the committee only authorized the extra funds, and did not order the Pentagon to spend the money.

The Pentagon now plans to construct three of the 2,000-mile-an-hour planes. The first is to be test flown late this spring.

The committee also voted extra funds for the Navy to build two more attack submarines. That increases the fiscal 1964 program from the six subs approved by the Pentagon to the eight sought by the Navy.

Vinson said the committee actions increased the military procurement and research bill by $497,700,000.

Soviets Obstruct Atom Test Ban, U.S. Charges

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States said today that progress on a nuclear test ban treaty is impossible unless the Russians ease their rigid position on verification.

Chief U. S. negotiator William C. Foster, just returned from consulations with President Kennedy in Washington, appealed to the Soviet Union to remove its "substantive and procedural obstacles" to nuclear negotiations.

He urged the Russians to give serious consideration to the U. S. offer of seven annual on-site inspections to police a test ban.

He hinted that the U. S. position on other issues at stake in the test ban bargaining also might be undergoing change.

Foster told the 17-nation disarmament conference:

"I feel compelled to ask myself how we shall find any way to overcome both the substantive and procedural obstacles which the Soviet delegation is piling up on the road to concluding a test ban treaty.

"How short-sighted it would be to lose the opportunity we now have to press forward and to create something which would be more valuable than all the bombs ever built. This opportunity will not be lost, I can assure you, through any fault of the United States."

Hinting at possible changes in the U. S. position, Foster said that during talks last week with Soviet delegate Vassili V. Kuznetsov "I explained the United States position on a number of features of the inspection system we envisaged."

"I hope that the Soviet Union government is now studying . . . not only the new U. S. quota number but also the other matters I put to the distinguished Soviet representative," he said.

Kennedy Lashes Back at Tax Cut Critics

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy took blunt issue today with critics of his tax cut plan, saying they have an obligation to offer positive alternatives if they don't like his top priority package.

Kennedy argued his proposal would promote the kind of economic growth that could add a total of $5,000 to the income of the average American family during the next 10 years. That would be an average annual earnings increase of $500 per family.

In a major address prepared for a symposium sponsored by the American Bankers Association, Kennedy said his own tax bill may

Four Fliers Died At Bay of Pigs, Dirksen Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., said today he has uncovered evidence that four American fliers were killed in the abortive 1961 invasion of Cuba.

Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, said in an interview he has completed a one-man inquiry into the Bay of Pigs disaster and is ready to turn his findings over to Senate investigators.

Other than to report the belief that four American lives were lost, he declined to discuss the evindence as assembled. Some of it came from participants in the invasion and some from U.S. military personnel in the area at the time.

The Republican leader said the four fliers were shot down in invasion planes which did not carry U.S. markings. Presumably they were in B26 bombers downed by jet trainers inherited by Fidel Castro from the overthrown Batista regime.

News stories at the time mentioned that one U.S. civilian flier might have been shot down. This report later was labeled erroneous.

Dirksen said he plans to discuss his findings with Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate's Preparedness subcommittee.

A subcommittee inquiry into the military strength of Soviet-dominated Cuba is expected to get under way this week. Stennis has indicated he regards the 1961 invasion as "spilled milk" to which the group would not be justified in devoting much time at this point. Dirksen disagreed.

"It seems to me it becomes a matter of some importance when even four American lives are lost," he said.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., contended on a television program Sunday that he and other Republicans had warned in advance what would happen in the Bay of Pigs.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., who appeared on the program with Scott, said his colleague was engaging in "Monday morning quarterbacking."

"All of your talk about the Bay of Pigs was after the event," he told Scott.

Death Toll Edges Up In Outbreaks of Flu

By United Press International

The death toll edged upward today in the outbreak of flu that has hit 21 states. Thousands lay ill from some sort of respiratory ailments. Asian flu was isolated in 11 states.

Health officials in New York City have reported that during the first seven weeks of 1963, 818 New Yorkers have died from either pneumonia or influenza.

This represents about 300 more than normally would die during a corresponding period in an average year. The health department said there was no accurate way to distinguish between the two diseases.

The latest death figures in other states included West Virginia 5, Kentucky 3, Indiana, Michigan and Florida, 1 each, and in Johnson City, Kans., several elderly patients in a rest home.

Different parts of the nation—mostly in the East and South—have been hit by the virus during the past six weeks and millions have felt the effects of fever, fatigue, cough and sneezes.

The Syracuse, N. Y., health department confirmed six cases of Asian flu during the weekend, but A. Clement Silverman, director of the bureau of communicable diseases, said he believed the flu had run its course this winter.

The Mississippi health department said there were indications the Asian flu was reaching epidemic proportions in Marshall and Coahoma counties. Exact figures awaited tabulation today.

Hospitals in many cities curtailed visits to patients in an effort to halt the spread of germs. "Send a card or write a note," hospital officials pleaded.

Horse Ride Fall Fatal To Local Boy

William Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith, 325 S. 11th St., died in Penrose hospital from injuries suffered when he was either thrown or fell from a horse near Woodland Park.

"We'll probably never know what happened," an official said.

Sheriff Rufus Jones of Teller County said the Smith boy had gone on the outing with several companions.

About two miles east of Woodland Park along U. S. Highway 24, the youngster's companions rode on ahead, leaving William behind.

About 1:15 p.m., a passerby noticed a horse, reins looped around its neck, trotting down the road toward a ranch. He investigated and found the youngster lying on the road near the Four-Bit Ranch.

The unidentified man contacted rancher Thomas Sorrel, Ute Pass, who took the boy to Penrose Hospital in his station wagon where young William died a short time later.

An autopsy was to be performed by County Coroner Dr. Raoul Urich to determine the exact cause of death.

Castro Must Be Destroyed, Says U.S. Legion Chief

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI)— The national commander of the American Legion has called for an all-out effort to destroy the Castro regime and "remove the cancer of communism from this hemisphere."

James E. Powers, national commander who spoke at the annual regional meeting Sunday in Santa Fe, said he believed total economic sanctions, a tight blockade and direct military intervention in Cuba should be employed if necessary.

The Macon, Ga., commander, who was in Latin America during the October crisis, made his remarks at a banquet honoring the state legislature and in an interview afterward.

"We believe that total economic sanctions are in order against Cuba, and that as tight a blockade as can be achieved should be reinstated," Powers said. "We believe that should these methods fail to bring Castro to his knees, then the organization of American states should make available to freedom-loving Cubans all the resources at their command to de-

Denverite Lost With Airplane

BRYCE CANYON, Utah (AP)— A light airplane flown by Robert McFarland of Denver was reported lost Sunday enroute from Las Vegas, Nev., to Grand Junction, Colo.

The Civil Air Patrol said the plane was last heard from at 2:04 a.m. when it reported to the Federal Aviation Agency's station at this southern Utah spot.

Search planes found no trace Sunday but planned to try again today between Bryce Canyon and Green River, Utah.

Cubans Are Told Clothing Will Be Rationed Now

HAVANA (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro, speaking a few hours after the announcement of new rationing measures, today predicted better times ahead for the Cuban people.

"What we have now are the fruits of the past," Castro said in an address to a medical congress attended largely by delegates from Russia, the Soviet satellites and Communist China. "One day we shall reap the fruits of the present."

Castro's two-hour speech in the Charlie Chaplin Theater—his second in two days—was one of the mildest in some time and included only a few attacks on American "imperialists" and pro-American president of Venezuela, Romulo Betancourt.

The Cuban government announced Sunday that rationing of clothing and clothing materials would begin Tuesday. Food, shoes and gasoline already are rationed in Cuba.

The government's Consolidated Products Enterprise (CPE) announced in the official press that the rationing is necessary to insure "that the workers and people can purchase clothing in a just and equitable manner, avoiding speculation and hoarding."

Castro said in a speech that

U.S. Soldiers Will 'Shoot First' Now In Viet Nam War

By NEIL SHEEHAN

SAIGON, Viet Nam (UPI)—The United States has decided to permit its soldiers to shoot first in the Vietnamese guerrilla war without waiting to be fired on by the Communists, it was reported today.

The move is aimed at checking the mounting U.S. casualty rate in the undeclared jungle war, according to informed sources.

Another American died Sunday. A young machine gunner was killed when two U.S. Army H21 helicopters were downed by Communist Viet Cong ground fire.

The machine gunner, a private first class, was not identified. His death brought to 52 the number of Americans killed in combat since the United States began its military buildup in South Viet Nam in 1961.

Informed military sources said the new "rules of engagement" will permit the U.S. Army's new H21 gas turbine helicopters to open fire on "positively identifed" guerrillas without waiting to be fired on first as heretofore.

The sources said the effectiveness of the heavily armed craft, known by their crews as "Hueys," in protecting the more vulnerable H21 troop carrying helicopters is expected to increase under the new rules.

The Hueys now will be able to precede the H21's into a troop landing zone and keep the guerrillas busy while the troop-carrying helicopters unload assault forces and then get away.

U.S. military observers in Saigon feel that if the Hueys had been able to follow this procedure during the battle of Ap Bac last month, the Viet Cong would not have been able to shoot down so many helicopters. Two Americans were killed and several others were wounded in the process.

U.S. officials denied press reports that the United States might withdraw its Air Force combat units from South Viet Nam.

The reports claimed the withdrawal was under consideration because of charges that heavy government air strikes against

Another Earth Tremor Noted In Libya Area

BENGHAZI, Libya (AP)—New earth tremors struck the ancient town of Tolemaide during the night but it was not known today whether there were any casualties

Tolemaide, a town of about 500 people settled by the Greeks before the birth of Christ, is 18 miles from El Marj, where 261 died in an earthquake last week.

In that shattered town, authorities abandoned the search for bodies and began making plans to rebuild.

Conviction of 187 Negroes Set Aside by Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court set aside today the conviction of 187 Negroes on breach of the peace charges brought after they demonstrated against racial segregation on the South Carolina State Capitol grounds.

The Negroes, high school and college students, carried placards and paraded about the Capitol at Columbia, S.C., on March 2, 1961. The State Senate was in session at the time.

Stewart's opinion said that "In arresting, convicting and punishing the petitioners (the demonstrators) under the circumstances disclosed by this record, South Carolina infringed the petitioners' constitutionally protected rights of free speech, free assembly and freedom to petition for redress of their grievances."

Joining Stewart in the majority were Chief Justice Warren and Justices Black, Douglas, Harlan, Brennan, White and Goldberg.

Clark's dissenting opinion said that the demonstrators "of course, had a right to peaceable assembly, to espouse their cause and to petition," but, he added, "In my view the manner in which they exercised their rights was by no means the passive demonstration which this court (the majority) relates."

16 Churchmen From Russia to Visit Denver

Rev. Carl McIntire, Jr., of Collingswood, N.J., has hired a hall for a "protest rally" and has promised to picket each meeting the visiting Russians attend.

McIntire has claimed the Russian clergymen are "spies."

The church leaders from the Soviet Union are returning a visit made to Russia last year by 13 members of the National Council of Churches.

The group will arrive in Denver Thursday and remain through Sunday, then travel to other U.S. communities in smaller groups.

Probe of News Strike Possible, Rocky Declares

NEW YORK (AP)— Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says he may appoint a board of inquiry, with subpoena powers, to look into the 80-day old New York City newspaper blackout.

The head of the striking printers says that if such a board were set up, "we'd respond." But as to accepting the findings of the board, adds Bertram A. Powers, "we reserve the right to accept or reject on the merits of the proposal."

There was no immediate comment by the publishers.

Rockefeller told a television audience Sunday — two hours before printers and publishers began separate talks with Mayor Robert F. Wagner at City Hall— that he "will have to consider a board of inquiry." If Wagner can't get the city's nine major papers back on the streets.

"We have arrived at the end of the road," Rockefeller said. "This thing cannot go any further."

The governor set no specific time for intervening in the dispute that he termed critical — from an economic point of view. He said he would act "pretty soon."

Powers, president of striking Local 6 of the AFL-CIO International Typographical Union, was asked — on a radio program— if the printers preferred Wagner or Rockefeller to act as umpire. Powers replied, "We have no preference."

As the Democratic mayor left City Hall, he said the dispute should not become involved in politics and that he believes the Republican governor feels the same way.

Wandering McKee Will Be Discharged by Army

Pvt. Fred J. McKee will be discharged from the Army this week, it was announced today at Ft. Carson.

He will be separated from the service under the provisions of Army Regulation 635-209 for "unsuitability." The decision in the case came about from recommendations of McKee's civilian medical consultations and Fitzsimons Army Hospital in Denver, where he has been undergoing evaluation for the past month.

Processing has begun and it is possible for McKee to be out of the Army as early as Wednesday. McKee, a 23-year old AWOL soldier from Ft. Campbell, Ky., was captured Dec. 9 near Cripple Creek after eluding the law for several months.

He was discovered inside the cabin of Nona Stodart, 1727 N. Franklin, by the 39-year old Colorado Springs social worker who held McKee at bay with a gun until the arrival of Teller County Sheriff Rufus Jones and four deputies.

Probers Blame U.S. Aid For Unstable Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A senatorial study group has reported to President Kennedy that after seven years of U.S. aid to South Viet Nam the country still lacks a stable government.

In fact, the study said the government of the Southeast Asian country "appears more removed, rather than closer to, the achievement of popularly responsible and responsive government."

Most of the blame for this, the report said, is due to policies by South Viet Nam President Ngo Dinh Diem. But, U.S. action, especially the aid program "must bear a very substantial share of the responsibility."

Although the report said the United States has poured more than $2 billion into the former French colony since 1955, it predicted no end to the assistance. "In the best of circumstances, outside aid in very substantial size will be necessary for many years."

The report was the fifth of a series made following a study trip to Asia last year made by four senators led by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont.

He was accompanied by Sens. J. Caleb Boggs, R-Del., and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., and former Sen. Benjamin A. Smith II, D-Mass.

The report said victory in the guerrilla war in Viet Nam is foreseen within one to three years by responsible experts, but, based on past experience, it recommended "caution in predicting its rapid achievement."

South Viet Nam is faced with a "massive job of social engineering," the report said. Outside aid will not help the country, the report predicted, unless there is a "great mobilization of selfless Vietnamese leadership in all parts of the country and at all levels."

The group concluded that U.S. aid to Laos and Cambodia had improved conditions there. It found no need to extend American foreign aid to other Southeast Asian countries which are not now receiving it.

$15.8 Billion Military Authorization Bill Voted

Funeral Rites Scheduled for James Murray

The flag at the Colorado Springs City Hall was lowered to half mast today in memory and respect for James J. Murray, city director of public works, who died suddenly of a heart attack Saturday night.

Mayor William C. Henderson and City Manager John M. Biery said today that the flag would continue to fly at half mast until noon Wednesday.

Additionally, they said, City Hall would not open Wednesday until 11 a.m. so that city employes can attend funeral services.

Requiem High Mass will be held at 9 a.m. Wednesday in Corpus Christi Church, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Anthony G. Elzi, celebrant. Rosary services will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Nolan drawing room. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

The shock of Mr. Murray's sudden death was noticeable today thruout the operation of the City of Colorado Springs. His friends were legion thruout the Pikes Peak Region and elsewhere in Colorado.

"His family has lost an outstanding father and husband," Mayor Henderson said. 'And the city has lost one of its outstanding officers."

These same sentiments were echoed by the city manager and his many close friends in City Hall and the Department of Public Utilities.

"He was one of the best friends I had in city government," Biery said.

But in addition to being a close personal friend," the city manager said, "he has been my No. 1 help in practically everything we have done in city government for several years."

The manager said "it was like losing my right arm. His death

Teenage Denver Girl Missing In Mountains

The girl was with a party of honor students from Manual High School who were hiking in the rugged country nearby.

Officers said she was with the hikers about a mile from the Lost Valley ranchhouse when she decided not to join the group in a climb over a pile of rocks.

When the climbers returned she was missing.

She was wearing a summer blouse and pedal pushers, officers said.

Temperatures Sunday night were near freezing as snow fell in the area.

Millionaires Work Hardest, Getty Declares

"They work longer hours than any other working man," the 70-year-old oil king said Sunday night on a television interview on the British Broadcasting Corp.

But that doesn't mean Getty is ready to retire.

"I've never had the feeling I'm flushed," he said. "I'm strugglin on."

"Of all the classes I know, millionaires are the hardest workers."

Getty said it "was a good thing" he could not take his money with him when he dies because "it might be a burden."

Getty's 70-company empire nets him $11,200 an hour, of $1.9 million a week. He inherited his business from his father.

Realty Recording Act Repeal Is Voted in House

DENVER (AP) — Legislators from rural districts drove through the Colorado House of Representatives today on final reading a bill repealing the Realty Recording Act, based on computation of sales ratio.

Sales ratio has been a part of the state's school law for the past three years.

The vote was 38-25.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

Metropolitan area representatives were snowed under in the final House vote, which came a few minutes after the lawmakers began their eighth week of the session.

All 17 Denver representatives opposed the bill and were joined by Reps. Frank Evans and Betty Kirk West, Pueblo Democrats; Rep. John G. Mackie of Longmont, the Republican floor leader; Adams County Reps. Seiji Horiuchi, R-Brighton and John Kane, D-Northglenn; Jefferson County Republicans Ruth Stockton of Lakewood and Joseph Schieffelin of Golden and Democrat Lowell Compton of La Junta.

In contrast to Friday's preliminary action on the bill, there was no debate.

The measure was the first major one before the Legislature to split party lines. On the final vote the Democratic floor leader, Rep. Allen Dines of Denver voted against the bill, along with the GOP leader Mackie, and Rep. Palmer Burch, R-Denver, the finance chairman. Speaker John Vanderhoof, R-Glenwood Springs, voted for the bill.

The Realty Recording Act, passed originally in 1957, requires the filing of a certificate showing the actual price involved in the sale of every piece of real estate where a transaction takes place. The certificates are used by the Legislative Council to develop the relationship in each county between assessed valuation and actual sales price. As used in the school law, more money goes to counties where the assessed valuation is high and less money is received by those where the as-

Big Eater Dies At Last of Heart Attack

SECAUCUS, N. J. (AP) — He could eat six pizzas at one sitting and finish off a case of beer watching television, said his longtime friend.

He was warned two months ago that his weight was endangering his life, said his physician, Dr. A. T. Stokes.

Sully was 39, 5 feet 10 and weighed 600 pounds.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Armed Services Committee approved a $15.8 billion military authorization bill today—including $336 million to step up the controversial RS70 reconnaissance strike plane program.

Chairman Carl Vinson, D-Ga., said the extra money would pay for construction of two more RS70s, which the administration doesn't want to build.

"We felt it was our duty to put it in," Vinson said. But he said the committee only authorized the extra funds, and did not order the Pentagon to spend the money.

The Pentagon now plans to construct three of the 2,000-mile-an-hour planes. The first is to be test flown late this spring.

The committee also voted extra funds for the Navy to build two more attack submarines. That increases the fiscal 1964 program from the six subs approved by the Pentagon to the eight sought by the Navy.

Vinson said the committee actions increased the military procurement and research bill by $497,700,000.

Soviets Obstruct Atom Test Ban, U.S. Charges

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States said today that progress on a nuclear test ban treaty is impossible unless the Russians ease their rigid position on verification.

Chief U. S. negotiator William C. Foster, just returned from consulations with President Kennedy in Washington, appealed to the Soviet Union to remove its "substantive and procedural obstacles" to nuclear negotiations.

He urged the Russians to give serious consideration to the U. S. offer of seven annual on-site inspections to police a test ban.

He hinted that the U. S. position on other issues at stake in the test ban bargaining also might be undergoing change.

Foster told the 17-nation disarmament conference:

"I feel compelled to ask myself how we shall find any way to overcome both the substantive and procedural obstacles which the Soviet delegation is piling up on the road to concluding a test ban treaty.

"How short-sighted it would be to lose the opportunity we now have to press forward and to create something which would be more valuable than all the bombs ever built. This opportunity will not be lost, I can assure you, through any fault of the United States."

Hinting at possible changes in the U. S. position, Foster said that during talks last week with Soviet delegate Vassili V. Kuznetsov "I explained the United States position on a number of features of the inspection system we envisaged."

"I hope that the Soviet Union government is now studying . . . not only the new U. S. quota number but also the other matters I put to the distinguished Soviet representative," he said.

Kennedy Lashes Back at Tax Cut Critics

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy took blunt issue today with critics of his tax cut plan, saying they have an obligation to offer positive alternatives if they don't like his top priority package.

Kennedy argued his proposal would promote the kind of economic growth that could add a total of $5,000 to the income of the average American family during the next 10 years. That would be an average annual earnings increase of $500 per family.

In a major address prepared for a symposium sponsored by the American Bankers Association, Kennedy said his own tax bill may

Four Fliers Died At Bay of Pigs, Dirksen Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., said today he has uncovered evidence that four American fliers were killed in the abortive 1961 invasion of Cuba.

Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, said in an interview he has completed a one-man inquiry into the Bay of Pigs disaster and is ready to turn his findings over to Senate investigators.

Other than to report the belief that four American lives were lost, he declined to discuss the evindence as assembled. Some of it came from participants in the invasion and some from U.S. military personnel in the area at the time.

The Republican leader said the four fliers were shot down in invasion planes which did not carry U.S. markings. Presumably they were in B26 bombers downed by jet trainers inherited by Fidel Castro from the overthrown Batista regime.

News stories at the time mentioned that one U.S. civilian flier might have been shot down. This report later was labeled erroneous.

Dirksen said he plans to discuss his findings with Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate's Preparedness subcommittee.

A subcommittee inquiry into the military strength of Soviet-dominated Cuba is expected to get under way this week. Stennis has indicated he regards the 1961 invasion as "spilled milk" to which the group would not be justified in devoting much time at this point. Dirksen disagreed.

"It seems to me it becomes a matter of some importance when even four American lives are lost," he said.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., contended on a television program Sunday that he and other Republicans had warned in advance what would happen in the Bay of Pigs.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., who appeared on the program with Scott, said his colleague was engaging in "Monday morning quarterbacking."

"All of your talk about the Bay of Pigs was after the event," he told Scott.

Death Toll Edges Up In Outbreaks of Flu

By United Press International

The death toll edged upward today in the outbreak of flu that has hit 21 states. Thousands lay ill from some sort of respiratory ailments. Asian flu was isolated in 11 states.

Health officials in New York City have reported that during the first seven weeks of 1963, 818 New Yorkers have died from either pneumonia or influenza.

This represents about 300 more than normally would die during a corresponding period in an average year. The health department said there was no accurate way to distinguish between the two diseases.

The latest death figures in other states included West Virginia 5, Kentucky 3, Indiana, Michigan and Florida, 1 each, and in Johnson City, Kans., several elderly patients in a rest home.

Different parts of the nation—mostly in the East and South—have been hit by the virus during the past six weeks and millions have felt the effects of fever, fatigue, cough and sneezes.

The Syracuse, N. Y., health department confirmed six cases of Asian flu during the weekend, but A. Clement Silverman, director of the bureau of communicable diseases, said he believed the flu had run its course this winter.

The Mississippi health department said there were indications the Asian flu was reaching epidemic proportions in Marshall and Coahoma counties. Exact figures awaited tabulation today.

Hospitals in many cities curtailed visits to patients in an effort to halt the spread of germs. "Send a card or write a note," hospital officials pleaded.

Norway Releases One Counterfeiter

BERGEN, Norway (AP)—A 35-year-old clerk was caught making Bank of Norway notes in Bergen, but was released because he did it for a lark.

The chief police inspector said the man put two of the home-made kroner ($14) into circulation.

Question of Hot Pursuit Still Not Decided

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — One revision in standing orders which President Kennedy has told the Pentagon to make in the case of further Red attacks on U.S. shipping could turn out to be permission for "hot pursuit" of the attackers.

That authority presumably is not covered under routine standing orders.

Contingency plans for reaction in case of direct attack on U.S. territory from Cuba almost certainly must include hot pursuit—and much more than that. But they would not be expected to provide blanket authority for hot pursuit in incidents of lesser magnitude.

The doctrine of hot pursuit generally is accepted as a valid application of international law. Its use goes far back in naval history. It has been invoked in cases ranging from simple smuggling operations to a major controversy in the prosecution of the Korean War.

During the hearings, the late Adm. Forrest Sherman, then chief of naval operations, was asked about hot pursuit.

Sherman said the term originated during the practice of naval blockades. He said "it is a continuing operation against an airplane that is coming into North Korea and has attacked you; you engage in a fight with him and you continue the fight and you keep on fighting as you pass over the border."

As interpreted under international law, there are certain prerequisites to the right of hot pursuit.

A book recently published by the U.S. Naval Institute, "International Law for seagoing Officers," emphasizes that pursuit must be hot—close and involving action — and continuous. This means it can't be broken off by one plane and picked up some time later by another. If a plane or ship finds itself unable to close in on the fleeing hostile aircraft, another may be called to join in and assist.

In his rapid-fire answers to news conference questions, Kennedy said a judgement should be made on whether hot pursuit should be carried out "to" the shors of Cuba.

Taken literally, this could mean that Kennedy had in mind pursuit only while over international waters, with the chase stopped as the three-mile territorial waters off Cuban shores was reached.

On the other hand, U.S. military planes have been overflying Cuban territory on reconnaissance missions since last July. Those aircraft are on information-seeking missions, not for purposes of exchanging fire.

Hot pursuit, under international law interpretation, includes pursuit into the territory of another nation.

The Korean issue was whether U.S. fighter planes should continue to pursue Communist aircraft after they had crossed the Yalu River, the boundary between Red China and North Korea.

In the Senate Armed Services Committee hearings of the MacArthur case, Gen. Omar Bradley, then chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said MacArthur proposed hot pursuit, the State Department approved the proposal and President Harry S. Truman also approved it.

But the proposal was abandoned because of the objection of "certain other nations who had troops in Korea," Bradley said.

More Political Power Sought By Labor Unions

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The AFL-CIO is laying careful plans at winter union meetings to make organized labor an even more potent political force on the state and national scene.

Federal chiefs decided here to expand to a permanent, year-around basis previously sporadic campaigns to get the maximum number of union members and adult members of the family to qualify to vote and to go to the polls.

They also decided to establish voting overseers in each of the 60,000 local unions comprising labor organizations affiliated with the AFL-CIO. Their responsibility will be to marshal the greatest possible labor turnout in 1964 and beyond.

"We're now in this thing permanently" a spokesman said after an administrative meeting of the Committee on Political Education, the AFL-CIO political action organization.

Union leaders acknowledged they can't successfully tell workers how to vote, but said they are confident the vast majority generally will vote for candidates and issues favored by the union.

AFL-CIO drives before the 1960 and 1962 elections to get workers registered and voting were so successful, union leaders said, they are starting now to get ready for the 1964 presidential race and for state and national elections in later years.

Hanover News

By MRS. RUTH CHISMAN

The Hanover High School students are sponsoring a chicken dinner at the Hanover School from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. Tuesday evening, March 5. A film will be shown at 8:30. The dinner will be $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for grade school children. No charge will be made for pre-school children. If tickets are not purchased from students in advance an extra 25 cents will be charged. The proceeds are to go on the junior-senior school trip. Come out and enjoy some good eats and help the boys and girls.

Word was received from Longmont that word had been received there that the Rev. Gabe Upton had passed away, and that his funeral was to have been in Pueblo Sunday,Feb. 17. I believe Rev. Upton had been ministering at the Methodist Church in Springfield, Colo. He will be remembered for his many kindnesses while a minister at the Fountain Methodist Church several years ago. He also came to Hanover while he was there and was minister here for a while. One of his sons works at the Lewellyn Mortuary in Longmont. His wife had preceded him in death while most of his family was at home. He had done a wonderful job in keeping the five or six children together. He was truly a friend of all.

The Hanover - Squirrel Creek Girls 4-H Club met at the home of Virginia Reble Friday evening, Feb. 15, after school. Eleven girls and their leader, Elizabeth Akers, were present. The girls decided it was easier to meet after school than be up nights. Nore Coleman demonstrated making cocoa. She served it and cake that she had brought for refreshments.

New Insight Is Given Into Cancer Issue

HOUSTON (UPI) —Cancer researchers from three continents learned here how a team of Utah State University botanists used sound waves to create living viruses from cell-free plant and animal substances.

Dr. George W. Cochran explained how he and his associates developed the process, which was described as a major breakthrough in cancer research.

Cochran said his team also found the source of a suspected cancer link in infected cells to find where the suspected substance, nucleic acid, was formed. They found it in tiny green bodies containing chlorophyll, and in the nucleus, the "center" of the cell.

Cochran said the researchers purified the green particles, put them in test tubes and broke them open with ultrasonic (high sound range) energy. They added a small amount of viral nucleic acid which served as a pattern to create the new living organisms.

Cochran made his report at the 17th annual symposium on fundamental cancer research at the University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute.

He said he discovered early last year that ribonucleic acid, usually produced by living cells or viruses, could be formed by cell-free extracts from infected plants. He duplicated in the test tube a type of ribonucleic acid formed by tobacco virus.

Cochran said he hopes his experiments will lead to new methods of chemical control of virus diseases—including, possibly, cancer.

PAROCHIAL AID "UNSOUND"

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A spokesman for the nation's largest organization of Protestant churches said here federal aid to parochial grade and high schools would be "unwise and unsound" even if it is found to be constitutional.

Norway Releases One Counterfeiter

BERGEN, Norway (AP)—A 35-year-old clerk was caught making Bank of Norway notes in Bergen, but was released because he did it for a lark.

The chief police inspector said the man put two of the homemade kroner ($14) into circulation.

PENNY THIEF

The penny, taken from Less Cassidy's coin shop, is valued at $100.

Question of Hot Pursuit Still Not Decided

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — One revision in standing orders which President Kennedy has told the Pentagon to make in the case of further Red attacks on U.S. shipping could turn out to be permission for "hot pursuit" of the attackers.

That authority presumably is not covered under routine standing orders.

Contingency plans for reaction in case of direct attack on U.S. territory from Cuba almost certainly must include hot pursuit—and much more than that. But they would not be expected to provide blanket authority for hot pursuit in incidents of lesser magnitude.

The doctrine of hot pursuit generally is accepted as a valid application of international law. Its use goes far back in naval history. It has been invoked in cases ranging from simple smuggling operations to a major controversy in the prosecution of the Korean War.

During the hearings, the late Adm. Forrest Sherman, then chief of naval operations, was asked about hot pursuit.

Sherman said the term originated during the practice of naval blockades. He said "it is a continuing operation against an airplane that is coming into North Korea and has attacked you; you engage in a fight with him and you continue the fight and you keep on fighting as you pass over the border."

As interpreted under international law, there are certain prerequisites to the right of hot pursuit.

A book recently published by the U.S. Naval Institute, "International Law for seagoing Officers," emphasizes that pursuit must be hot—close and involving action — and continuous. This means it can't be broken off by one plane and picked up some time later by another. If a plane or ship finds itself unable to close in on the fleeing hostile aircraft, another may be called to join in and assist.

In his rapid-fire answers to news conference questions, Kennedy said a judgement should be made on whether hot pursuit should be carried out "to" the shors of Cuba.

Taken literally, this could mean that Kennedy had in mind pursuit only while over international waters, with the chase stopped as the three-mile territorial waters off Cuban shores was reached.

On the other hand, U.S. military planes have been overflying Cuban territory on reconnaissance missions since last July. Those aircraft are on information-seeking missions, not for purposes of exchanging fire.

Hot pursuit, under international law interpretation, includes pursuit into the territory of another nation.

The Korean issue was whether U.S. fighter planes should continue to pursue Communist aircraft after they had crossed the Yalu River, the boundary between Red China and North Korea.

In the Senate Armed Services Committee hearings of the MacArthur case, Gen. Omar Bradley, then chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said MacArthur proposed hot pursuit, the State Department approved the proposal and President Harry S. Truman also approved it.

But the proposal was abandoned because of the objection of "certain other nations who had troops in Korea," Bradley said.

More Political Power Sought By Labor Unions

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The AFL-CIO is laying careful plans at winter union meetings to make organized labor an even more potent political force on the state and national scene.

Federal chiefs decided here to expand to a permanent, year-around basis previously sporadic campaigns to get the maximum number of union members and adult members of the family to qualify to vote and to go to the polls.

They also decided to establish voting overseers in each of the 60,000 local unions comprising labor organizations affiliated with the AFL-CIO. Their responsibility will be to marshal the greatest possible labor turnout in 1964 and beyond.

"We're now in this thing permanently" a spokesman said after an administrative meeting of the Committee on Political Education, the AFL-CIO political action organization.

Union leaders acknowledged they can't successfully tell workers how to vote, but said they are confident the vast majority generally will vote for candidates and issues favored by the union.

AFL-CIO drives before the 1960 and 1962 elections to get workers registered and voting were so successful, union leaders said, they are starting now to get ready for the 1964 presidential race and for state and national elections in later years.

The Hanover High School students are sponsoring a chicken dinner at the Hanover School from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. Tuesday evening, March 5. A film will be shown at 8:30. The dinner will be $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for grade school children. No charge will be made for pre-school children. If tickets are not purchased from students in advance an extra 25 cents will be charged. The proceeds are to go on the junior-senior school trip. Come out and enjoy some good eats and help the boys and girls.

Word was received from Longmont that word had been received there that the Rev. Gabe Upton had passed away, and that his funeral was to have been in Pueblo Sunday, Feb. 17. I believe Rev. Upton had been ministering at the Methodist Church in Springfield, Colo. He will be remembered for his many kindnesses while a minister at the Fountain Methodist Church several years ago. He also came to Hanover while he was there and was minister here for a while. One of his sons works at the Lewellyn Mortuary in Longmont. His wife had preceded him in death while most of his family was at home. He had done a wonderful job in keeping the five or six children together. He was truly a friend of all.

Dance Band Claims Record in Playing

BRANTFORD, Ont. (AP) — Mel Rowe's Midnight Ramblers, a five-piece dance band, claimed a record of sorts Sunday by playing 80 hours, 33 minutes without stopping.

Beginning Wednesday the musicians rambled through between 1,800 and 2,000 tunes, with vocalist Ray Reekes singing 1,200.

Town in Libya To Be Rebuilt

EL MARJ, Libya (AP) — The search for bodies was abandoned in the earthquake ruins of El Marj today, and Libyan officials began making plans to resurrect the shattered town.

Thousands of homeless moved forlornly into two encampments being rushed up outside the town. They settled down, 60 and 70 to a tent, to await provision of new homes.

"They will have a long time to wait," said one local official. "It could take months or years to rebuild El Marj. But we have been promised that the town planners will be here as soon as possible to make a start."

The 20 per cent of El Marj's buildings still standing after the quake Thursday night are too dangerous for habitation. The rest are rubble.

The death toll was estimated at 261 by British army authorities who supervised the rescue work. Libyan officials said about 40 persons were still unaccounted for.

Rusk Reported Quite Secure In His Job

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk appeared here to be quite secure in his job, despite continuing newspaper speculation that his position is not too strong.

White House sources said President Kennedy was very satisfied with Rusk's performance and had no intention of making any change. The President himself told a news conference only two weeks ago that he and Rusk were "in very close communion" on the question of how the State Department should be run, "and I have the highest confidence in him."

This appeared to have laid at rest recurrent rumors that all was not well between Kennedy and Rusk. However, disclosure earlier this week that the President planned to move the No. 3 man in the State Department, Undersecretary for Political Affairs George C. McGhee, to ambassadorial post and put Assistant Secretary of State W. Averell Harriman in that job set off new rumors of an impending "shake-up."

Well - informed administration sources said that Rusk and his top assistant, Undersecretary George W. Ball, were still in the good graces of the White House and no widespread reshuffling in the State Department was in prospect.

There has been some speculation that Ball might be out of favor because he "oversold" the idea that French President Charles de Gaulle would not carry his differences with Britain and the United States to the point that he has. But officials said Ball's job still appeared secure.

Rusk has been criticized by some commentators for not injecting himself more forcibly into national security affairs. He has been considered by some as being too reticent in pushing himself to the front.

Some are like beetles.

Nobody really notices Volkswagens any more.

They're so well known, they sort of blend in with the scenery.

It doesn't matter what the scenery is, either. You can buy a VW in any one of 633 cities in the country. (Or in any one of 136 countries in the world.)

Hot and cold just aren't important. The VW engine is air-cooled. It doesn't use any water, so it can't freeze up or boil over.

And having the engine in the back makes all the difference when it comes to mud and sand and snow.

Plastic Armor Stops Surprise Russian Bullets

By RALPH DIGHTON

AZUSA, Calif. (AP)—Americans in the Korean War were somewhat disturbed to encounter a hand-held Soviet 14.5 mm. rifle which bored holes through the armor of our newest tanks.

Now U.S. technology has come up with a new armor, lighter and tougher than steel, which stops the thumb-thick 14.5 mm. bullet.

The new armor is made of plastic.

Unlike metal alloys, which stop projectiles by being dense enough to absorb their high-speed energy, the new plastic plays tricks on the bullets. It lets them penetrate slightly, then twists them sideways so they break into small pieces snugly pocketed within the armor panel.

This happens even when the bullet is fired head-on.

Inventor Harry King, a materials engineer at Aerojet-General Corp., says the armor is now being tested at the Army's Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds. Many of the details are secret.

"We can say that the plastic armor is approximately 40 per cent lighter than the conventional armor it would take to stop a given projectile," King disclosed.

"The speed of a bullet traveling 3,000 feet per second drops to zero after traveling half an inch through the armor."

The armor which stops the Soviet 14.5 mm antitank projectile is made of sheets of glass fiber and secret non-metallic materials, bonded into panels about two inches thick.

Just how the bullet, traveling more than a half mile per second, is turned sideways and shattered is something that King himself isn't sure he knows.

"When I set out to make the panel, I predicted this would happen," he says, "but until the tests are completed I can't be positive why it happens."

TO FREE PRISONERS

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — An estimated 8,000 to 10,000 prisoners will be released under an amnesty approved by the Senate Saturday, but political prisoners will not be affected.

The first 36 prisoners were freed Sunday. All were narcotics offenders.

TAMMELA, Finland (UPI)— Finnish President Urho Kekkonen, 62, skied 34 miles Sunday in a tour arranged by local sports organizations. Thirteen Finnish generals made the tour with him.

Dance Band Claims Record in Playing

BRANTFORD, Ont. (AP) — Mel Rowe's Midnight Ramblers, a five-piece dance band, claimed a record of sorts Sunday by playing 80 hours, 33 minutes without stopping.

Beginning Wednesday the musicians rambled through between 1,800 and 2,000 tunes, with vocalist Ray Reekes singing 1,200.

Town in Libya To Be Rebuilt

EL MARJ, Libya (AP) — The search for bodies was abandoned in the earthquake ruins of El Marj today, and Libyan officials began making plans to resurrect the shattered town.

Thousands of homeless moved forlornly into two encampments being rushed up outside the town. They settled down, 60 and 70 to a tent, to await provision of new homes.

"They will have a long time to wait," said one local official. "It could take months or years to rebuild El Marj. But we have been promised that the town planners will be here as soon as possible to make a start."

The 20 per cent of El Marj's buildings still standing after the quake Thursday night are too dangerous for habitation. The rest are rubble.

The death toll was estimated at 261 by British army authorities who supervised the rescue work. Libyan officials said about 40 persons were still unaccounted for.

Rusk Reported Quite Secure In His Job

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk appeared here to be quite secure in his job, despite continuing newspaper speculation that his position is not too strong.

White House sources said President Kennedy was very satisfied with Rusk's performance and had no intention of making any change. The President himself told a news conference only two weeks ago that he and Rusk were "in very close communion" on the question of how the State Department should be run, "and I have the highest confidence in him."

This appeared to have laid at rest recurrent rumors that all was not well between Kennedy and Rusk. However, disclosure earlier this week that the President planned to move the No. 3 man in the State Department, Undersecretary for Political Affairs George C. McGhee, to ambassadorial post and put Assistant Secretary of State W. Averell Harriman in that job set off new rumors of an impending "shake-up."

Well - informed administration sources said that Rusk and his top assistant, Undersecretary George W. Ball, were still in the good graces of the White House and no widespread reshuffling in the State Department was in prospect.

There has been some speculation that Ball might be out of favor because he "oversold" the idea that French President Charles de Gaulle would not carry his differences with Britain and the United States to the point that he has. But officials said Ball's job still appeared secure.

Rusk has been criticized by some commentators for not injecting himself more forcibly into national security affairs. He has been considered by some as being too reticent in pushing himself to the front.

leaves the biggest hole in city government since my coming to Colorado Springs" more than a decade ago.

"I feel that I have lost one of the finest personal friends I have ever had," Henderson said. "Our friendship dates back to the fall of 1934 when we both started college at Colorado College, where we were both pledges to Phi Gamma Delta fraternity."

The city manager said Mr. Murray was so involved in numerous city projects that it will be difficult to move forward on some of them for awhile.

In addition to his own projects, Mr. Murray helped on many other city projects not directly connected with his department, the city manager said.

Mr. Murray was right in the middle of such things as the east-west expressway, the Fontanero Street underpass, the Pikes Peak summit house, remodeling of City Hall, storm drainage and storm drainage suits, the new police building, improvements at the municipally - operated Peterson Field, and many others.

"I was consulting with him or he was consulting with me on nearly everything that was going on in the city operation," Biery said.

The city manager said all the various city department heads connected with Mr. Murray had offered to help take up the slack left by the death of the public works director.

Mr. Murray was a virtual storehouse on information concerning city operations and generously contributed such information to other city employes and to anyone else who wanted it. "His work and his memory will stay with us for a long, long time," the mayor and the city manager said.

stroy the Castro regime."

Powers called for the American people to contribute to the "quick and complete demise of the Castro regime" and to give the Cubans the right to choose their own form of government.

He said the Legion believes that a last resort, if all other measures fail, should be for the OAS to intervene directly with military force. If this is not possible, he said, the United States should act unilaterally.

Commenting on the Russian threats that any military action by America would bring Soviet retaliation, Powers said, "it's a calculated risk. Their announced goal is to bury us. . . .I don't believe they are ready."

He said America is far superior to Russia in military might and that "now is the time to draw the line against the Russians."

Mrs. Lida Quinn Dies; Services Thursday

Mrs. Lida S. Quinn, 322 E. Costilla St., died at 78 at a local hospital Friday, after a short illness. She was a member of Friendship Baptist Church and president of the BTU.

Mrs. Quinn was born in Montgomery County, Miss., March 30, 1884. She had been a resident of Colorado Springs since 1928. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Susie Perkins, and a son, Alpha Harrison, both of Colorado springs; seven brothers, Everett, John, Joe, Wade and Jay Brown, all of Colorado Springs; Ozzia Brown Eupora, Miss., and Jim Brown, Detroit, Mich.; a sister, Mrs. Ethel McClendon, Colorado Springs; two grandchildren, 10 great - grandchildren, and two great-great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at Friendship Baptist Church. The Rev. T. J. Marigna will officiate. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery. The Hunter Mortuary has charge of arrangements.

Nikita's Career Remains Hazardous on Tightrope

By LEON DENNEN

NEW YORK (NEA)—A decade after Stalin's death, Nikita Khrushchev is like a man balancing himself on a tightrope one end of which is held by his "friends" in Moscow and the other by his enemy, Red China's Mao Tse-tung.

The Soviet premier's sudden shifts between threats to "bury" the Free World and soft words of peaceful coexistence are more than a technique for throwing the West off balance. They reflect the heavy economic and political pressure on him inside Russia and in the Red world.

When Stalin died in March, 1953, Khrushchev stood modestly at the back of the group of mourners around the dictator's bier. Lavrenti Beria, powerful chief of the secret police, V. M. Molotov, Lenin's only surviving friend, and Georgi Malenkov, Stalin's right-hand man, stood closer to the coffin. Red protocol is strict on such occasions.

(It would have taken a wild guess in 1953 to pick the pudgy and self-effacing Khrushchev as future top man in the Kremlin who would one day degrade Stalin's memory in the ranks of International Communism. (Dennen forecast Khrushchev's ascendency for the first time in 1955—Ed.)

Khrushchev owes his entire career to Stalin. He was the tyrant's obedient tool for more than a quarter of a century.

"By lifting their hands against Comrade Stalin, they lifted their hands against the best that humanity possesses. For Stalin is hope; he is expectation; he is the beacon that guides all progressive mankind."

Thus Khrushchev raged in 1936 against the innocent victims of Stalin's great blood purges. He was among the first Red sycophants to call the tyrant a "genius."

Today Khrushchev is engaged in a feud with Mao Tse-tung whom he denounces as a "dogmatic Stalinist."

He makes common cause with the man Stalin hated—Yugoslavia's President Tito.

He encourages poets like Evgeni Evtushenko and former inmates of slave labor camps like Alexander Solzhenitsyn to write books about Stalin's crimes as long as they are careful to absolve Khrushchev himself of complicity.

When this writer first encountered Khrushchev at the 1955 Geneva Summit conference he was ostensibly a lowly member of the Russian delegation. Nikolai Bulganin was premier and the Soviet Union's top delegate. But it was the military hero, Marshal Georgi Zhukov, who was Russia's glamor boy at the Summit conference.

Khrushchev outfoxed them all in less than two years. He first shot Beria and then exiled Malenkov. He forced Bulganin, Molotov and Zhukov to retire into obscurity.

If it was Khrushchev's idea to make Russia a viable Communist society able to compete with "capitalist" America then he is a long way from success.

Forty - five years after Lenin banished God and free enterprise to create his collectivist society, Russia continues to be plagued by economic and political troubles.

Eight years ago Khrushchev promised the Russians that they would have as much meat per capita as "capitalist America in 1961." But meat is as scarce on the tables of ordinary Russians in 1963 as it was when the Soviet Premier made his promise.

Housing and consumer goods are woefully inadequate. Millions of families still live in one room, sharing kitchen and bathroom with neighbors.

Many a worker must still spend an entire month's earnings on a man's suit.

The perennial farm crisis mocks Khrushchev's promise "to beat America in the production of meat, milk and butter."

Last summer the Kremlin raised the price of meat and butter 30 per cent because Russia needed extra funds for the merchanization of agriculture. Khrushchev explained that he could not take the money out of heavy industry and the production of atomic weapons because that would weaken Russia "in the face of aggressive designs" by the United States.

But thousands of Russian workers in Siberia and Odessa rejected the choice of atomic missiles or butter. They quit their jobs in protest against low wages and impossible living conditions. This was the first time since the 1917 Revolution that the Kremlin was forced to acknowledge officially a mass revolt by the Soviet proletariat.

Reports of shortages and service breakdowns fill the daily Soviet press. They are matched only by the long line of consumers outside the shops.

The Russians, next to the United States, are the strongest military nation on earth. They can send man to conquer space and could create havoc with their atomic weapons.

But if the living standard of any society is measured by the ability of its citizens to obtain a reasonable amount of food, clothing, housing and other essential services then Russia is a failure 45 years after the Revolution.

Specialists on Soviet affairs agree that in the field of science and war technology Russia has an elite comparable, though hardly superior, to the United States.

But what about the segment of Soviet society which represents top Communist party bureaucracy—Russia's real rulers?

"Fraud, bribery, wastefulness and misappropriation of state resources must be stopped. Such acts unfortunately are widespread."

Treason, espionage, acts of terrorism and sabotage have long carried the death penalty in Russia. But in May, 1961, the Kremlin introduced capital punishment for such offenses as misappropriation of state property, forgery, assault on prison authorities and terrorization of other prisoners.

Two months later the Supreme Soviet passed a decree imposing the death penalty for illegal currency transactions. Present Soviet law provides the death penalty for more offenses than ever before in peacetime.

Nevertheless, in view of experts on Russia, things are better under Khrushchev than they were under Stalin 10 years ago.

There is no longer the same widespread terror. The secret police is still powerful, but it no longer plays such an appallingly important part in the lives of ordinary men and women. Most of the slave labor camps where millions of Russians languished under Stalin have been abolished by Khrushchev. Most—but not all.

Despite some "liberalization" Red dictatorship has not changed its basic nature. Russia continues to be ruled by the Communist oligarchy.

However, Khrushchev does not wield Stalin's absolute power. To stay at the helm in the Kremlin, he is constantly compelled to appease Russia's rising elite of scientists, engineers, technicians, writers and Red Army officers.

In foreign as in domestic policy, Khrushchev is a bolder gambler than Stalin was. He encourages poets like Evtushenko and writers like Ilya Ehrenburg to blow off steam in order to keep the dictatorship's lid from blowing off. In this, his methods are more subtle and humane than Stalin's. Besides, he can always clip the wings of his official "literary rebels" if they fly too far from the Party line.

Probably the greatest challenge to the Communist dictatorship are the hopes and aspirations of Russia's youth which never really knew the terror of Stalinism.

The Kremlin rulers are realizing belatedly that the policies of the Communist Party will have to undergo alterations to keep the younger generation from abandoning the Soviet system altogether. The primitive, backward and demagogic nature of Marxism—Leninism is becoming increasingly apparent to young Russian intellectuals.

Two recent poems by the controversial young Russian poet Robert Rozdzhestvensky embody the widespread expectation of Soviet youth of further liberalization in Russia.

In the young poet's view, the "reforms" Khrushchev introduced thus far do not represent a real change for the better. The poet writes:

"The whole world is still frozen in expectation. But now is the time to leave the Hall of Expectations and enter the Hall of Accomplishments."

Rozdzhestvensky implies that more profound changes in the Red dictatorship are a necessary condition for "Russia's growing strength."

The Soviet youth as a whole is not anti-Communist in a political sense. But the current attidues of the young Russians represent a potential danger for the Communist regime.

Many young people, Pravda complains, "have a capitalist out look on life." Their interest in Western culture is so great that many Soviet youths "are only too willing to leave the Soviet Union for the West."

Soviet scientists, it appears, are thinking in terms of a spiritual concept of the universe. Religion, despite years of Red persecution, shows signs of revival.

Then, worst of all, there is Khrushchev's bitter conflict with Mao Tse-tung which is destroying the monolithic structure of International Communism.

Quieter Hotel Nights Sought By Britishers

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Noise Abatement Society has announced a noise survey of the nation's hotels in an all-out campaign to assure guests of quiet nights.

"As things now stand," said a spokesman for the society, "a guest can book into (reserve a room in) some secluded seaside cove only to find he's let himself in for nights of bedlam and a nervous breakdown."

The society has asked the Automobile Association — which grades hotels annually in its handbooks—to start a quiet classification.

For instance, if a hotel has 10 quiet, or soundproof rooms, the AA handbook would point this out, saying q.b-10, meaning 10 quiet bedrooms.

The Automobile Association said it would give serious consideration to the society's campaign.

John Connell, secretary of the society, said the country's hotels would be asked to let acoustic experts measure the noise level in its edrooms.

The first reactions from London hotels was mixed.

A spokesman for one chain said:

"Soundproofing is possible only with double windows and air conditioning, but most people in this country don't like air conditioning. They like to open their windows and when you do that you get noise."

A spokesman for another chain said:

villages suspected of harboring Viet Cong were turning the population against the government.

U.S. diplomatic and high-ranki military officials, including military assistance command chief Gen. Paul D. Harkins, said to the best of their knowledge no such decision was under consideration.

Gen. Emmett (Rosie) O'Donnell, U.S. Air Force Pacific commander, indirectly denied persistent reports that many innocent civilians are being killed in air strikes against the Viet Cong.

O'Donnell said Vietnamese air force tactical fighters and bombers "have been able to locate positively and destroy targets, and I mean small fleeting targets, under difficult conditions."

Truck Stolen; Later Found In Ditch

A truck belonging to Adam Bosch of 1032 Calvert Ave., was stolen Saturday and found later in a ditch off Broadway Street.

Bosch told Deputy Sheriffs Bob Walters and Bernard Barry said he parked it on his storage lot at the Corner of Calvert Avenue and Broadway Street and that was the last time he saw it.

The right front fender of the right side of the vehicle had been damaged.

Gibbons Machine Opens Medical Door to Heart

By ALICIA HART

PHILADELPHIA (NEA)—They told the young surgeon it couldn't be done.

But on May 6, 1953, Dr. John H. Gibbon Jr. did the "impossible"—and 17 years of dogged research in the face of stiff medical skepticism were crowned with a success that has meant new life for thousands.

On that day they wheeled pretty 18-year-old Cecelia Bavolek into the operating room at The Jefferson Medical College Hospital in Philadelphia.

Cecelia was doomed to an early death unless something was done to correct an inborn defect in her heart—a mistake that nature sometimes makes in arranging the heart's openings, valves and chambers. Some 30,000 children are born every year with one or a combination of these congenital heart defects.

To save Cecelia, Dr. Gibbon would have to open her heart and repair the defect. Near the operating table stood a large rectangular apparatus strewn with cables and tubes. This machine would be Cecelia's heart and lungs during the operation.

Dr. Gibbon's heart-lung machine —the device which he had spent so much time and brilliant effort in developing—would enable him to operate on a dry and bloodless heart. A mechanical pump would send blood into Cecelia's unconscious body. An "oxygenator" would pour oxygen into the blood and remove wastes from the returning "used" or deoxygenated blood.

"I had to screw up my courage to do this operation," Dr. Gibbon reminisced 10 years later in his office at Jefferson where he heads the department of surgery.

"Our animal studies showed that we could keep dogs on the machine successfully for an hour without any major problems. But what about humans?

"We tried it on one other human patient before Cecelia. The child didn't live, but it wasn't the fault of the machine. We had made a faulty diagnosis which we discovered during surgery. The 1-year-old child weighed only 11 pounds and was in poor condition."

But Cecelia made it. And the door to a new era of heart surgery opened.

The story of how Cecelia's life was saved actually begins in 1931 when Dr. Gibbon was a Fellow at Harvard's Massachusetts General Hospital.

One day the young surgeon saw a woman die of a clot which choked off her pulmonary artery, blocking the flow of blood from her heart to her lungs.

"Her death stuck in my craw," recalls Dr. Gibbon. "If we had only had a way of by-passing her heart and lungs we could have cut into the pulmonary artery and removed that clot. We could have saved her, if . . . It was a big if."

That "if" became Dr. Gibbon's life work.

After three years of surgical work in Philadelphia, he returned in 1934 to Harvard Medical School on a year's research fellowship where he hoped to build a mechanical heart and lung.

He received little encouragement. Some of his advisers said his project smacked of science fiction. If he wanted to get publishable findings he should tackle some other project.

But Dr. Gibbon would not relent.

"I put a lot of home-made equipment together that year," Dr. Gibbon reflects, "and I spent some time with a professor of engineering at Harvard discussing methods of converting a stream of blood into a thin film and then back into a stream again."

While the blood was in a thin film, the red blood cells could pick up oxygen much as they do in the lungs. This had to be done without causing any turbulence or "bubbling" in the flow.

The bubbling phenomenon is known to deep sea divers. When they are brought to the surface too rapidly after a long period of submergence, bubbles form in the blood stream, causing excruciating pains known as the "bends."

Flow also had to be smooth enough so that the oxygen-bearing red blood cell would not be knocked around too violently in the machine.

Dr. Gibbon made his first try on cats, using a whirling cylindrical oxygenator to spread the blood in a thin film. In the beginning he found that part of the work of the animal's heart and lungs could be taken over by the machine. Finally one day he found he could cut off completely the flow of blood through the animal's own heart and lungs and maintain life with the mechanical heart and lungs.

"I remember that day very clearly," he says with a chuckle. "My wife was helping me with the research. After we had this success, I picked her up and danced her around the laboratory."

Returning to Philadelphia, Dr. Gibbon repeated his animal experiments at the University of Pennsylvania. These cats survived and thrived. In 1939 Dr. Gibbon delivered an historic paper on this work, astounding a meeting of chest surgeons. One surgeon in attendance said the report reminded him of Jules Verne's "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea."

Modern heart surgery began about this time. A year earlier another pioneer, Dr. Robert Cross at Children's Memorial Hospital in Boston, had succeeded in repairing a congenital defect affecting the blood vessels leading from the heart of a 5-year-old girl. The repair of this defect did not involve opening the heart, but it was the first successful attempt to correct an inborn defect.

There was still much for Dr. Gibbon to do. He had had his success with cats. But could he achieve such striking results with humans?

After a five-year interruption for World War II military service, Gibbon became professor of surgery at Jefferson. He began modifying his equipment to increase the time the subject could be safely kept on the machine.

In 1950, with a new heart-lung machine built by IBM, Dr. Gibbon and his co-workers began a series of experiments with dogs.

The new devices used a screen rather than a cylindrical oxygenator. In this case, the blood did not have to be whirled. Rather it spilled down a stainless steel screen in a thin film so that proper oxygenation could take place.

Again, Dr. Gibbon met with success. A dozen dogs were kept on the machine for more than an hour, and he was able to repair holes in the walls of the heart chambers.

The moment he had been working for with such dedicated devotion had finally arrived.

On that spring morning 10 years ago Dr. Gibbon got all the reward he needed. He told Cecelia's parents that she would live a normal life.

At 28, Cecelia is living and working in Philadelphia.

Today's Weather

(Reports furnished by U. S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 5:30 a.m. today!)

The low pressure system which Sunday deposited snow and rain over much of the northeast has moved off the coast to just south of Nova Scotia this morning.

A few light snow flurries across northeastern Maine earlier this morning are the only remaining effects felt within the United States from the storm.

Another low pressure system has formed over the Midwest and is following quickly on the heels of the previous one. This low is centered over Illinois and is spreading a wide area of light snow across Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois, into Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Light snow has reached as far south as the Appalachians of eastern Kentucky, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania by sunrise.

The only report of precipitation across the nation came from the coastal areas of the Pacific Northwest where light rain was falling.

Early morning temperatures were again on the cool side over the eastern two-thirds of the nation and near normal in the far west.

Among the colder temperatures reported near sunrise were minus 22 at Bemidji, Minn., and minus 16 at Bismarck, N.D. On the mild side, southern Florida was generally in the low 60s. Along the west coast, temperatures ranged from the 40s in the north to the low 50s in the south.

The law has been a target for rural legislators for years. They complain that sales prices on farms and ranches exceed fair values based upon productivity of the land. Also, they claim realty recording certificates have been used for purposes not originally intended, including computation of inheritance tax on similar properties.

The House also gave unanimous final approval to a bill continuing existence of the Legislature's Committee on Education Beyond the High School. The bill was sent to the Senate. The committee's legal existence will end Thursday unless the bill was passed.

D. C. Wash

By GWEN GIBSON

WASHINGTON — The Mona Lisa, having scored a triumph in the U.S.A. will soon be back in her quiet place of honor in the Louvre. But another proud product of Paris — the chic and beautiful wife of the French ambassador — will remain "on show" in the U.S. capital, representing France in her own distinct way.

Mme. Herve Alphand, a favorite of Francophile Jacqueline Kennedy, ranks as a leading New Frontier hostess with the innermost circles. The President and Mrs. Kennedy are frequent guests at the French Embassy. The ambassador and Mme. Alphand are frequent guests at the White House.

The social status of the Alphands will not be dimmed by the ambassador's recent undiplomatic behavior during the New York debut of the Mona Lisa. Alphand haughtily refused to be seated next to United Nations Secretary-General U Thant. He was, of course, reflecting the mood of his boss, Gen. Charles de Gaulle, who is scornful of the UN.

Such an incident is the type that Washington party lovers will dismiss with the flip of a white kid glove, while Alphand will remain famous for his wit and his wife.

French Embassy parties, a la Mme. Alphand, are less flamboyant than the social affairs for which hostesses Perle Mesta and Gwen Cafritz have been famous. The French ambassador's wife creates a sophisticated, easy atmosphere thru weeks of planning with the embassy's staff of 12 highly-trained servants. Once the guests arrive she relaxes and enjoys herself.

"An anxious hostess is no fun," she says.

She almost stole the scene from the First Lady on a recent public occasion — when Kennedy delivered his state of the union address before a joint session of Congress. The House chamber was packed with VIPs. The family gallery, reserved for members of the President's family and their friends, was so packed that Mme. Alphand, a member of Mrs. Kennedy's party, had to drape her 5 foot 8 inch, 135-pound figure on the steps. In this fetching pose, she turned as many heads as did Mrs. Kennedy.

Mme. Alphand keeps her perfect figure with Yoga exercises and brisk Sunday afternoon walks with the ambassador thru Washington parks. At cocktail parties she avoids the canapes.

Nicole Alphand and the ambassador were married three years ago, each for the second time. Alphand is a career diplomat, but Mme. Alphand is a newcomer to the profession.

One of her favorite Alphand jokes involves the ambassador's early days in the French Foreign Office. Alphand says a senior officer gave him this advice: "Young man, to be merely stupid is not sufficient to assure your success as a diplomat. You must also be polite." (This must have slipped Alphand's mind during the New York rhubarb.)

From a wealthy family, Mme. Alphand has never "worked" before her marriage to the French ambassador. She considers her current role "a full-time job."

Entertaining and being entertained are prerequisites of the diplomatic life and Mme. Alphand is constantly on display. Keeping her wardrobe in "working" condition becomes a time-consuming duty.

One of France's best saleswomen, Nicole Alphand wears only Parisienne designs. She serves only French wine and French cooking and she has convinced Alphand that he should drive only French cars. But she thinks the U.S. is "wonderful." One of her first projects when she arrived in this country was to plan a trip thru the West "to see as many states as possible."

Her social scedule at the embassy usually starts with lunch at 1:30 p.m. Mornings are "for myself" and for her household administrative duties. Occasionally lunch is a private affair with the ambassador but more often it's a function for 10 to 20 visiting dignitaries.

There is at least one party a night on the Alphand calendar and often more. One one recent busy night, the Alphands dropped in on five "must" receptions. Nonetheless, they usually manage to observe an 11 p.m. curfew.

Mme. Alphand has no formula for success. But she has expressed her own pattern for living, in this way: "I refuse to rush. I refuse to worry and I live for the present."

Two Men Booked Into County Jail Today

Two men, Lennox Caldwell, 26, and Harold Caldwell, 23, both of 409 E. Willamette St. were booked into county jail early this morning for investigation of possible damage to private property, the sheriff's office reported.

According to Deputy Sheriffs Bernard Barry and Bob Walters, Frank A. Smith of Bates Court, 2102 E. Platte Ave. was at the NCO Club at Peterson Field Sunday night and saw his wife with the Caldwells and another woman. Smith and his wife are separated.

He did not speak to her or the people she was with and returned to his motel unit. Sometime later the Caldwells along with Mrs. Smith went to the motel unit demanding Smith apologize for certain remarks he was alleged to have made to his wife at the club.

Smith slammed the door in their faces and Harold Caldwell is said to have kicked in the door causing $80 damage. The owner of the motel, George Bates, has said he will sign a complaint against the pair this morning.

Police Investigate Vandalism Acts

Police are investigating two acts of vandalism which occurred in the city over the weekend.

The windshield of a car belonging to Paul D. Kerbo, 911 W. Colorado Ave., was smashed sometime Saturday night. The car was parked near the Kerbo home. Damage was estimated at a total of $100.

Sunday, the tire on a car belonging to William G. Slater, 3430 Lafayette, was slashed. Damage was estimated at $15.

But the attackers, he said, "are under some obligation to put forward a solution of their own" to the growth-rate problem if they don't like his idea of cutting taxes by $10.2 billion during the next three years.

He also had sharp words for those who want lower taxes, provided they reap the biggest benefits.

"The prospects for tax reduction and economic growth must not be endangered by squabbles over who will benefit most," he asserted.

The ABA symposium was called to enable some 300 executives and analysts from public and private life to hear discussions of economic growth and possible ways of achieving it.

He was particularly biting in references to what he termed "heated talk about budget increases—partisan talk about swollen federal payrolls—exasperated talk about increasing the deficit—and, finally, rash talk about a crushing debt burden."

Kennedy said civilian budget expenditures are decreasing, the federal payroll is getting smaller in relation to the population, the deficit would be bigger than ever if inaction on taxes hastened a recession, and the national debt "is not only manageable but steadily declining" in relation to the size of the economy.

"I feel that I have lost one of the finest personal friends I have ever had," Henderson said. "Our friendship dates back to the fall of 1934 when we both started college at Colorado College, where we were both pledges to Phi Gamma Delta fraternity."

The city manager said Mr. Murray was so involved in numerous city projects that it will be difficult to move forward on some of them for awhile.

In addition to his own projects, Mr. Murray helped on many other city projects not directly connected with his department, the city manager said.

Mr. Murray was right in the middle of such things as the east-west expressway, the Fontanero Street underpass, the Pikes Peak summit house, remodeling of City Hall, storm drainage and storm drainage suits, the new police building, improvements at the municipally - operated Peterson Field, and many others.

"I was consulting with him or he was consulting with me on nearly everything that was going on in the city operation," Biery said.

The city manager said all the various city department heads connected with Mr. Murray had offered to help take up the slack left by the death of the public works director.

Mr. Murray was a virtual storehouse on information concerning city operations and generously contributed such information to other city employes and to anyone else who wanted it. "His work and his memory will stay with us for a long, long time," the mayor and the city manager said.

He said the Legion believes that a last resort, if all other measures fail, should be for the OAS to intervene directly with military force. If this is not possible, he said, the United States should act unilaterally.

Commenting on the Russian threats that any military action by America would bring Soviet retaliation, Powers said, "it's a calculated risk. Their announced goal is to bury us. . . .I don't believe they are ready."

He said America is far superior to Russia in military might and that "now is the time to draw the line against the Russians."

Mrs. Lida Quinn Dies; Services Thursday

Mrs. Lida S. Quinn, 322 E. Costilla St., died at 78 at a local hospital Friday, after a short illness. She was a member of Friendship Baptist Church and president of the BTU.

Mrs. Quinn was born in Montgomery County, Miss., March 30, 1884. She had been a resident of Colorado Springs since 1928. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Susie Perkins, and a son, Alpha Harrison, both of Colorado springs; seven brothers, Everett, John, Joe, Wade and Jay Brown, all of Colorado Springs; Ozzia Brown Eupora, Miss., and Jim Brown, Detroit, Mich.; a sister, Mrs. Ethel McClendon, Colorado Springs; two grandchildren, 10 great - grandchildren, and two great-great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at Friendship Baptist Church. The Rev. T. J. Marigna will officiate. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery. The Hunter Mortuary has charge of arrangements.

Telephone Taken From Area House

A house at 2215 N. Custer St. was broken into sometime over the weekend the sheriff's office said Sunday and three telephones stolen.

The house is a repossession and in the hands of the Western Federal Co. at 707 N. Nevada Ave. Deputy Sheriff Douglas Peterson said entry was gained thru a window which had been smashed with a large rock. One of the missing telephones was a wall model which had been ripped out. Nothing else appeared to be disturbed.

Nikita's Career Remains Hazardous on Tightrope

By LEON DENNEN

NEW YORK (NEA)—A decade after Stalin's death, Nikita Khrushchev is like a man balancing himself on a tightrope one end of which is held by his "friends" in Moscow and the other by his enemy, Red China's Mao Tse-tung.

The Soviet premier's sudden shifts between threats to "bury" the Free World and soft words of peaceful coexistence are more than a technique for throwing the West off balance. They reflect the heavy economic and political pressure on him inside Russia and in the Red world.

When Stalin died in March, 1953, Khrushchev stood modestly at the back of the group of mourners around the dictator's bier. Lavrenti Beria, powerful chief of the secret police, V. M. Molotov, Lenin's only surviving friend, and Georgi Malenkov, Stalin's right-hand man, stood closer to the coffin. Red protocol is strict on such occasions.

"It would have taken a wild guess in 1953 to pick the pudgy and self-effacing Khrushchev as future top man in the Kremlin who would one day degrade Stalin's memory in the ranks of International Communism. (Dennen forecast Khrushchev's ascendency for the first time in 1955—Ed.)

Khrushchev owes his entire career to Stalin. He was the tyrant's obedient tool for more than a quarter of a century.

"By lifting their hands against Comrade Stalin, they lifted their hands against the best that humanity possesses. For Stalin is hope; he is expectation; he is the beacon that guides all progressive mankind."

Thus Khrushchev raged in 1936 against the innocent victims of Stalin's great blood purges. He was among the first Red sycophants to call the tyrant a "genius."

Today Khrushchev is engaged in a feud with Mao Tse-tung whom he denounces as a "dogmatic Stalinist."

He makes common cause with the man Stalin hated—Yugoslavia's President Tito.

He encourages poets like Evgeni Evtushenko and former inmates of slave labor camps like Alexander Solzhenitsyn to write books about Stalin's crimes as long as they are careful to absolve Khrushchev himself of complicity.

When this writer first encountered Khrushchev at the 1955 Geneva Summit conference he was ostensibly a lowly member of the Russian delegation. Nikolai Bulganin was premier and the Soviet Union's top delegate. But it was the military hero, Marshal Georgi Zhukov, who was Russia's glamor boy at the Summit conference.

Khrushchev outfoxed them all in less than two years. He first shot Beria and then exiled Malenkov. He forced Bulganin, Molotov and Zhukov to retire into obscurity.

If it was Khrushchev's idea to make Russia a viable Communist society able to compete with "capitalist" America then he is a long way from success.

Forty - five years after Lenin banished God and free enterprise to create his collectivist society, Russia continues to be plagued by economic and political troubles.

Eight years ago Khrushchev promised the Russians that they would have as much meat per capita as "capitalist America in 1961." But meat is as scarce on the tables of ordinary Russians in 1963 as it was when the Soviet Premier made his promise.

Housing and consumer goods are woefully inadequate. Millions of families still live in one room, sharing kitchen and bathroom with neighbors.

Many a worker must still spend an entire month's earnings on a man's suit.

The perennial farm crisis mocks Khrushchev's promise "to beat America in the production of meat, milk and butter."

Last summer the Kremlin raised the price of meat and butter 30 per cent because Russia needed extra funds for the merchanization of agriculture. Khrushchev explained that he could not take the money out of heavy industry and the production of atomic weapons because that would weaken Russia "in the face of aggressive designs" by the United States.

But thousands of Russian workers in Siberia and Odessa rejected the choice of atomic missiles or butter. They quit their jobs in protest against low wages and impossible living conditions. This was the first time since the 1917 Revolution that the Kremlin was forced to acknowledge officially a mass revolt by the Soviet proletariat.

Reports of shortages and service breakdowns fill the daily Soviet press. They are matched only by the long line of consumers outside the shops.

The Russians, next to the United States, are the strongest military nation on earth. They can send man to conquer space and could create havoc with their atomic weapons.

But if the living standard of any society is measured by the ability of its citizens to obtain a reasonable amount of food, clothing, housing and other essential services then Russia is a failure 45 years after the Revolution.

Specialists on Soviet affairs agree that in the field of science and war technology Russia has an elite comparable, though hardly superior, to the United States.

But what about the segment of Soviet society which represents top Communist party bureaucracy—Russia's real rulers?

"Fraud, bribery, wastefulness and misappropriation of state resources must be stopped. Such acts unfortunately are widespread."

Treason, espionage, acts of terrorism and sabotage have long carried the death penalty in Russia. But in May, 1961, the Kremlin introduced capital punishment for such offenses as misappropriation of state property, forgery, assault on prison authorities and terrorization of other prisoners.

Two months later the Supreme Soviet passed a decree imposing the death penalty for illegal currency transactions. Present Soviet law provides the death penalty for more offenses than ever before in peacetime.

Nevertheless, in view of experts on Russia, things are better under Khrushchev than they were under Stalin 10 years ago.

There is no longer the same widespread terror. The secret police is still powerful, but it no longer plays such an appallingly important part in the lives of ordinary men and women. Most of the slave labor camps where millions of Russians languished under Stalin have been abolished by Khrushchev. Most—but not all.

Despite some "liberalization" Red dictatorship has not changed its basic nature. Russia continues to be ruled by the Communist oligarchy.

However, Khrushchev does not wield Stalin's absolute power. To stay at the helm in the Kremlin, he is constantly compelled to appease Russia's rising elite of scientists, engineers, technicians, writers and Red Army officers.

In foreign as in domestic policy, Khrushchev is a bolder gambler than Stalin was. He encourages poets like Evtushenko and writers like Ilya Ehrenburg to blow off steam in order to keep the dictatorship's lid from blowing off. In this, his methods are more subtle and humane than Stalin's. Besides, he can always clip the wings of his official "literary rebels" if they fly too far from the Party line.

Probably the greatest challenge to the Communist dictatorship are the hopes and aspirations of Russia's youth which never really knew the terror of Stalinism.

The Kremlin rulers are realizing belatedly that the policies of the Communist Party will have to undergo alterations to keep the younger generation from abandoning the Soviet system altogether. The primitive, backward and demagogic nature of Marxism—Leninism is becoming increasingly apparent to young Russian intellectuals.

Two recent poems by the controversial young Russian poet Robert Rozdzhestvensky embody the widespread expectation of Soviet youth of further liberalization in Russia.

In the young poet's view, the "reforms" Khrushchev introduced thus far do not represent a real change for the better. The poet writes:

"The whole world is still frozen in expectation. But now is the time to leave the Hall of Expectations and enter the Hall of Accomplishments."

Rozdzhestvensky implies that more profound changes in the Red dictatorship are a necessary condition for "Russia's growing strength."

The Soviet youth as a whole is not anti-Communist in a political sense. But the current attidues of the young Russians represent a potential danger for the Communist regime.

Many young people, Pravda complains, "have a capitalist out look on life." Their interest in Western culture is so great that many Soviet youths "are only too willing to leave the Soviet Union for the West."

Soviet scientists, it appears, are thinking in terms of a spiritual concept of the universe. Religion, despite years of Red persecution, shows signs of revival.

Then, worst of all, there is Khrushchev's bitter conflict with Mao Tse-tung which is destroying the monolithic structure of International Communism.

Quieter Hotel Nights Sought By Britishers

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Noise Abatement Society has announced a noise survey of the nation's hotels in an all-out campaign to assure guests of quiet nights.

"As things now stand," said a spokesman for the society, "a guest can book into (reserve a room in) some secluded seaside cove only to find he's let himself in for nights of bedlam and a nervous breakdown."

The society has asked the Automobile Association — which grades hotels annually in its handbooks—to start a quiet classification.

For instance, if a hotel has 10 quiet, or soundproof rooms, the AA handbook would point this out, saying q.b-10, meaning 10 quiet bedrooms.

The Automobile Association said it would give serious consideration to the society's campaign.

John Connell, secretary of the society, said the country's hotels would be asked to let acoustic experts measure the noise level in its edrooms.

The first reactions from London hotels was mixed.

A spokesman for one chain said:

"Soundproofing is possible only with double windows and air conditioning, but most people in this country don't like air conditioning. They like to open their windows and when you do that you get noise."

A spokesman for another chain said:

villages suspected of harboring Viet Cong were turning the population against the government.

U.S. diplomatic and high-ranki military officials, inculding military assistance command chief Gen. Paul D. Harkins, said to the best of their knowledge no such decision was under consideration.

Gen. Emmett (Rosie) O'Donnell, U.S. Air Force Pacific commander, indirectly denied persistent reports that many innocent civilians are being killed in air strikes against the Viet Cong.

O'Donnell said Vietnamese air force tactical fighters and bombers "have been able to locate positively and destroy targets, and I mean small fleeting targets, under difficult conditions."

Truck Stolen; Later Found In Ditch

A truck belonging to Adam Bosch of 1632 Calvert Ave., was stolen Saturday and found later in a ditch off Broadway Street.

Bosch told Deputy Sheriffs Bob Walters and Bernard Barry said he parked it on his storage lot at the Corner of Calvert Avenue and Broadway Street and that was the last time he saw it.

The right front fender of the right side of the vehicle had been damaged.

Gibbons Machine Opens Medical Door to Heart

By ALICIA HART

PHILADELPHIA (NEA)—They told the young surgeon it couldn't be done.

But on May 6, 1953, Dr. John H. Gibbon Jr. did the "impossible"—and 17 years of dogged research in the face of stiff medical skepticism were crowned with a success that has meant new life for thousands.

On that day they wheeled pretty 18-year-old Cecelia Bavolek into the operating room at The Jefferson Medical College Hospital in Philadelphia.

Cecelia was doomed to an early death unless something was done to correct an inborn defect in her heart—a mistake that nature sometimes makes in arranging the heart's openings, valves and chambers. Some 30,000 children are born every year with one or a combination of these congenital heart defects.

To save Cecelia, Dr. Gibbon would have to open her heart and repair the defect. Near the operating table stood a large rectangular apparatus strewn with cables and tubes. This machine would be Cecelia's heart and lungs during the operation.

Dr. Gibbon's heart-lung machine—the device which he had spent so much time and brilliant effort in developing—would enable him to operate on a dry and bloodless heart. A mechanical pump would send blood into Cecelia's unconscious body. An "oxygenator" would pour oxygen into the blood and remove wastes from the returning "used" or deoxygenated blood.

"I had to screw up my courage to do this operation," Dr. Gibbon reminisced 10 years later in his office at Jefferson where he heads the department of surgery.

"Our animal studies showed that we could keep dogs on the machine successfully for an hour without any major problems. But what about humans?

"We tried it on one other human patient before Cecelia. The child didn't live, but it wasn't the fault of the machine. We had made a faulty diagnosis which we discovered during surgery. The 1-year-old child weighed only 11 pounds and was in poor condition."

But Cecelia made it. And the door to a new era of heart surgery opened.

The story of how Cecelia's life was saved actually begins in 1931 when Dr. Gibbon was a Fellow at Harvard's Massachusetts General Hospital.

One day the young surgeon saw a woman die of a clot which choked off her pulmonary artery, blocking the flow of blood from her heart to her lungs.

"Her death stuck in my craw," recalls Dr. Gibbon. "If we had only had a way of by-passing her heart and lungs we could have cut into the pulmonary artery and removed that clot. We could have saved her, if . . . It was a big if."

That "if" became Dr. Gibbon's life work.

After three years of surgical work in Philadelphia, he returned in 1934 to Harvard Medical School on a year's research fellowship where he hoped to build a mechanical heart and lung.

He received little encouragement. Some of his advisers said his project smacked of science fiction. If he wanted to get publishable findings he should tackle some other project.

But Dr. Gibbon would not relent.

"I put a lot of home-made equipment together that year," Dr. Gibbon reflects, "and I spent some time with a professor of engineering at Harvard discussing methods of converting a stream of blood into a thin film and then back into a stream again."

While the blood was in a thin film, the red blood cells could pick up oxygen much as they do in the lungs. This had to be done without causing any turbulence or "bubbling" in the flow.

The bubbling phenomenon is known to deep sea divers. When they are brought to the surface too rapidly after a long period of submergence, bubbles form in the blood stream, causing excruciating pains known as the "bends."

Flow also had to be smooth enough so that the oxygen-bearing red blood cell would not be knocked around too violently in the machine.

Dr. Gibbon made his first try on cats, using a whirling cylindrical oxygenator to spread the blood in a thin film. In the beginning he found that part of the work of the animal's heart and lungs could be taken over by the machine. Finally one day he found he could cut off completely the flow of blood through the animal's own heart and lungs and maintain life with the mechanical heart and lungs.

"I remember that day very clearly," he says with a chuckle. "My wife was helping me with the research. After we had this success, I picked her up and danced her around the laboratory."

Returning to Philadelphia, Dr. Gibbon repeated his animal experiments at the University of Pennsylvania. These cats survived and thrived. In 1939 Dr. Gibbon delivered an historic paper on this work, astounding a meeting of chest surgeons. One surgeon in attendance said the report reminded him of Jules Verne's "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea."

Modern heart surgery began about this time. A year earlier another pioneer, Dr. Robert Cross at Children's Memorial Hospital in Boston, had succeeded in repairing a congenital defect affecting the blood vessels leading from the heart of a 5-year-old girl. The repair of this defect did not involve opening the heart, but it was the first successful attempt to correct an inborn defect.

There was still much for Dr. Gibbon to do. He had had his success with cats. But could he achieve such striking results with humans?

After a five-year interruption for World War II military service, Gibbon became professor of surgery at Jefferson. He began modifying his equipment to increase the time the subject could be safely kept on the machine.

In 1950, with a new heart-lung machine built by IBM, Dr. Gibbon and his co-workers began a series of experiments with dogs.

The new devices used a screen rather than a cylindrical oxygenator. In this case, the blood did not have to be whirled. Rather it spilled down a stainless steel screen in a thin film so that proper oxygenation could take place.

Again, Dr. Gibbon met with success. A dozen dogs were kept on the machine for more than an hour, and he was able to repair holes in the walls of the heart chambers.

The moment he had been working for with such dedicated devotion had finally arrived.

On that spring morning 10 years ago Dr. Gibbon got all the reward he needed. He told Cecelia's parents that she would live a normal life.

Today's Weather

(Reports furnished by U. S. Weather Bureau Station at Peterson Field as of 5:30 a.m. today!)

The low pressure system which Sunday deposited snow and rain over much of the northeast has moved off the coast to just south of Nova Scotia this morning.

A few light snow flurries across northeastern Maine earlier this morning are the only remaining effects felt within the United States from the storm.

Another low pressure system has formed over the Midwest and is following quickly on the heels of the previous one. This low is centered over Illinois and is spreading a wide area of light snow across Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois, into Indiana, Michigan and Ohio.

Light snow has reached as far south as the Appalachians of eastern Kentucky, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania by sunrise.

The only report of precipitation across the nation came from the coastal areas of the Pacific Northwest where light rain was falling.

Early morning temperatures were again on the cool side over the eastern two-thirds of the nation and near normal in the far west.

Among the colder temperatures reported near sunrise were minus 22 at Bemidji, Minn., and minus 16 at Bismarck, N.D. On the mild side, southern Florida was generally in the low 60s. Along the west coast, temperatures ranged from the 40s in the north to the low 50s in the south.

The law has been a target for rural legislators for years. They complain that sales prices on farms and ranches exceed fair values based upon productivity of the land. Also, they claim realty recording certificates have been used for purposes not originally intended, including computation of inheritance tax on similar properties.

The House also gave unanimous final approval to a bill continuing existence of the Legislature's Committee on Education Beyond the High School. The bill was sent to the Senate. The committee's legal existence will end Thursday unless the bill was passed.

D. C. Wash

By GWEN GIBSON

WASHINGTON — The Mona Lisa, having scored a triumph in the U.S.A. will soon be back in her quiet place of honor in the Louvre. But another proud product of Paris — the chic and beautiful wife of the French ambassador — will remain "on show" in the U.S. capital, representing France in her own distinct way.

Mme. Herve Alphand, a favorite of Francophile Jacqueline Kennedy, ranks as a leading New Frontier hostess with the innermost circles. The President and Mrs. Kennedy are frequent guests at the French Embassy. The ambassador and Mme. Alphand are frequent guests at the White House.

The social status of the Alphands will not be dimmed by the ambassador's recent undiplomatic behavior during the New York debut of the Mona Lisa. Alphand haughtily refused to be seated next to United Nations Secretary-General U Thant. He was, of course, reflecting the mood of his boss, Gen. Charles de Gaulle, who is scornful of the UN.

Such an incident is the type that Washington party lovers will dismiss with the flip of a white kid glove, while Alphand will remain famous for his wit and his wife.

French Embassy parties, a la Mme. Alphand, are less flamboyant than the social affairs for which hostesses Perle Mesta and Gwen Cafritz have been famous. The French ambassador's wife creates a sophisticated, easy atmosphere thru weeks of planning with the embassy's staff of 12 highly-trained servants. Once the guests arrive she relaxes and enjoys herself.

"An anxious hostess is no fun," she says.

She almost stole the scene from the First Lady on a recent public occasion — when Kennedy delivered his state of the union address before a joint session of Congress. The House chamber was packed with VIPs. The family gallery, reserved for members of the President's family and their friends, was so packed that Mme. Alphand, a member of Mrs. Kennedy's party, had to drape her 5 foot 8 inch, 135-pound figure on the steps. In this fetching pose, she turned as many heads as did Mrs. Kennedy.

Mme. Alphand keeps her perfect figure with Yoga exercises and brisk Sunday afternoon walks with the ambassador thru Washington parks. At cocktail parties she avoids the canapes.

Nicole Alphand and the ambassador were married three years ago, each for the second time. Alphand is a career diplomat, but Mme. Alphand is a newcomer to the profession.

One of her favorite Alphand jokes involves the ambassador's early days in the French Foreign Office. Alphand says a senior officer gave him this advice: "Young man, to be merely stupid is not sufficient to assure your success as a diplomat. You must also be polite." (This must have slipped Alphand's mind during the New York rhubarb.)

From a wealthy family, Mme. Alphand has never "worked" before her marriage to the French ambassador. She considers her current role "a full-time job."

Entertaining and being entertained are prerequisites of the diplomatic life and Mme. Alphand is constantly on display. Keeping her wardrobe in "working" condition becomes a time-consuming duty.

One of France's best saleswomen, Nicole Alphand wears only Parisienne designs. She serves only French wine and French cooking and she has convinced Alphand that he should drive only French cars. But she thinks the U.S. is "wonderful." One of her first projects when she arrived in this country was to plan a trip thru the West "to see as many states as possible."

Her social scedule at the embassy usually starts with lunch at 1:30 p.m. Mornings are "for myself" and for her household administrative duties. Occasionally lunch is a private affair with the ambassador but more often it's a function for 10 to 20 visiting dignitaries.

There is at least one party a night on the Alphand calendar and often more. One one recent busy night, the Alphands dropped in on five "must" receptions. Nonetheless, they usually manage to observe an 11 p.m. curfew.

Mme. Alphand has no formula for success. But she has expressed her own pattern for living, in this way: "I refuse to rush, I refuse to worry and I live for the present."

But the attackers, he said, "are under some obligation to put forward a solution of their own" to the growth-rate problem if they don't like his idea of cutting taxes by $10.2 billion during the next three years.

He also had sharp words for those who want lower taxes, provided they reap the biggest benefits.

"The prospects for tax reduction and economic growth must not be endangered by squabbles over who will benefit most," he asserted.

The ABA symposium was called to enable some 300 executives and analysts from public and private life to hear discussions of economic growth and possible ways of achieving it.

He was particularly biting in references to what he termed "heated talk about budget increases—partisan talk about swollen federal payrolls—exasperated talk about increasing the deficit—and, finally, rash talk about a crushing debt burden."

Kennedy said civilian budget expenditures are decreasing, the federal payroll is getting smaller in relation to the population, the deficit would be bigger than ever if inaction on taxes hastened a recession, and the national debt "is not only manageable but steadily declining" in relation to the size of the economy.

Two Men Booked Into County Jail Today

Two men, Lennox Caldwell, 26, and Harold Caldwell, 23, both of 409 E. Willamette St. were booked into county jail early this morning for investigation of possible damage to private property, the sheriff's office reported.

According to Deputy Sheriffs Bernard Barry and Bob Walters, Frank A. Smith of Bates Court, 2102 E. Platte Ave. was at the NCO Club at Peterson Field Sunday night and saw his wife with the Caldwells and another woman. Smith and his wife are separated.

He did not speak to her or the people she was with and returned to his motel unit. Sometime later the Caldwells along with Mrs. Smith went to the motel unit demanding Smith apologize for certain remarks he was alleged to have made to his wife at the club.

Smith slammed the door in their faces and Harold Caldwell is said to have kicked in the door causing $80 damage. The owner of the motel, George Bates, has said he will sign a complaint against the pair this morning.

Police Investigate Vandalism Acts

Police are investigating two acts of vandalism which occurred in the city over the weekend.

The windshield of a car belonging to Paul D. Kerbo, 911 W. Colorado Ave., was smashed sometime Saturday night. The car was parked near the Kerbo home. Damage was estimated at a total of $100.

Sunday, the tire on a car belonging to William G. Slater, 2430 Lafayette, was slashed. Damage was estimated at $15.

"In 50 or 100 or 300 years—we cannot say how many—nobody will be capable of arguing about capitalism as it is defended today," Castro said. "The same thing happened with feudalism. Today nobody argues about feudalism or defends it.

"What right do the imperialists have to try to destroy the work of a people whose only crime is to want to progress and advance?" he asked.

"They talk of alliance for progress but they have not been able to eliminate illiteracy or polio in any Latin American country. They have been unable to do anything."

Canada Softwood Limits Sought By Congressman

In letters to more than 100 members of Congress from lumber producing states, Horan asked support for a resolution calling on the President to impose a quota on softwood imports.

Citing economic ills of the domestic industry, Horan said, "It is imperative that the Congress take immediate bipartisan action to express its will in this situation."

"Each board foot of lumber imported means a producer in our country will produce and sell one less board foot in the domestic market," Horan said in remarks prepared for delivery on introduction of the resolution.

The resolution asked the President to impose, for three years, a quota equal to 6 per cent of the average quarterly domestic softwood consumption in the 1960-62 period.

Domestic lumbermen, who blame Canadian imports as a important factor in the industry's decline, were turned down by the tariff commission last week on their appeal for quota or tariff relief.

The commission held that although lumber imports have increased and the industry is in trouble, it could not recommend relief under the new trade act, because the import rise was not attributable "in major part" to trade-agreement concessions.

In view of that decision, it is unclear what action the President could take if Congress approves Horan's resolution.

Mortimer B. Doyle, executive vice president of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, said the decision made it clear that under present law, the commission has "virtually ceased to exist as an effective agency to which any beleaguered domestic industry or its employes can turn for relief."

"If the commission is to fulfill its function as a court of appeals from foreign raids on domestic markets," Doyle said, the Trade Act enacted last October must be amended.

Horan said a violent windstorm last fall knocked down an estimated 11.6 billion board feet of timber in the Northwest which must be harvested promptly to avoid insect and fire damage to standing timber.

When that timber hits the domestic market, a further decline in prices is expected, he said.

Bus Driver Blasted For Helping Dog

"Everybody out" he ordered. Then he drove the big double-decker bus with the mongrel as its only passenger to an animal clinic.

Ten of the 50 passengers forced to wait for another bus filed a complaint.

Abbott, who has been a city bus driver for 25 years, was called on the carpet for violation of a rule: "Bus drivers should never leave the authorized route."

Abbott is awaiting the ruling in his case.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

'Remember Cassie Orr'

There is a harmless little lady named Cassie Orr who lives in Valparaiso, Indiana. Cassie Orr has been trying to get into court to debate the constitutionality of the present income tax law.

More than a year ago, this little lady wrote us concerning her valiant efforts and we ran a news story on the matter in December of 1961.

Now we have another bit of information from her and she writes that she is "still at it," and hasn't yet been able to get herself into enough difficulty to bring on a court hearing.

Cassie Orr has stopped paying her income tax. And she has answered in her own vociferous tho not always legally precise way, each notice or summons or whatever she receives from the authorities. She refuses utterly to abide by their orders, summons or notices of default. She is in open defiance of the government and the government knows it. But the government has not actually taken step one against her, aside from ordering and threatening.

That is, the troops haven't yet arrived on the scene to seize the rebel and incarcerate her.

In her recent letter to us she says, among many other things, "Inform your readers that they are FREE — however, to prove it one must risk his life."

She advises that there is a $10,000 fine or imprisonment for five years if she is in error. Indeed, she sees it this way: "If mistaken, one, in refusing to obey these foul laws, commits treason. As for me, I prefer death to this treason against the U.S. and all that is good and true . . ."

Now, there you have the making of a lawsuit.

We can well understand why the government is loath to commence legal action against this tigress. Cassie Orr could become a martyr, and martyrs are uncomfortable thorns in the side of any advancing bureaucracy. Too often in history they become rallying points for rebellion. "Remember Nathan Hale"; "Remember the Alamo"; "Remember Pearl Harbor."

The government would not like to have another slogan to match those of the immediate past: "Remember Vivian Kellems"; "Remember J. Bracken Lee"; "Remember the Amish Farmers"; "Remember the Wheat Rebels"; "Remember Cassie Orr."

But the government will move against Cassie without a doubt. And we can take comfort in the fact that this movement is still restrained, hesitant, as tho reluctant.

There is no real reluctance. There is only a reluctance to be caught in an embarrassing position. . .an infinitely keen possibility when one so big as the state is ready to pounce on one so small as Cassie Orr.

For in the end, we should have in mind that even the government is subject to one final force that can and will check it if it is ever to be checked. That is the force of public opinion. Even politicians whose ambition knows no bounds, cannot proceed too far against public opinion. And so the tax people and the other agencies of violence in the state must move softly and gently for they must first win public approval of what they will want to do.

We should, perhaps, in this case awaken to the fact that a public plebiscite under the control of politicians, is not nearly so effective a tool at checking political aggression as is an informed and provoked people.

When the American people themselves are tired of letting the tax people control their lives, then such control will stop. Until that time, simply to re-elect new political office holders serves no final purpose other than to delude and confuse and to build false hopes.

Perhaps our problem would be nearer of solution if we had more Cassie Orrs. Certainly it is true that if any sizable segment of the populace decided not to pay its taxes at some particular moment or for some specified reason, then the taxes would not be paid, and the government would have to devise some other way of doing things.

In the end, it is public sanction of the force of government that makes it possible. Remove the sanction and you remove the force.

The Best

Can You Control Yourself

"Liberty. . .is not freedom to do as one likes. That is a denial of liberty and leads straight to its overthrow. A society in which men recognize no check upon their freedom soon becomes a society where freedom is the possession of only a savage few, as we have learned to our sorrow."

Would you agree with that statement? The great dictators from Tamerlane to Hitler agreed with it.

But what is wrong with it? Certainly, it wouldn't be a good thing if men went around committing every conceivable kind of crime, imposing their wills on others with no let or hindrance.

Certainly not. But let's take a good look at what was said in the first place: "Liberty. . .is not freedom to do as one likes." Would liberty then consist of doing what someone else wants you to do?

If you are controlled by another, can it be said that you have liberty? That is what the original quotation was supposed to have you believe.

The problem here is not whether men should be controlled or not controlled. The problem is whether a man should control himself or be controlled by another.

All energy, including the energy of man, operates under control. And nature has seen to it that each individual man is the manager, the controller of his own energy. No one else may rightfully control him.

But to assume, as the first statement assumes, that if some outsider doesn't control you, you will become one of the "savage few" is to completely deny the facts of the case.

When Columbus was free, he sailed the Atlantic to a new world. What if he had been controlled so he could not sail? The fact of his sailing . . .did that make him one of the savage few?

Lindbergh flew the Atlantic several centuries later when some wanted to control him so that he couldn't. Would you say that made Lindbergh one of the savage few?

Every inventor who has gone his own way in spite of remonstrance and pleading. . .are such members of the "savage few?"

You see, this is the problem. There is a well developed fear among people that if there isn't some threat of death or damnation hanging over you, you will act like a maniac and begin to destroy things or people.

The idea simply isn't borne out in history at all.

Men who were free, or nearly so, did the great work that advanced the human race. Men who were controlled so they could not injure anyone include such groups as the slaves who built the pyramids, the downtrodden masses of Europe and Asia who never got enough to eat.

True, they never were in a position to hurt anyone. But the men who are free to hurt others rarely, if ever, take advantage of that situation. They are too busy trying to make a profit and to help others to be bothered with destruction.

In a sense it all goes to the idea of the basic nature of man. Does man seek good or does he seek evil?

Examine yourself. You are, in this respect, not greatly different from others. Do you want to injure others?

You do not? Don't put yourself in some special category and imagine that everyone else is far worse than you are. The chances are very good that they react to things about the same way you do.

They don't want evil and neither do you. In fact, the truth is that all men want the GOOD. And this is exemplified in lands where some degree of freedom has existed. For in these lands a great deal of good has occurred. In other places not so free, there is far less that can be called "good."

Liberty is really your recognition that freedom is the right of everyone to do as he pleases. It is self-control and it is not the control over you by a government or a society. When you are free, you will try to do the right thing. When you are not free, what is right becomes less important.

Portland's Dailies Thrive Despite Three-Year-Old Strike

By RAY SCHRICK

PORTLAND, Ore. — More than three years ago, Portland's two daily newspapers were hit by a strike which kept all union-organized workers off the job.

Although sharp differences exist between this situation and the current New York City and Cleveland newspaper strikes — the Oregon papers continued publishing — it's interesting to look back at what happened in Portland and to examine the situation today. Three years have passed but the feelings of some participants still run high. The strike is still officially on and union workers still subscribing to the struck newspapers are "sowing the seeds for what could be a bitter harvest," according to a recent Portland Inter - Union Newspaper Committee leaflet. It notes the publishers "would like to see Portland become an open - shop city where workers are forced to scramble along without the economic benefits and job security of union contracts."

But the ordinary public couldn't care less. Today the Oregonian and the Oregon Journal are about as fat as ever, showing no visible effects of the strike. "The strike ended three years ago," comments one local resident.

In the dark before dawn on November 10, 1959, pickets of Local 48, International Stereotyper & Electrotypers Union appeared outside the newspapers. Although only 60 stereotypers were involved, their picket line was respected by over 800 members of six international unions.

The dispute centered on three key issues: How many men were needed to operate a new machine to cast metal plates from which the papers are printed, whether foremen had to be union members and whether stereotypers could take days off at their own convenience.

FEW UNION MEN RETURN

Subsequently, only about 5 per cent of the union workers — mainly reporters — have deserted the union cause and returned to work. However, the papers have been published daily with non-union crews without interruption.

On the first day of the strike, a strange looking newspaper appeared on Portland doorsteps. Across page one at the top appeared the combined nameplates of two dailies instead of one. The two, then separately owned papers, had moved into a single plant. The unusual 24-page hybrid printed the editorial pages of two different papers in a single edition and combined the comics of the former rivals. Later, the two papers resumed separate publication. However, over a year ago, S. I. Newhouse of New York City, through his Oregonian Publishing Co., bought the Journal for over $8 million and joined the two papers permanently. Possibly the strike encouraged the sale because of the Journal's losses in circulation and advertising. But union leaders maintain the Journal lost money before the strike so would have been sold anyway sooner or later.

How did the public get its newspapers without interruption? At first, about 800 non - union regular employes pitched in. News executives turned into reporters. Secretaries switched from typewriters to the keyboards of machines that punched the stories into perforated tape. The tape was fed into machines that automatically cast the stories into metal type. Although most of the automatic machines had been used before the strike, less manpower in some cases was required than under union rules. The metal type was put into page forms by advertising men and others normally not even allowed to touch type in a union printshop. Almost immediately, the hiring of untrained apprentices plus a nucleus of non-union printers began.

Eliminating featherbedding, plus consolidating the two dailies, has cut "about 30 per cent" of the pre - strike mechanical room manpower, according to square-jawed M. J. Frey, president of the Oregonian Publishing Co.

"Some newspaper unions want to be like the railway brotherhoods—freeze progress," charges one publisher spokesman. However, a newspaper union leader denies newspaper unions oppose automation and doubts the accuracy of the employer estimate on eliminating featherbedding.

However that may be, the success of continued non - union publication has been a major worry to the unions. Leaders feared the "Portland pattern," as it was called, might spread around the country. In fact, about two years later, the Milwaukee (Wisconsin) Journal successfully published 27 days without interruption when around 300 union workers of its total of 1,500 employes stayed off the job during a strike. However, no non - union outside employes were brought in. The union men went back to their jobs. Nevertheless, a Milwaukee Journal executive speculates, "Personally, I feel we got a better settlement than otherwise by continued publishing." In New York City, the publishers so far have not attempted a non - union operation. However, Oregonian publisher Frey maintains, "It could be done anywhere." He adds, "You should be prepared for trouble — all kinds."

Tempers and violence flared in the early days of the Portland strike on both sides of the picket line. Name - calling and fisticuffs ensued on several occasions. The climax came with the dynamiting one night of 10 parked trucks under contract for delivering the Oregonian. Subsequently, a former stereotyper union employe was convicted in connection with the truck dynamiting.

Even though both sides decried the use of violence, some citizens inevitably associated the single union man's explosive act with unionism itself. One Portlander sympathetic to the union cause recalls, "I didn't like reading about dynamited trucks."

UNION STRATEGY

What the unions basically tried in Portland to counter the publishers' strategy was simple: Prove by peaceful methods that it does not pay to operate "non-union."

The biggest single effort probably was helping give birth to a rival paper, the Portland Reporter, now a six - day - a - week tabloid. Unions cooperating with the Portland Inter - Union Newspaper Committee, formed by the newspaper unions, loaned the first $1,000 to start the paper as a weekly about three years ago. Various unions still own about 25 per cent of the outstanding common shares.

Mostly, unions got the shares for leasing, transporting and installing the plant equipment for the paper that began daily operation February 11, 1961. For example, Unitypo, Inc., a company controlled by the international Typographical Union, supplied a printing plant now installed in a remodeled former Wells - Fargo Co. stable.

Paradoxically, the unions and the new paper's publisher embarked on a campaign to divorce the Portland Reporter from its union parenthood. "It's an independent paper," emphasizes publisher Robert D. Webb, for 13 years sports desk editor of the Oregonian. The desire for "a crusading independent newspaper" came partly from the failure of many union - owned newspapers in the past.

A NATIONAL CAUSE

The Reporter to some extent became a national cause among liberals about the time it went daily. Among its stockholders, the Reporter claims Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., Democratic Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and, formerly, the late Eleanor Roosevelt. The largest individual personal shareholder is Mrs. Marshall Field, widow of the founder of the former Chicago Sun, according to publisher Webb.

Financially, the Reporter has operated at a loss since its inception. This is despite the fact 134 of its 283 employes still receive union strike benefits for working at the Reporter in lieu of cash salaries. Publisher Webb himself receives $79 a week in strike benefits. "How can I expect other people to sacrifice if I don't?" he asks.

As for S. I. Newhouse's Portland daily, the Oregonian has gained ads in the past year while the Journal reportedly has lost. The two have lost about one out of five daily paper customers compared to the pre - strike level —339,000 combined average daily copies for the year ended last October compared to 429,000 on the strike's eve in October 1959, based on the publisher's printed statement. Some of this is attributed to eliminating duplication in subscribers of the two papers, claims the publisher.

However, Mr. Frey concedes, "We aren't kidding ourselves. Some union people no longer subscribe to our paper."

The American Way

Our Gift To the Underdeveloped

By HARRY BROWNE

Soon we'll be hearing the "foreign aid" debates again. As always, we'll hear how our hard-earned tax money is helping the "emerging peoples" of the world.

Is it really helping these people? It stands to reason that if they desire a standard of living equal to ours, they need to duplicate the procedure that created our wealth.

SOURCE

Obviously, our wealth did not come from foreign handouts. It came instead from a key decision made by our forefathers — when they created an economic system in which the government played practically no role.

Unlike the age-old tradition of letting government plan and control the economy, they limited government to little more than a defender against foreign aggression. As to be expected, government quickly began to grow. But for 130 years, its growth was slow enough to prevent it from hindering the development of our economy.

It was in this climate of unprecedented freedom that individual Americans converted a hostile wilderness into a land of plenty. Without the fear of losing the fruits of their labors to a hungry government, they created history's highest standard of living.

This same experience could be duplicated anywhere in the world — provided the same climate of freedom is created. Unfortunately, the rulers of "emerging nations" have been able to establish the government-directed socialist and communist economics that give them total power. In these repressive circumstances, the people find it almost impossible to keep themselves fed, clothed, and housed.

NO REAL AID

To make matters worse, we provide "foreign aid" handouts to the socialist rulers. They first pay for their own palaces and yachts — and then pass on some of it to the people. This raises them to a bare subsistence level, shielding them from the truth that their economic system is inadequate. It gives them little incentive to try our way, and the cause of their problems — socialism — remains.

As long as we continue to pour billions and billions of dollars into these countries, there's little hope of ever improving conditions in any lasting way.

CRUEL DECEPTION

So — while helping the deterioration of our own once - free economy — "foreign aid" is also hurting its intended recipients. It is not "aid" — but rather a cruel deception. We lead these people to believe that their socialist rulers are doing what is best for them, when nothing could be further from the truth.

Let's end these handouts immediately. Then the facts of life might become evident to the "emerging peoples" — and they might try freedom. Let's encourage hungry people everywhere to understand what causes prosperity.

Then they too can lift themselves from the poverty and misery that have characterized the world since the beginning of recorded history.

The Cost Of Being Elected

By TOM L. GIBSON

The other day an old friend of mine was almost elected as the governor of his state. He is a right-winger. I wrote and told him of what it cost our candidate in this state to run for governor, which to me was an enormous sum.

He replied, "I would say that your estimate of cost to elect a government is just about right. We figure that it costs about two dollars per vote for campaign expenses. In other words, 100,000 votes would cost $200,000. This, of course, means for the primary plus the general election. In many instances it would run higher than this."

It is getting so that candidates for public office are sold to the public like merchandise and, if you expect to win, you first must have sufficient funds and then you must have someone with advertising experience who has the intelligence to spend this wisely.

It looks like in the coming presidential election the Kennedy empire will be against the Rockefeller billionaire. The Rockefellers have a little more money than the Kennedys so the chances are that Rockefeller could win if he meets the qualifications mentioned above.

Personally, I see very little difference between these two gentlemen. Both of them apparently believe in high taxes and in spending of the other fellow's money, but not their own, after election.

LIBERTY

If the true spark of religious and civil liberty be kindled, it will burn. Human agency cannot extinguish it. Like the earth's central fire, it may be smothered for a time; but at some time or other, in some place or other, the volcano will break out and flame up to heaven.

CITY COUNCILMEN

To the Editor:

Everyone is aware that Colorado Springs is mushrooming into a metropolis. But how many are giving serious thought to the attendant responsibilities — to the needs for expert planning and expert management?

Rapid growth, in the instance of our city, if nutured by wise, mature judgment, can be assimilated pridefully. On the other hand, and this is my fear, if we fail her she can develop as a malignancy, ugly and unwanted. So I say, if we wish our city to grow and be maintained in an attractive and desirable manner, then we had best all wake to our responsibilities. The future is in our hands, yours and mine, the electorate and the elected. Mutually we call the turns — and appearances indicate that we are not measuring up.

I shall confine myself to a single area of concern chiefly because of its timeliness and its importance. I refer to the current race for City Council. Many of the announced candidates are friends of mine so I beg that they hear me out with open minds. I respect each and in no wise question their sincerity, their integrity, their civic pride or their good intentions. I prefer to think of the issue as one of relativity. I believe many of the candidates will agree with my contention that there are residents who are better qualified and more ably endowed for the job. The welfare of our city demands that they be prevailed upon to accept the challenge.

In my opinion a number of these candidates would perform a greater service to the community if they utilized their efforts in the procurement and support of those with superior talents for the job at hand. It is not a small job. It should not be shouldered upon any but those who have established their eligibility and caliber by virtue of wide experience, administrative ability and civic-minded motives. I shall not be so brash as to name names. But what does it take to call them out? Isn't there a sufficient challenge in the magnitude, the potentiality, the need?

More About Irresponsibles

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, Ph.D.

We, my wife and I, listen to radio for a couple of hours out of each 24 because we discovered this to be a good way to keep a finger on the pulse of the country. Combine this with a quick perusal of one or two newspapers each day and you find enough material to write a dozen horror tales. Beneath the top level of news, however, we find odds and ends which add emphasis to our belief that irresponsibility is growing in direct relation to the increasing size and cost and power of government. Personally, I am not certain whether irresponsibility is the right word. An almost total public inability to think might illustrate the situation best.

Several mothers, whose children attend a grade school in Torrance, California, are worried about child molesters and the safety of their small children. They have a plan: One mother in each block will watch the progress of children going to and from school. The children will be told to notify the "block mother" of unusual circumstances and the homes of the "block mothers" will display a distinguishing sign in a window or on the front door. The moderator or reporter of the radio program which carried information about this plan, also mentioned the cooperation of the school officials, the PTA, teachers and the police.

I will not discuss the merit of the plan. I am concerned with the unthinking irresponsibility of the parents. In my opinion, it is the duty of parents to see that their children get to school safely and return home unmolested. Sure, this means getting dressed and either walking with the children to or close to the school or driving them to school. Certainly, attending to the safety of the children may interrupt house cleaning, ironing, washing, bridge or a favorite TV or radio program. The chore might consume as much as one hour out of each day during the school year. What is one hour of time compared with a life time of regret and remorse?

If each mother would assume the correct posture of a responsible parent, the teachers, school officials and the police would be relieved of just this much responsibility. Child molesters would completely disappear.

As we listened to the reporter interviewing a few of the mothers, we began to feel like visitors from outer space. When would a responsible parent speak up and explain that she was not worried about the safety of her offspring because she always made sure her children reached school and returned home safely? One of the police officers gave us the impression he was restraining himself from suggesting that if mothers were worried they should each escort their own child or their children to and from school.

I'm sure I can think of every argument against parents assuming their proper responsibility. None of them are valid in comparison to the safety of the children. Basically, I feel sure that each of the mothers we heard, will agree with my premise if she applies cold logic to the problem. On the other hand they will also imagine I know nothing about raising children or managing a household but my premise would remain valid even if I were a confirmed bachelor, which I am not.

We have, in this instance, another classic example of people who are willing to turn over their responsibilities to another person or to a group or to a group activity. The simple idea that each mother should assume responsibility for her own child or children seems to have been completely forgotten. I wonder if self-responsibility went out with hats and foot-long hat pins which provided ladies with handy weapons?

Yes, I know all about mothers who are working. It would be necessary for them to take a different approach to finding a solution for the problem but that responsibility should be theirs, it should not be the responsibility of a mother in the next block or the teachers or school officials or the police. I feel confident I could find a solution for each individual case if I were employed as a consultant for that purpose even if I had to escort the children myself. This reminds me that a few enterprising people might do well to approach this problem from the private enterprise point of view, employing older children to escort the younger kids to and from school for a small fee.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

Question Box

Question No. 149: "Is it possible to cut taxes and continue to spend more than receipts?"

The government or no one else can spend more than they take in. They have to take it in one way or another. If a private individual tries to spend more than he takes in, he won't last long, because it would be a crime for him to print up counterfeit money, as the government is really doing.

The government will not reduce taxes. It just shifts them, putting them on different people in a way that many people don't understand. It does this by increasing bank deposits by borrowing money from banks. The more it borrows from the banks, the more deposits the banks have. Then the government writes checks on their deposits and these checks go to the public and the public spends them and the counterfeit money goes back into the banks, not necessarily the same banks, but total bank deposits are increased.

And this is a way of taxing everybody who has a credit in the form of life insurance, a bond, a preferred stock, a fixed contract, or what is erroneously called Social Security. It is a way of hitting the pensioners, where a lot of them don't even know what is hitting them.

No, it is not possible to cut taxes and spend more than the government receives. They cannot spend what they do not receive, and they have to receive it one way or another. What they can't get by direct taxes they get indirectly, and the subtle way of getting indirect taxes is to make the dollar buy less. Thus, the merchants and the manufacturers always have to add the extra cost to their products, resulting in a man paying taxes on anything he buys. At present at least one-third of the cost of what anybody buys goes to the government. And the more they inflate the currency or bank deposits, the more these indirect taxes will hit everybody and hurt most those who have credit.

(The Gazette Telegraph will attempt to answer all questions, signed or unsigned, on what will improve the welfare of all mankind on the earth. Everyone should be interested in that, so send in your questions.)

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What are the national colors of Japan?

A—White, with red disk in center, from which spring 16 red rays to edge.

Q—How do monks differ from friars?

A—Monks ordinarily remain within their monasteries and do their work there, whereas the frair does his work in the world, wherever he is sent.

A—Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H.

There is a harmless little lady named Cassie Orr who lives in Valparaiso, Indiana. Cassie Orr has been trying to get into court to debate the constitutionality of the present income tax law.

More than a year ago, this little lady wrote us concerning her valiant efforts and we ran a news story on the matter in December of 1961.

Now we have another bit of information from her and she writes that she is "still at it," and hasn't yet been able to get herself into enough difficulty to bring on a court hearing.

Cassie Orr has stopped paying her income tax. And she has answered in her own vociferous tho not always legally precise way, each notice or summons or whatever she receives from the authorities. In her recent letter to us she says, among many other things, "Inform your readers that they are FREE — however, to prove it one must risk his life."

She advises that there is a $10,000 fine or imprisonment for five years if she is in error. Indeed, she sees it this way: "If mistaken, one, in refusing to obey these foul laws, commits treason. As for me, I prefer death to this treason against the U.S. and all that is good and true . . ."

Now, there you have the making of a lawsuit.

We can well understand why the government is loath to commence legal action against this tigress. Cassie Orr could become a martyr, and martyrs are uncomfortable thorns in the side of any advancing bureaucracy. Too often in history they become rallying points for rebellion. "Remember Nathan Hale"; "Remember the Alamo"; "Remember Pearl Harbor."

The government would not like to have another slogan to match those of the immediate past: "Remember Vivian Kellems"; "Remember J. Bracken Lee"; "Remember the Amish Farmers"; "Remember the Wheat Rebels"; "Remember Cassie Orr."

But the government will move against Cassie without a doubt. And we can take comfort in the fact that this movement is still restrained, hesitant, as tho reluctant.

There is no real reluctance. There is only a reluctance to be caught in an embarrassing position . . an infinitely keen possibility when one so big as the state is ready to pounce on one so small as Cassie Orr.

For in the end, we should have in mind that even the government is subject to one final force that can and will check it if it is ever to be checked. That is the force of public opinion. Even politicians whose ambition knows no bounds, cannot proceed too far against public opinion. And so the tax people and the other agencies of violence in the state must move softly and gently for they must first win public approval of what they will want to do.

We should, perhaps, in this case awaken to the fact that a public plebiscite under the control of politicians, is not nearly so effective a tool at checking political aggression as is an informed and provoked people.

When the American people themselves are tired of letting the tax people control their lives, then such control will stop. Until that time, simply to re-elect new political office holders serves no final purpose other than to delude and confuse and to build false hopes.

Perhaps our problem would be nearer of solution if we had more Cassie Orrs. Certainly it is true that if any sizable segment of the populace decided not to pay its taxes at some particular moment or for some specified reason, then the taxes would not be paid, and the government would have to devise some other way of doing things.

In the end, it is public sanction of the force of government that makes it possible. Remove the sanction and you remove the force.

The Best

Can You Control Yourself

"Liberty. . .is not freedom to do as one likes. That is a denial of liberty and leads straight to its overthrow. A society in which men recognize no check upon their freedom soon becomes a society where freedom is the possession of only a savage few, as we have learned to our sorrow."

Would you agree with that statement? The great dictators from Tamerlane to Hitler agreed with it.

But what is wrong with it? Certainly, it wouldn't be a good thing if men went around committing every conceivable kind of crime, imposing their wills on others with no let or hindrance.

Certainly not. But let's take a good look at what was said in the first place: "Liberty. . .is not freedom to do as one likes." Would liberty then consist of doing what someone else wants you to do?

If you are controlled by another, can it be said that you have liberty? That is what the original quotation was supposed to have you believe.

The problem here is not whether men should be controlled or not controlled. The problem is whether a man should control himself or be controlled by another.

All energy, including the energy of man, operates under control. And nature has seen to it that each individual man is the manager, the controller of his own energy. No one else may rightfully control him.

But to assume, as the first statement assumes, that if some outsider doesn't control you, you will become one of the "savage few" is to completely deny the facts of the case.

When Columbus was free, he sailed the Atlantic to a new world. What if he had been controlled so he could not sail? The fact of his sailing . . did that make him one of the savage few?

Lindbergh flew the Atlantic several centuries later when some wanted to control him so that he couldn't. Would you say that made Lindbergh one of the savage few?

Every inventor who has gone his own way in spite of remonstrance and pleading. . .are such members of the "savage few?"

You see, this is the problem. There is a well developed fear among people that if there isn't some threat of death or damnation hanging over you, you will act like a maniac and begin to destroy things or people.

The idea simply isn't borne out in history at all.

Men who were free, or nearly so, did the great work that advanced the human race. Men who were controlled so they could not injure anyone include such groups as the slaves who built the pyramids, the downtrodden masses of Europe and Asia who never got enough to eat.

True, they never were in a position to hurt anyone. But the men who are free to hurt others rarely, if ever, take advantage of that situation. They are too busy trying to make a profit and to help others to be bothered with destruction.

In a sense it all goes to the idea of the basic nature of man. Does man seek good or does he seek evil?

Examine yourself. You are, in this respect, not greatly different from others. Do you want to injure others?

You do not? Don't put yourself in some special category and imagine that everyone else is far worse than you are. The chances are very good that they react to things about the same way you do.

They don't want evil and neither do you. In fact, the truth is that all men want the GOOD. And this is exemplified in lands where some degree of freedom has existed. For in these lands a great deal of good has occurred. In other places not so free, there is far less that can be called "good."

Liberty is really your recognition that freedom is the right of everyone to do as he pleases. It is self-control and it is not the control over you by a government or a society. When you are free, you will try to do the right thing. When you are not free, what is right becomes less important.

Portland's Dailies Thrive Despite Three-Year-Old Strike

By RAY SCHRICK

PORTLAND, Ore. — More than three years ago, Portland's two daily newspapers were hit by a strike which kept all union-organized workers off the job.

Although sharp differences exist between this situation and the current New York City and Cleveland newspaper strikes — the Oregon papers continued publishing — it's interesting to look back at what happened in Portland and to examine the situation today. Three years have passed but the feelings of some participants still run high. The strike is still officially on and union workers still subscribing to the struck newspapers are "sowing the seeds for what could be a bitter harvest," according to a recent Portland Inter - Union Newspaper Committee leaflet. It notes the publishers "would like to see Portland become an open - shop city where workers are forced to scramble along without the economic benefits and job security of union contracts."

But the ordinary public couldn't care less. Today the Oregonian and the Oregon Journal are about as fat as ever, showing no visible effects of the strike. "The strike ended three years ago," comments one local resident.

In the dark before dawn on November 10, 1959, pickets of Local 48, International Stereotyper & Electrotypers Union appeared outside the newspapers. Although only 60 stereotypers were involved, their picket line was respected by over 800 members of six international unions.

The dispute centered on three key issues: How many men were needed to operate a new machine to cast metal plates from which the papers are printed, whether foremen had to be union members and whether stereotypers could take days off at their own convenience.

FEW UNION MEN RETURN

Subsequently, only about 5 per cent of the union workers — mainly reporters — have deserted the union cause and returned to work. However, the papers have been published daily with non-union crews without interruption.

On the first day of the strike, a strange looking newspaper appeared on Portland doorsteps. Across page one at the top appeared the combined nameplates of two dailies instead of one. The two, then separately owned papers, had moved into a single plant. The unusual 24-page hybrid printed the editorial pages of two different papers in a single edition and combined the comics of the former rivals. Later, the two papers resumed separate publication. However, over a year ago, S I. Newhouse of New York City, through his Oregonian Publishing Co., bought the Journal for over $8 million and joined the two papers permanently. Possibly the strike encouraged the sale because of the Journal's losses in circulation and advertising. But union leaders maintain the Journal lost money before the strike so would have been sold anyway sooner or later.

How did the public get its newspapers without interruption? At first, about 800 non - union regular employes pitched in. News executives turned into reporters. Secretaries switched from typewriters to the keyboards of machines that punched the stories into perforated tape. The tape was fed into machines that automatically cast the stories into metal type. Although most of the automatic machines had been used before the strike, less manpower in some cases was required than under union rules. The metal type was put into page forms by advertising men and others normally not even allowed to touch type in a union printshop. Almost immediately, the hiring of untrained apprentices plus a nucleus of non-union printers began.

Eliminating featherbedding, plus consolidating the two dailies, has cut "about 30 per cent" of the pre - strike mechanical room manpower, according to square-jawed M. J. Frey, president of the Oregonian Publishing Co.

"Some newspaper unions want to be like the railway brotherhoods—freeze progress," charges one publisher spokesman. However, a newspaper union leader denies newspaper unions oppose automation and doubts the accuracy of the employer estimate on eliminating featherbedding.

However that may be, the success of continued non - union publication has been a major worry to the unions. Leaders feared the "Portland pattern," as it was called, might spread around the country. In fact, about two years later, the Milwaukee (Wisconsin) Journal successfully published 27 days without interruption when around 300 union workers of its total of 1,500 employes stayed off the job during a strike. However, no non - union outside employes were brought in. The union men went back to their jobs. Nevertheless, a Milwaukee Journal executive speculates, "Personally, I feel we got a better settlement than otherwise by continued publishing." In New York City, the publishers so far have not attempted a non - union operation. However, Oregonian publisher Frey maintains, "It could be done anywhere." He adds, "You should be prepared for trouble — all kinds."

Tempers and violence flared in the early days of the Portland strike on both sides of the picket line. Name - calling and fisticuffs ensued on several occasions. The climax came with the dynamiting one night of 10 parked trucks under contract for delivering the Oregonian. Subsequently, a former stereotyper union employe was convicted in connection with the truck dynamiting.

Even though both sides decried the use of violence, some citizens inevitably associated the single union man's explosive act with unionism itself. One Portlander sympathetic to the union cause recalls, "I didn't like reading about dynamited trucks."

UNION STRATEGY

What the unions basically tried in Portland to counter the publishers' strategy was simple: Prove by peaceful methods that it does not pay to operate "non-union."

The biggest single effort probably was helping give birth to a rival paper, the Portland Reporter, now a six - day - a - week tabloid. Unions cooperating with the Portland Inter - Union Newspaper Committee, formed by the newspaper unions, loaned the first $1,000 to start the paper as a weekly about three years ago. Various unions still own about 25 per cent of the outstanding common shares.

Mostly, unions got the shares for leasing, transporting and installing the plant equipment for the paper that began daily operation February 11, 1961. For example, Unitypo, Inc., a company controlled by the International Typographical Union, supplied a printing plant now installed in a remodeled former Wells - Fargo Co. stable.

Paradoxically, the unions and the new paper's publisher embarked on a campaign to divorce the Portland Reporter from its union parenthood. "It's an independent paper," emphasizes publisher Robert D. Webb, for 13 years sports desk editor of the Oregonian. The desire for "a crusading independent newspaper" came partly from the failure of many union - owned newspapers in the past.

A NATIONAL CAUSE

The Reporter to some extent became a national cause among liberals about the time it went daily. Among its stockholders, the Reporter claims Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., Democratic Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and, formerly, the late Eleanor Roosevelt. The largest individual personal shareholder is Mrs. Marshall Field, widow of the founder of the former Chicago Sun, according to publisher Webb.

Financially, the Reporter has operated at a loss since its inception. This is despite the fact 134 of its 283 employes still receive union strike benefits for working at the Reporter in lieu of cash salaries. Publisher Webb himself receives $79 a week in strike benefits. "How can I expect other people to sacrifice if I don't?" he asks.

As for S. I. Newhouse's Portland daily, the Oregonian has gained ads in the past year while the Journal reportedly has lost. The two have lost about one out of five daily paper customers compared to the pre - strike level —339,000 combined average daily copies for the year ended last October compared to 429,000 on the strike's eve in October 1959, based on the publisher's printed statement. Some of this is attributed to eliminating duplication in subscribers of the two papers, claims the publisher.

However, Mr. Frey concedes, "We aren't kidding ourselves. Some union people no longer subscribe to our paper."

The American Way

By HARRY BROWNE

Soon we'll be hearing the "foreign aid" debates again. As always, we'll hear how our hard-earned tax money is helping the "emerging peoples" of the world.

Is it really helping these people? It stands to reason that if they desire a standard of living equal to ours, they need to duplicate the procedure that created our wealth.

SOURCE

Obviously, our wealth did not come from foreign handouts. It came instead from a key decision made by our forefathers — when they created an economic system in which the government played practically no role.

Unlike the age-old tradition of letting government plan and control the economy, they limited government to little more than a defender against foreign aggression. As to be expected, government quickly began to grow. But for 130 years, its growth was slow enough to prevent it from hindering the development of our economy.

It was in this climate of unprecedented freedom that individual Americans converted a hostile wilderness into a land of plenty. Without the fear of losing the fruits of their labors to a hungry government, they created history's highest standard of living.

This same experience could be duplicated anywhere in the world — provided the same climate of freedom is created. Unfortunately, the rulers of "emerging nations" have been able to establish the government-directed socialist and communist economics that give them total power. In these repressive circumstances, the people find it almost impossible to keep themselves fed, clothed, and housed.

NO REAL AID

To make matters worse, we provide "foreign aid" handouts to the socialist rulers. They first pay for their own palaces and yachts — and then pass on some of it to the people. This raises them to a bare subsistence level, shielding them from the truth that their economic system is inadequate. It gives them little incentive to try our way, and the cause of their problems — socialism — remains.

As long as we continue to pour billions and billions of dollars into these countries, there's little hope of ever improving conditions in any lasting way.

CRUEL DECEPTION

So — while helping the deterioration of our own once - free economy — "foreign aid" is also hurting its intended recipients. It is not "aid" — but rather a cruel deception. We lead these people to believe that their socialist rulers are doing what is best for them, when nothing could be further from the truth.

Let's end these handouts immediately. Then the facts of life might become evident to the "emerging peoples" — and they might try freedom. Let's encourage hungry people everywhere to understand what causes prosperity.

Then they too can lift themselves from the poverty and misery that have characterized the world since the beginning of recorded history.

The Cost Of Being Elected

By TOM L. GIBSON

The other day an old friend of mine was almost elected as the governor of his state. He is a right-winger. I wrote and told him of what it cost our candidate in this state to run for governor, which to me was an enormous sum.

He replied, "I would say that your estimate of cost to elect a government is just about right. We figure that it costs about two dollars per vote for campaign expenses. In other words, 100,000 votes would cost $200,000. This, of course, means for the primary plus the general election. In many instances it would run higher than this."

It is getting so that candidates for public office are sold to the public like merchandise and, if you expect to win, you first must have sufficient funds and then you must have someone with advertising experience who has the intelligence to spend this wisely.

It looks like in the coming presidential election the Kennedy empire will be against the Rockefeller billionaire. The Rockefellers have a little more money than the Kennedys so the chances are that Rockefeller could win if he meets the qualifications mentioned above.

Personally, I see very little difference between these two gentlemen. Both of them apparently believe in high taxes and in spending of the other fellow's money, but not their own, after election.

LIBERTY

If the true spark of religious and civil liberty be kindled, it will burn. Human agency cannot extinguish it. Like the earth's central fire, it may be smothered for a time, but at some time or other, in some place or other, the volcano will break out and flame up to heaven.

More About Irresponsibles

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, Ph.D.

We, my wife and I, listen to radio for a couple of hours out of each 24 because we discovered this to be a good way to keep a finger on the pulse of the country. Combine this with a quick perusal of one or two newspapers each day and you find enough material to write a dozen horror tales. Beneath the top level of news, however, we find odds and ends which add emphasis to our belief that irresponsibility is growing in direct relation to the increasing size and cost and power of government. Personally, I am not certain whether irresponsibility is the right word. An almost total public inability to think might illustrate the situation best.

Several mothers, whose children attend a grade school in Torrance, California, are worried about child molesters and the safety of their small children. They have a plan: One mother in each block will watch the progress of children going to and from school. The children will be told to notify the "block mother" of unusual circumstances and the homes of the "block mothers" will display a distinguishing sign in a window or on the front door. The moderator or reporter of the radio program which carried information about this plan, also mentioned the cooperation of the school officials, the PTA, teachers and the police.

I will not discuss the merit of the plan. I am concerned with the unthinking irresponsibility of the parents. In my opinion, it is the duty of parents to see that their children get to school safely and return home unmolested. Sure, this means getting dressed and either walking with the children to or close to the school or driving them to school. Certainly, attending to the safety of the children may interrupt house cleaning, ironing, washing, bridge or a favorite TV or radio program. The chore might consume as much as one hour out of each day during the school year. What is one hour of time compared with a life time of regret and remorse?

If each mother would assume the correct posture of a responsible parent, the teachers, school officials and the police would be relieved of just this much responsibility. Child molesters would completely disappear.

As we listened to the reporter interviewing a few of the mothers, we began to feel like visitors from outer space. When would a responsible parent speak up and explain that she was not worried about the safety of her offspring because she always made sure her children reached school and returned home safely? One of the police officers gave us the impression he was restraining himself from suggesting that if mothers were worried they should each escort their own child or their children to and from school.

I'm sure I can think of every argument against parents assuming their proper responsibility. None of them are valid in comparison to the safety of the children. Basically, I feel sure that each of the mothers we heard, will agree with my premise if she applies cold logic to the problem. On the other hand they will also imagine I know nothing about raising children or managing a household but my premise would remain valid even if I were a confirmed bachelor, which I am not.

We have, in this instance, another classic example of people who are willing to turn over their responsibilities to another person or to a group or to a group activity. The simple idea that each mother should assume responsibility for her own child or children seems to have been completely forgotten. I wonder if self-responsibility went out with hats and foot-long hat pins which provided ladies with handy weapons?

Yes, I know all about mothers who are working. It would be necessary for them to take a different approach to finding a solution for the problem but that responsibility should be theirs, it should not be the responsibility of a mother in the next block or the teachers or school officials or the police. I feel confident I could find a solution for each individual case if I were employed as a consultant for that purpose even if I had to escort the children myself. This reminds me that a few enterprising people might do well to approach this problem from the private enterprise point of view, employing older children to escort the younger kids to and from school for a small fee.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

CITY COUNCILMEN

To the Editor:

Everyone is aware that Colorado Springs is mushrooming into a metropolis. But how many are giving serious thought to the attendant responsibilities — to the needs for expert planning and expert management?

Rapid growth, in the instance of our city, if nutured by wise, mature judgment, can be assimilated pridefully. On the other hand, and this is my fear, if we fail her she can develop as a malignancy, ugly and unwanted. So I say, if we wish our city to grow and be maintained in an attractive and desirable manner, then we had best all wake to our responsibilities. The future is in our hands, yours and mine, the electorate and the elected. Mutually we call the turns — and appearances indicate that we are not measuring up.

I shall confine myself to a single area of concern chiefly because of its timeliness and its importance. I refer to the current race for City Council. Many of the announced candidates are friends of mine so I beg that they hear me out with open minds. I respect each and in no wise question their sincerity, their integrity, their civic pride or their good intentions. I prefer to think of the issue as one of relativity. I believe many of the candidates will agree with my contention that there are residents who are better qualified and more ably endowed for the job. The welfare of our city demands that they be prevailed upon to accept the challenge.

In my opinion a number of these candidates would perform a greater service to the community if they utilized their efforts in the procurement and support of those with superior talents for the job at hand. It is not a small job. It should not be shouldered upon any but those who have established their eligibility and caliber by virtue of wide experience, administrative ability and civic-minded motives. I shall not be so brash as to name names. But what does it take to call them out? Isn't there a sufficient challenge in the magnitude, the potentiality, the need?

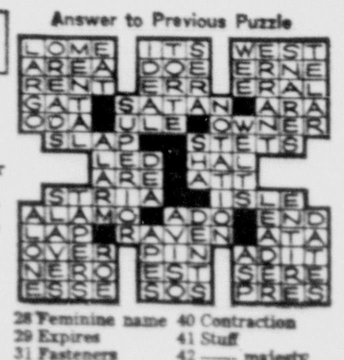
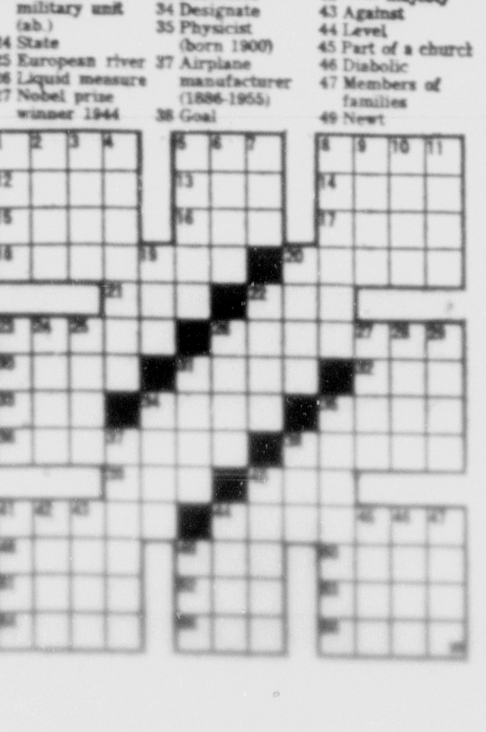
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 149: "Is it possible to cut taxes and continue to spend more than receipts?"

The government or no one else can spend more than they take in. They have to take it in one way or another. If a private individual tries to spend more than he takes in, he won't last long, because it would be a crime for him to print up counterfeit money, as the government is really doing.

The government will not reduce taxes. It just shifts them, putting them on different people in a way that many people don't understand. It does this by increasing bank deposits by borrowing money from banks. The more it borrows from the banks, the more deposits the banks have. Then the government writes checks on their deposits and these checks go to the public and the public spends them and the counterfeit money goes back into the banks, not necessarily the same banks, but total bank deposits are increased.

And this is a way of taxing everybody who has a credit in the form of life insurance, a bond, a preferred stock, a fixed contract, or what is erroneously called Social Security. It is a way of hitting the pensioners, where a lot of them don't even know what is hitting them.

No, it is not possible to cut taxes and spend more than the government receives. They cannot spend what they do not receive, and they have to receive it one way or another. What they can't get by direct taxes they get indirectly, and the subtle way of getting indirect taxes is to make the dollar buy less. Thus, the merchants and the manufacturers always have to add the extra cost to their products, resulting in a man paying taxes on anything he buys. At present at least one-third of the cost of what anybody buys goes to the government. And the more they inflate the currency or bank deposits, the more these indirect taxes will hit everybody and hurt most those who have credit.

(The Gazette Telegraph will attempt to answer all questions, signed or unsigned, on what will improve the welfare of all mankind on the earth. Everyone should be interested in that, so send in your questions.)

Play From Israel Slated on Broadway

Rights to "The License," by Ephraim Kishon, have been acquired by the Rialto manager, who plans to present it here next season. The comedy, about a girl who can't wed because her parents have lost their marriage license, set a long-run record of 400 performances in Tel Aviv.

Fewer Family Doctors Reported

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The traditional family doctor, with black bag and bedside manner, is disappearing from the American scene. The New Jersey Academy of General Practice says only about 10 per cent of today's medical school graduates choose to become family doctors, and fewer still have time for home visits because of the tremendous work load in their offices.

Mystery Still Remains About Reichstag Fire

By RUDOLF E. JOSTEN

BERLIN (AP)—It was a fantastic sight. The huge glass dome of the Reichstag building was aglow.

There was a sudden explosion and the glass cupola burst into fragments. Flames shot into the wintry sky. Sixty fire engines raced to the blaze. Hundreds of police and brown-shirted Nazi storm troopers encircled the area.

The time: about 10 p.m.—Feb. 27, 1933.

History books mark this as the incident the Nazis used to unleash their reign of terror that led finally to millions of dead in World War II.

Since that date, no German Parliament has sat in the Reichstag building. The Nazis used another building.

War wrought further damage. The old Reichstag has become a symbol of the cold war which divides Germany, prevents the formation of an all-German Parliament and keeps Berlin from regaining its status as capital of Germany.

Today, the Reichstag stands within yards of the Berlin wall built by the Communists who now occupy half the old capital and half of Germany.

That night the storm troopers refused to let me through although I showed my press pass. "I'm sure they set fire to it themselves," said a voice behind me as tens of thousands gathered to watch the blaze.

Black limousines drove up. I saw Adolf Hitler, propaganda chief Joseph Goebbels and Hermann Goering.

I struggled through the crowds back to the office to tell the world. As we worked all night, reports kept coming in that all leading Communists had been arrested.

As I walked home at dawn, police were swarming over the offices of the Socialist newspaper, Vorwaerts. I knew then the Nazis meant to weed out all opposition—no matter by what means.

Four weeks earlier Hitler had been appointed chancellor by the aging Reichspresident, Field Marshal Paul von Beneckendorf und Hindenburg.

The Nazis were not yet firmly established. In the elections in November 1932, they had lost two million votes. Their seats in the Reichstag had been cut from 230 to 196; the Communists were the biggest gainers.

With the next general election just one week away, the fire could not have been timed better for the Nazis. Hitler called it the signal for a nationwide Red uprising. Hundreds of Communists were thrown into jail, many beaten to death or shot.

Marinus van der Lubbe, a 24-year-old Dutch worker and independent Communist, was arrested inside the burning Reichstag. He told police he had no helpers in setting the fire. Within days, Ernst Torgler, parliamentary leader of the Communist party, and three Bulgarian Communists were arrested and charged with plotting the fire.

Van der Lubbe was sentenced to death by guillotining. Torgler and the three Bulgarians were acquitted for lack of evidence—courts had not yet been completely Nazified.

Scores of books have been written about the fire. Some contend that Van der Lubbe was a Nazi stooge.

Ex-Col. Gen. Franz Halder, former German army chief of staff, said after the war he heard Goering boast of having laid the fire.

Three years ago, Fritz Tobias, a German amateur historian who interrogated all survivors, theorized in a widely discussed book that Van der Lubbe acted alone and was a latter-day Guy Fawkes who wanted to alert the world to the Nazi danger.

While the Nazis blamed Communists for the fire, most historians believe the Nazis started it. I am convinced the fire was laid by the Nazis.

All the principals are dead. Dr. Ernst Oberfohren, alleged to have first exposed the Nazis' role in the fire, was found dead at his desk two months later.

Georg Bell, a Munich intelligence agent supposed to have known of ties between Van der Lubbe and the Nazis, was found dead in 1933 near the Austrian town of Kufstein.

Count Wolf Helldorf, the leading storm trooper in Berlin, was hanged as an anti-Hitler conspirator in 1944.

Goering, who committed suicide in the Nuernberg war crimes prison in 1946, insisted in his death cell that he had nothing to do with the fire.

Torgler, the former Communist leader who survived Nazi prisons, died last month. He said he was convinced Van der Lubbe was the sole arsonist.

One week after the fire, the Nazis polled 52 per cent of the popular vote in a general election. The Nazis were on their way to their "1,000-year Reich" which collapsed in the ruins of war in a little more than a decade.

For several years, a few workmen have slowly been restoring the Reichstag's bomb-pocked and shell-scarred exterior. The West German Parliament in Bonn ordered the work.

They work without much enthusiasm. As they climb the walls of the old building, they peer down on the concrete and barbed wire of the wall. They see police patrolling night and day to keep West and East Berliners apart.

"What's the use?" asked one old construction worker. "Germany will never be reunited, the Reichstag will never meet again."

Registration Hiked For Boulder Election

BOULDER (UPI)— Boulder election officials said here 11,717 city residents have registered to vote this week in a local option election on whether to allow liquor sales in Boulder. It was reported to be the largest registration since 1959. There are 13,000 eligible voters in the city. The proposed ordinance, another in a series on the same topic, would permit liquor to be sold in certain establishments such as hotels, but would prohibit taverns as such.

PLANS GUANTANAMO VISIT

The group included Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and Reps. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., Cornelius E. Gallagher, D-N.J., Ben Reifel, R-S.D., Ed Edmondson, D-Okla., John J. Flynt, D-Ga., and Carl Elliott, D-Ala.

Memphis State Integrates Without Trouble

By STEVE BLOCKMAN

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Only a two-hour drive separates Memphis State University from the neighboring University of Mississippi but the two schools are more than three years apart in their handling of the explosive racial question.

Eight Negro students were admitted quietly to Memphis State in the fall of 1959. Now about 130 Negroes stroll the halls and mingle in classrooms with white students.

It would be inaccurate to report no tension exists here, but what there is of it is mostly below the surface. And it is nothing compared with the rioting and violent demonstrations that marked the enrollment of Negro James Meredith at the University of Mississippi less than 100 miles away.

"I don't like Negroes going to school here but I can't do anything about it," was a typical comment from one of several Mississippi students at Memphis State. "All we can do is make the best of it."

Many white students appear indifferent to their Negro classmates. "They leave me alone and I leave them alone—I don't care whether they go to school here," said a pretty Memphis co-ed.

The two institutions are alike in many ways. Both are state-supported universities which draw many of their students from the race-conscious states of Mississippi and Arkansas. Both are proud of their educational programs and their fine football teams.

Why, then did the trouble erupt at the University of Mississippi and not at Memphis State?

One main reason, of course, is the strong stand taken by Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett and other state leaders against integration of the Mississippi school.

But a lot of credit for Memphis State's peaceful integration goes to its president, Dr. Cecil C. Humphreys, who was instrumental in working out the plan for accepting Negro students.

"We had an obligation to fulfill and we did it," said Humphreys, a native of western Tennessee. "The student body accepted integration as a preference to what could and did happen at Ole Miss.

"It's better to adjust than to destroy a learning atmosphere for thousands of qualified students."

Humphreys said Negroes are treated like any other students by both faculty and administration.

Last May, Luther McClellan, 21, became the first Negro to graduate from Memphis State, finishing with a C-plus average. He described the racial climate at the school as "completely relaxed."

"At first there was a lot of tension," said McClellan, one of the eight who broke the color barrier in 1959. "We were being tested. No one bothered us—they just ignored us. We like to think that we passed the test with our fellow students, and that the majority of them don't pay much attention to color now."

"Certainly there are some who do not speak to us. But generally the atmosphere is friendly. We mix and chat with our friends, both white and Negro."

One sign of the progress being made toward better relations was the recent selection of a Negro to serve on a Student Government Association freshman committee.

"We draw no color line in regard to elections or any other Student Government functions," said student body president Lanny Vaughan. "Negro students even dance—with members of their own race—at our school functions such as the Homecoming Dance and Freshman Hop."

Minor restrictions placed on Negro students when integration was in its infancy have been dropped. However, Negroes still are banned from taking part in intercollegiate athletics. Humphreys explained Memphis State's sports schedule includes Southern teams which would not play a school with Negro members on its squads.

Memphis State itself has no such policy and often competes against teams with Negro players, and Negro students from MSU cheer with typical college fervor at home football and basketball games.

No Negroes live on the bustling campus, located in a largely residential section east of downtown Memphis. But this is not unusual since the majority of the school's 7,540 students, Negro and white, are from Memphis and live at home.

Humphreys said Memphis State was not "looking for a medal for the manner in which we handled integration on our campus."

"We realize that the end result of education is a social instrument because it results in better understanding between races and produces more tolerance," he said.

"Memphis State has accepted integration, but the job is far from over."

QUESTION: Do you believe in 'total depravity'—that man has not a speck of goodness in him? I find it hard to believe that when I see so much good in people who make no claim to righteousness. —Y. O.

ANSWER: Total depravity is a theological expression which means that man is unable to save himself, is totally lost without God. The Bible says: "All we like sheep have, gone astray". Our state must have been pretty tragic or God would not have asked His Son to die on the cross to redeem us.

But, let's look at the positive side for a moment. In contrast to our 'total lostness', God offers total redemption. "The Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all." Over against our tendency to sin God places 'total forgiveness'. If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive our sins. If there is any goodness in us, it is not sufficient to save us—hence the Cross, our Hope.

H. C. Honey, an Englishman, some time ago took an old family heirloom to be cleaned of the accumulated dust and grime. When the dirt was removed, they were amazed to find that it was Thomas Gainsborough's "Blue Boy" which brought the highest price ever paid for a painting. It was worth a half million dollars. Hence, with our lives. Through faith in Christ the accumulated grime of our lives may be removed, and a life of infinite value revealed.

FIRE HITS COLLEGE

MACON, Ga. (UPI)—Fire destroyed several buildings of historic Wesleyan College and three nearby apartment buildings Sunday, forcing the removal of hundreds of persons.

More than 30 families were left homeless and four persons suffered minor injuries. Damage was estimated unofficially at more than $100,000.

Wesleyan College, constructed in 1837, was the first chartered women's college in the United States. A new campus has been constructed on the outskirts of Macon.

U.S. Rejects Ouster Demand by Haitians

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has rejected Haiti's demand that Marine Col. Robert Debs Heinl be removed as head of the U.S. naval mission there.

U.S. officials said here that Heinl is planning to stay until his tour of duty in Haiti ends March 1.

The Haitian government has informally called for his removal, but has declared him "persona non grata," officials said. The request for his transfer apparently was related to a letter he wrote last summer to the Haitian armed forces chief of staff concerning activities of Haiti's civilian militia.

Palmer Lake Area

By MARIAN McINTYRE McDONOUGH — GR 5-2323

Dr. M. Scott Carpenter spoke on National Monuments at a meeting of the PTA at the Lewis Palmer High School last Monday.

Mrs. Ed Hubbard entered St. Francis Hospital Monday. Others on the sick list are Alfred Kendrick and Mrs. Joe Sill. Mrs. Sill suffered a stroke recently and is recovering at her home. Herbert Huisman has been ill at his home for the past week.

The Town Council held a meeting Feb. 20 at the Palmer Lake Town Hall. The meeting was to consider a new traffic ordinance for the town which was established by the Colorado Highway Safety Council.

Mrs. Carl F. Duffner will enter the U. S. Air Force Academy Hospital Tuesday to prepare for surgery on Thursday. Her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Dobson, of Scott City, Kansas are expected Thursday and will stay at the Duffner home in Palmer Lake.

The Catholic Ladies of St. Peter's Church in Monument are having a covered dish supper on Shrove Tuesday. The event will be held in the Palmer Lake Town Hall.

Monument's Mayor G. F. McReynolds, motored to Lamar, last week to a meeting of the Plateau Natural Gas Company.

Play From Israel Slated on Broadway

Rights to "The License," by Ephraim Kishon, have been acquired by the Rialto manager, who plans to present it here next season. The comedy, about a girl who can't wed because her parents have lost their marriage license, set a long-run record of 400 performances in Tel Aviv.

Fewer Family Doctors Reported

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The traditional family doctor, with black bag and bedside manner, is disappearing from the American scene. The New Jersey Academy of General Practice says only about 10 per cent of today's medical school graduates choose to become family doctors, and fewer still have time for home visits because of the tremendous work load in their offices.

Mystery Still Remains About Reichstag Fire

By RUDOLF E. JOSTEN

BERLIN (AP)—It was a fantastic sight. The huge glass dome of the Reichstag building was aglow.

There was a sudden explosion and the glass cupola burst into fragments. Flames shot into the wintry sky. Sixty fire engines raced to the blaze. Hundreds of police and brown-shirted Nazi storm troopers encircled the area.

The time: about 10 p.m.—Feb. 27, 1933.

History books mark this as the incident the Nazis used to unleash their reign of terror that led finally to millions of dead in World War II.

Since that date, no German Parliament has sat in the Reichstag building. The Nazis used another building.

War wrought further damage. The old Reichstag has become a symbol of the cold war which divides Germany, prevents the formation of an all-German Parliament and keeps Berlin from regaining its status as capital of Germany.

QUESTION: Do you believe in 'total depravity'—that man has not a speck of goodness in him? I find it hard to believe that when I see so much good in people who make no claim to righteousness. —Y. O.

ANSWER: Total depravity is a theological expression which means that man is unable to save himself, is totally lost without God. The Bible says: "All we like sheep have, gone astray". Our state must have been pretty tragic or God would not have asked His Son to die on the cross to redeem us.

But, let's look at the positive side for a moment. In contrast to our 'total lostness', God offers total redemption. "The Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all." Over against our tendency to sin God places 'total forgiveness'. If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive our sins. If there is any goodness in us, it is not sufficient to save us—hence the Cross, our Hope.

H. C. Honey, an Englishman, some time ago took an old family heirloom to be cleaned of the accumulated dust and grime. When the dirt was removed, they were amazed to find that it was Thomas Gainsborough's "Blue Boy" which brought the highest price ever paid for a painting. It was worth a half million dollars. Hence, with our lives. Through faith in Christ the accumulated grime of our lives may be removed, and a life of infinite value revealed.

SEAMAN DEFECTS

GOTEBORG, Sweden (UPI)—A Goteborg newspaper said here a crewman of an East German trawler defected when his ship was forced to put in here because of ice floes along the Swedish west coast. A spokesman for the Goteborg police said the sailor had not yet requested political asylum.

FIRE HITS COLLEGE

MACON, Ga. (UPI)—Fire destroyed several buildings of historic Wesleyan College and three nearby apartment buildings Sunday, forcing the removal of hundreds of persons.

More than 30 families were left homeless and four persons suffered minor injuries. Damage was estimated unofficially at more than $100,000.

Wesleyan College, constructed in 1837, was the first chartered women's college in the United States. A new campus has been constructed on the outskirts of Macon.

U.S. Rejects Ouster Demand by Haitians

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has rejected Haiti's demand that Marine Col. Robert Debs Heinl be removed as head of the U.S. naval mission there.

U.S. officials said here that Heinl is planning to stay until his tour of duty in Haiti ends March 1.

The Haitian government has informally called for his removal, but has declared him "persona non grata," officials said. The request for his transfer apparently was related to a letter he wrote last summer to the Haitian armed forces chief of staff concerning activities of Haiti's civilian militia.

FILM 'STRAIT JACKET' TO STAR JOAN BLONDELL

HOLLYWOOD, — Hoorah and hallelujah! One of my favorite girls and an actres long neglected by our business. Joan Blondell, is coming into her own at last with a starring role in "Strait Jacket" which Producer Bill Castle says will give her a tour de force like the one Bette Davis had in "Baby Jane." The picture, being written by "Psycho" author Robert Bloch, rolls May 7, and Castle says it will put Joan back on top. Before starting, he'll travel to 12 countries from Australia to Sweden to open his "Candy Web" which features beauties from each nation.

You can call Eddie Albert many things, but slow he ain't. Morning after he inked the deal to take over George Scott's part as the maniac colonel in "Captain Newman, M. D.," he was on the set going crazy in a shower bath. Called me between fits to say he might not be as frightening as Scott, but he aimed to murder the part: "I'm well equipped. During the war I got battle happy myself after Tarawa."

Judy Garland and Sid Luft, suing each other in two states only a month ago, looked like honeymooners at Ernie's in San Francisco when they dropped in after a preview of Judy's spec with Robert Goulet. You girls can relax. It looks as tho Goulet and Carol Lawrence will soon be tying the knot. She arrives in Vegas today.

When Bill Orr, Jack Warner's son - in - law, asked, "In the event I have a better offer, would you mind if I took it?" Warner generously replied, "O. K., kid, I won't impede your progress." So Orr may be paddling his own canoe, now that Jack Webb's taken over TV at Warner's.

Director George Cukor is a large man at the University of Southern California. He finances an annual scholarship for an outstanding student in Cinema arts; was responsible for getting Ethel Barrymore's memorial collection for their library; and now has given the university a George Braque painting "Still Life" valued at $85,000.

Jane Fonda arrives Monday to get her clothes set for "Sunday in New York," glides back to the big town in April for eight days of shooting there; then returns here to finish the film. Meanwhile she's learning "Strange Interlude" which she'll do with Geraldine Page on stage.

The Rat Pack has had its heyday and looks to be replaced by a swinging group with George Hamilton and Jim Mitchum at the helm. George decided that if Hollywood's future rests with the kids, something must be done to get 'em in action: "They're all so introverted! What we need is a purpose. I'm planning a series of parties where the younger generation can get together socially and talk. We've been twisting alone too long." George was inspired by the closeness among English actors, whose prime interest is doing a good job and having fun along the way. Hamilton will represent us at the Argentina film festival in March.

"Delighted to read your remarks from Clifton Webb about Dr. Michael Debakey," writes George Healey from New Orleans. "Mike really is remarkable, a protege of Dr. Alton Ochsner, for many years professor of surgery at Tulane, who heads a clinic here bearing his name. Ochsner was credited with lifesaving surgery in behalf of Ben Hogan after the golfer was badly broken up in an auto accident."

Guess who's reading "The Mask of Fu Manchu" — Yul Brynner. Metro Producer Henry Weinstein's going to try it again. Last time around Boris Karloff did it in '32.

Irregular Market Drifts Lower; Trade Moderate

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market drifted irregularly lower early Monday afternoon in moderately active trading.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .3 at 257.6 with industrials down .7, rails down .1, and utilities up .1.

Key stocks lost fractions to about a point. Scattered stocks bucked the downtrend with gains of fractions to a point.

After the long Washington's Birthday weekend, the pace of trading revived somewhat but there was little incentive for buying.

President Kennedy's warning of another recession if Congress does not cut taxes seemed to have little effect, as this idea has been expressed repeatedly. Reports that steel demand is continuing to increase did not stimulate steel stocks which were generally lower.

Motors, rails, utilities, and tobaccos were mixed. The trend was lower among electrical equipments, chemicals, building materials, and nonferrous metals. Aerospace issues, mail order-retails, and oils were higher on balance.

Making a partial recovery, U.S. Smelting rebounded 4 points from a drop of 6 points Thursday and 11¾ Wednesday.

U. S. Steel was off about a point. Other leading steelmakers lost fractions.

Chrysler, down nearly a point, was the soft spot among motors. Ford and General Motors were steady. American Motors and Studebaker were about unchanged.

The Action of the House Armed Services Committee in voting to give the Administration an extra $364 million for development of the supersonic RS-70 bomber appeared to bolster aerospace stocks generally as well as North American Aviation, the prime contractor for RS-70. North American was steady. Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, and General Dynamics leaned to the upside. United Aircraft was off nearly a point.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were generally higher in moderate trading. Gulf & Western Gained more than a point. Among fractional gainers were General Plywood, Radiation Inc., Continental Vending, American International Aluminum, Butler's Shoe, Mead Johnson, and Shawinigan. Losers included Kratter, Massey - Ferguson, Technicolor, and Kawecki Chemical.

East German Guard Who Fled Revisits Bleak Wall

Editor's Note: Michal Marer, 22 - year - old Communist East German guard at the Berlin Wall, stationed just southwest of Berlin in Drewitz, on Christmas day 1961 climbed over rows of barbed wire fences and fled into West Berlin. One year later, Marer went back to the scene of his escape. He looked across the Wall into East Germany. And he talked with some of his former comrades.

BERLIN (AP) — Last time I stood at the concrete wall, women of the East German town of Babelsberg were queuing for an extra issue of salt herring.

It was close to New Year's Eve and everybody was happy to be able to prepare herring salad for New Year's Eve Celebrations.

The women had to stand for over an hour in bitterly cold weather. They all lived in the wall area.

"Sooner or later, these people will be evacuated," our officers had told us.

Now, over a year later, I'm on the other side of the wall. I am free, no longer a border guard of the East German Communists.

View from the West

Here, on the western side of the wall, they've set up a wooden podium from where you can look over the wall. I can see well into Stubenrauchstrasse. The wall is only six feet high here.

Stubenrauchstrasse looks deserted, more so than it looked when I was on guard duty there on the other side.

Two of my former comrades sit on a big piece of stone, daydreaming, just as I used to do after eight hours of wall duty when I could not stand on my own feet anymore.

A big sedan of the Tshaika type is parked on the street's right - hand curb.

Nearby stands a motor scooter, its front mud-guard dented. It belongs to a carpenter living in Stubenrauchstrasse. I remember that he smashed it into the heavy barrier across the street one night.

"It's high time the barrier was moved," the carpenter grumbled. Our officers called him "politically unreliable." My corporal consoled the man: "Things like that can happen — well, the barrier won't be here forever," he told the carpenter.

I leave the podium and walk along the wall. Then, I reach a stretch where the border is marked by several rows of barbed wire.

Guard He Knows

Two border guards carefully venture out of their hiding place behind a pile of wooden boards. They're violating regulations. I know, because their orders are to avoid being spotted from the West.

I know one of them. Reluctant and surprised, he's mumbling my name to the other guard. He looks at me with consternation. I return his stare. From his freckled face I can tell he's taken by surprise.

"Good day," I shout over.

The guards don't answer.

I recall that we had been told: should a "deserter" appear at the western side of the wall, his only intention would be to woo the border guards to the West.

The two guards are waiting for me to say something. My silence seems to throw them off balance.

They whisper. Then they disappear. They return moments later. Suddenly, the freckled one runs away. As he pants down the street, I can see him pull the receiver of a field telephone from his overcoat pocket. He plugs it in at a telegraph pole. Obviously, he is calling company headquarters for instruction.

I can hear him shout into the microphone.

"Marer," he said. Then "Yes, —yes,he returned.

Two minutes ago.—Yes comrade officer—very well, Sir."

The freckled guard seems eager and excited.

He comes back.

"Want to provoke us, don't you," he sneers. "Traitor," he says.

I return to Koenigsweg. The two guards follow my steps through field glasses, their Russian-made tommy guns slung over the shoulder.

Two-Way Conversation

"Come closer," he shouts, "Do not be afraid. My comrade is okay." He says okay in English.

"How are you?" he asks me.

"I'm all right," I say. "No complaints. How about you?"

"Unchanged," he replies. "Not all find an opportunity to flee, you know," he says resignedly. "We had quite some trouble after you fled. The entire company was interrogated. Many were transferred."

The two guards quickly resume their slow walk along the border. As we part, my friend mumbles, "Let's hope we'll meet again. Keep your fingers crossed."

I'm not running away. I'm waiting for the officers.

"Comrades," our political commissar once told us during the daily hour of Communist indoctrination we received. "Those who run away, who betray their 'fatherland' are coward and traitors. They are afraid of communism."

I stroll down the barbed wire fences toward the officers.

The fences run parallel to railroad tracks. I can see the officers coming down the embankment. They're crossing the tracks.

I recognize one officer, Lt. Bucher. He says something to a guard. Bucher and three other officers carry pistols.

We are barely 20 feet apart. "The zone of peace begins here. It runs for 10,00 kilometers from Berlin to the Pacific."

"What's going on here?" the driver, an elderly man, asks me. He noticed the East German officers with pistols drawn.

Blacksmith's Anvil Reported Missing

Someone stole a large iron blacksmith's anvil from Grady Whigham of 1731 N. Nevada Ave., the sheriff's office reported this weekend.

Whigham told Deputy Sheriff Charles Dietsche that the anvil was at his place on Rock Creek Mesa and that it was taken sometime during the past week.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The overall market pattern continues to point upward but on a highly selective basis, says Kenneth Ward of Hayden, Stone & Co.

While some further hestitation between 680 and 690 on the Dow-Jones industrials and misleading price corrections by individual stocks may occur, there are still no signs of an important overbought condition that would substantiate any change in the current uptrend, he finds.

Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. says it appears that the industrial division of the market is merely in an interim period of hesitation. He does not look for any wide open break, and thinks the market's refusal to back down on volume suggests there is excellent investment absorption in the price structure. Gilbert believes the trend will soon point upward again with good volume and excellent leadership.

Legislators Never Did Get Control Of Old Cog Road

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI)—When the man from Massachusetts buttonholed lawmakers in neighboring New Hampshire back in 1858, they thought he was crazy.

"Preposterous," they chorused.

The proposal of Sylvester Marsh was ridiculed and he was hooted from the State House but not before he got what he came for—a charter to build a railroad on mile-high Mount Washington.

Now Dartmouth College has sold what's known these days as the Cog Railway for a sum estimated in excess of $100,000. Marsh's role in the tourist attraction he hacked out of the mountain was all but forgotten when the papers changed hands.

But Marsh met the mountain and mastered it.

Few can boast this feat. It's believed the wind-whipped, 6,288-foot peak is responsible for the deaths of some 50 persons who tried to best it in various ways over the years.

Marsh was different.

He never forgot that day in 1858 when the legislators approved his charter jokingly and suggested an amendment which gave Marsh permission "to continue the railroad to the moon."

Undaunted, he invaded the waterfront deadfalls and teeming tenement areas of New York and Boston. He recruited an army of workers to help him wage his war on the mountain.

The snows of 11 years passed over the crag and Marsh's ragtag labor battalions.

Then on July 3, 1869, some three months after the continent of North America itself had been spanned by a railroad, a small engine chugged up the mountain at the amazing speed of four miles per hour.

Marsh—the dreamer—had won.

With the passage of time, however, he lost control of the mountain railway. The counterparts of those legislators who shrugged him off as a crackpot maneuvered again and again to gain control of the enterprise.

It never came to pass.

The sale by Dartmouth College, which was willed the property, was not to the state which had expressed an interest in it, but to Col. Arthur S. Teague who has managed the attraction since 1935.

In 1882, the greatest single year of railway building in the U.S., 11,569 miles of track were completed.

Pros Give Help In Improving Homes, Old, New

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The couple wanting professional help in fitting out its home hasn't far to look today. Builders, manufacturers, retail stores, all increasingly cater to the customer's own taste, or offer to upgrade it in his home, old or new.

In a number of localities the construction industry is going in for combinations. Builders, architects, interior decorators, furnishing suppliers are offering professional advice as a unit.

Some of the nation's best known stores have offered similar service for generations. But in the last decade this move has spread widely. One reason is that more customers demand it. Either their own taste is improving, or keeping up with the Joneses calls for this outside aid. Another reason is that many times as many persons now can afford such service as could at the end of World War II.

Perhaps thanks to this, prices of antiques have risen smartly. Some 14,000 dealers in them in the nation are doing a better than $450 million a year business. And for persons who want to floss up the home without permanent outlay, rental services deal in art, music records and tape recordings.

Upgrading has moved beyond the home into such fields as office furniture and decor and even to giving factory machinery and walls a more aesthetic appearance.

Department stores and quality shops have been in the forefront of the effort to raise taste—and to sell taste. Some of the stores that have worked that side of the street for many years include, to name just a few, Marshall Field in Chicago, Altman's and Lord & Taylor in New York, John Wanamaker in Philadelphia and the New York suburbs.

Bonwit Teller in New York organized a Consumer Advisory Board of eight women social leaders. Bamberger's in Newark, N.J., set up a Customer Advisory Committee on which club women served.

Rich's, Inc., in Atlanta, Lord & Taylor and Bloomingdale's in New York have conducted contests for architects. Macy's, John Wanamaker and H.S. Pogue in Cincinnati are among those constructing full-size homes of various types. Well-staffed speakers bureaus have been maintained by Bambergers, J.L. Hudson's in Detroit and L.S. Ayres in Indianapolis, among others.

A stable of interior decorators to find for customers what they want or to steer them toward what they may only vaguely know they want is found in many stores across the land. This service is growing. Leonard's in Fort Worth, Tex., enlarged its budget to train in-home consultants. J. C. Penney announced a new in-home selling and consulting service for its Orlando, Fla., store Hager's department store in Lancaster, Pa., stressed decorating skills in matching floor coverings to draperies, wallpaper and furniture.

Sears, Roebuck is employing designers to improve both its expensive and economical models of many types of goods, and has turned to merchandising works of art.

Retailers and manufacturers are spreading out ever further into cultural fields. The Dallas Symphony Orchestra played at the Dallas Market Center for buyers at the home furnishings market. In New York the National Design Center houses many exhibits of manufacturers and decorators putting on the soft sell for both home owners and industrial purchasing agents. Also in New York the I. Miller Shoe Co. displays both paintings and shoes at its spectacularly designed Fifth Avenue store.

Jersey Standard Oil this year is giving a soft sell over television in its Festival of Performing Arts, after successful showing in other years of the Play of the Week.

Irregular Market Drifts Lower; Trade Moderate

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market drifted irregularly lower early Monday afternoon in moderately active trading.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was off .3 at 257.6 with industrials down .7, rails down .1, and utilities up .1.

Key stocks lost fractions to about a point. Scattered stocks bucked the downtrend with gains of fractions to a point.

After the long Washington's Birthday weekend, the pace of trading revived somewhat but there was little incentive for buying.

President Kennedy's warning of another recession if Congress does not cut taxes seemed to have little effect, as this idea has been expressed repeatedly. Reports that steel demand is continuing to increase did not stimulate steel stocks which were generally lower.

Motors, rails, utilities, and tobaccos were mixed. The trend was lower among electrical equipments, chemicals, building materials, and nonferrous metals. Aerospace issues, mail order-retails, and oils were higher on balance.

Making a partial recovery, U.S. Smelting rebounded 4 points from a drop of 6 points Thursday and 11¾ Wednesday.

U. S. Steel was off about a point. Other leading steelmakers lost fractions.

Chrysler, down nearly a point, was the soft spot among motors. Ford and General Motors were steady. American Motors and Studebaker were about unchanged.

The Action of the House Armed Services Committee in voting to give the Administration an extra $364 million for development of the supersonic RS-70 bomber appeared to bolster aerospace stocks generally as well as North American Aviation, the prime contractor for RS-70. North American was steady. Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, and General Dynamics leaned to the upside. United Aircraft was off nearly a point.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were generally higher in moderate trading. Gulf & Western Gained more than a point. Among fractional gainers were General Plywood, Radiation Inc., Continental Vending, American International Aluminum, Butler's Shoe, Mead Johnson, and Shawinigan. Losers included Kratter, Massey - Ferguson, Technicolor, and Kawecki Chemical.

East German Guard Who Fled Revisits Bleak Wall

Editor's Note: Michal Marer, 22 - year - old Communist East German guard at the Berlin Wall, stationed just southwest of Berlin in Drewitz, on Christmas day 1961 climbed over rows of barbed wire fences and fled into West Berlin. One year later, Marer went back to the scene of his escape. He looked across the Wall into East Germany. And he talked with some of his former comrades.

By MICHAL MARER
Former East German border guard
Written for The Associated Press

BERLIN (AP) — Last time I stood at the concrete wall, women of the East German town of Babelsberg were queuing for an extra issue of salt herring.

It was close to New Year's Eve and everybody was happy to be able to prepare herring salad for New Year's Eve Celebrations.

The women had to stand for over an hour in bitterly cold weather. They all lived in the wall area.

"Sooner or later, these people will be evacuated," our officers had told us.

Now, over a year later, I'm on the other side of the wall. I am free, no longer a border guard of the East German Communists.

View from the West

Here, on the western side of the wall, they've set up a wooden podium from where you can look over the wall. I can see well into Stubenrauchstrasse. The wall is only six feet high here.

Stubenrauchstrasse looks deserted, more so than it looked when I was on guard duty there on the other side.

Two of my former comrades sit on a big piece of stone, daydreaming, just as I used to do after eight hours of wall duty when I could not stand on my own feet anymore.

A big sedan of the Tshaika type is parked on the street's right - hand curb.

Nearby stands a motor scooter, its front mud-guard dented. It belongs to a carpenter living in Stubenrauchstrasse. I remember that he smashed it into the heavy barrier across the street one night.

"It's high time the barrier was moved," the carpenter grumbled. Our officers called him "politically unreliable." My corporal consoled the man: "Things like that can happen — well, the barrier won't be here forever," he told the carpenter.

I leave the podium and walk along the wall. Then, I reach a stretch where the border is marked by several rows of barbed wire.

Guard He Knows

Two border guards carefully venture out of their hiding place behind a pile of wooden boards. They're violating regulations. I know, because their orders are to avoid being spotted from the West.

I know one of them. Reluctant and surprised, he's mumbling my name to the other guard. He looks at me with consternation. I return his stare. From his freckled face I can tell he's taken by surprise.

"Good day," I shout over.

The guards don't answer.

I recall that we had been told: should a "deserter" appear at the western side of the wall, his only intention would be to woo the border guards to the West.

The two guards are waiting for me to say something. My silence seems to throw them off balance.

They whisper. Then they disappear. They return moments later. Suddenly, the freckled one runs away. As he pants down the street, I can see him pull the receiver of a field telephone from his overcoat pocket. He plugs it in at a telegraph pole. Obviously, he is calling company headquarters for instruction.

I can hear him shout into the microphone.

"Marer," he said. Then "Yes, —yes,he returned.

Two minutes ago.—Yes comrade officer—very well, Sir."

The freckled guard seems eager and excited.

He comes back.

"Want to provoke us, don't you," he sneers. "Traitor," he says.

Two-Way Conversation

"Come closer," he shouts, "Do not be afraid. My comrade is okay." He says okay in English.

"How are you?" he asks me.

"I'm all right," I say. "No complaints. How about you?"

"Unchanged," he replies. "Not all find an opportunity to flee, you know," he says resignedly. "We had quite some trouble after you fled. The entire company was interrogated. Many were transferred."

The two guards quickly resume their slow walk along the border. As we part, my friend mumbles, "Let's hope we'll meet again. Keep your fingers crossed."

I'm not running away. I'm waiting for the officers.

"Comrades," our political commissar once told us during the daily hour of Communist indoctrination we received. "Those who run away, who betray their 'father-land' are coward and traitors. They are afraid of communism."

I stroll down the barbed wire fences toward the officers.

The fences run parallel to railroad tracks. I can see the officers coming down the embankment. They're crossing the tracks.

I recognize one officer, Lt. Bucher. He says something to a guard. Bucher and three other officers carry pistols.

We are barely 20 feet apart. "The zone of peace begins here. It runs for 10,00 kilometers from Berlin to the Pacific."

"What's going on here?" the driver, an elderly man, asks me. He noticed the East German officers with pistols drawn.

Blacksmith's Anvil Reported Missing

Someone stole a large iron blacksmith's anvil from Grady Whigham of 1731 N. Nevada Ave., the sheriff's office reported this weekend.

Whigham told Deputy Sheriff Charles Dietsche that the anvil was at his place on Rock Creek Mesa and that it was taken sometime during the past week.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The overall market pattern continues to point upward but on a highly selective basis, says Kenneth Ward of Hayden, Stone & Co.

While some further hestitation between 680 and 690 on the Dow-Jones industrials and misleading price corrections by individual stocks may occur, there are still no signs of an important overbought condition that would substantiate any change in the current uptrend, he finds.

Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. says it appears that the industrial division of the market is merely in an interim period of hesitation. He does not look for any wide open break, and thinks the market's refusal to back down on volume suggests there is excellent investment absorption in the price structure. Gilbert believes the trend will soon point upward again with good volume and excellent leadership.

Pros Give Help In Improving Homes, Old, New

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The couple wanting professional help in fitting out its home hasn't far to look today. Builders, manufacturers, retail stores, all increasingly cater to the customer's own taste, or offer to upgrade it in his home, old or new.

In a number of localities the construction industry is going in for combinations. Builders, architects, interior decorators, furnishing suppliers are offering professional advice as a unit.

Some of the nation's best known stores have offered similar service for generations. But in the last decade this move has spread widely. One reason is that more customers demand it. Either their own taste is improving, or keeping up with the Joneses calls for this outside aid. Another reason is that many times as many persons now can afford such service as could at the end of World War II.

Perhaps thanks to this, prices of antiques have risen smartly. Some 14,000 dealers in them in the nation are doing a better than $450 million a year business. And for persons who want to floss up the home without permanent outlay, rental services deal in art, music records and tape recordings.

Upgrading has moved beyond the home into such fields as office furniture and decor and even to giving factory machinery and walls a more aesthetic appearance.

Department stores and quality shops have been in the forefront of the effort to raise taste—and to sell taste. Some of the stores that have worked that side of the street for many years include, to name just a few, Marshall Field in Chicago, Altman's and Lord & Taylor in New York, John Wanamaker in Philadelphia and the New York suburbs.

Bonwit Teller in New York organized a Consumer Advisory Board of eight women social leaders. Bamberger's in Newark, N.J., set up a Customer Advisory Committee on which club women served.

Rich's, Inc., in Atlanta, Lord & Taylor and Bloomingdale's in New York have conducted contests for architects. Macy's, John Wanamaker and H.S. Pogue in Cincinnati are among those constructing full-size homes of various types. Well-staffed speakers bureaus have been maintained by Bambergers, J.L. Hudson's in Detroit and L.S. Ayres in Indianapolis, among others.

A stable of interior decorators to find for customers what they want or to steer them toward what they may only vaguely know they want is found in many stores across the land. This service is growing. Leonard's in Fort Worth, Tex., enlarged its budget to train in-home consultants. J. C. Penney announced a new in-home selling and consulting service for its Orlando, Fla., store. Hager's department store in Lancaster, Pa., stressed decorating skills in matching floor coverings to draperies, wallpaper and furniture.

Sears, Roebuck is employing designers to improve both its expensive and economical models of many types of goods, and has turned to merchandising works of art.

Retailers and manufacturers are spreading out ever further into cultural fields. The Dallas Symphony Orchestra played at the Dallas Market Center for buyers at the home furnishings market. In New York the National Design Center houses many exhibits of manufacturers and decorators putting on the soft sell for both home owners and industrial purchasing agents. Also in New York the I. Miller Shoe Co. displays both paintings and shoes at its spectacularly designed Fifth Avenue store.

Jersey Standard Oil this year is giving a soft sell over television in its Festival of Performing Arts, after successful showing in other years of the Play of the Week.

Legislators Never Did Get Control Of Old Cog Road

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI)—When the man from Massachusetts button-holed lawmakers in neighboring New Hampshire back in 1858, they thought he was crazy.

"Preposterous," they chorused.

The proposal of Sylvester Marsh was ridiculed and he was hooted from the State House but not before he got what he came for—a charter to build a railroad on mile-high Mount Washington.

Now Dartmouth College has sold what's known these days as the Cog Railway for a sum estimated in excess of $100,000. Marsh's role in the tourist attraction he hacked out of the mountain was all but forgotten when the papers changed hands.

But Marsh met the mountain and mastered it.

Few can boast this feat. It's believed the wind-whipped, 6,288-foot peak is responsible for the deaths of some 50 persons who tried to best it in various ways over the years.

Marsh was different.

He never forgot that day in 1858 when the legislators approved his charter jokingly and suggested an amendment which gave Marsh permission "to continue the railroad to the moon."

Undaunted, he invaded the waterfront deadfalls and teeming tenement areas of New York and Boston. He recruited an army of workers to help him wage his war on the mountain.

The snows of 11 years passed over the crag and Marsh's rag-tag labor battalions.

Then on July 3, 1869, some three months after the continent of North America itself had been spanned by a railroad, a small engine chugged up the mountain at the amazing speed of four miles per hour.

Marsh—the dreamer—had won.

With the passage of time, however, he lost control of the mountain railway. The counterparts of those legislators who shrugged him off as a crackpot maneuvered again and again to gain control of the enterprise.

It never came to pass.

The sale by Dartmouth College, which was willed the property, was not to the state which had expressed an interest in it, but to Col. Arthur S. Teague who has managed the attraction since 1935.

In 1882, the greatest single year of railway building in the U.S., 11,569 miles of track were completed.

Woman's Board Launches Trading Stamp Project

The Women's Board of St. Francis Hospital will have its much - needed tissue processing machine in the near future. The members started the project several months ago with an appeal for trading stamps.

This week they are happy to announce that 575 Gold Bond trading stamp books have been collected so far. The goal is 900 books. Mrs. J. A. Cagnoni, chairman of the project, expressed her gratitude for the books received to date.

"We still have a way to go," she said." The machine is needed here to diagnose skin tissue. Since the yuletide shopping is over, we appeal to those who are able to aid in our project. If everyone would share a few stamps we know we could complete this worthy project by April of this year."

The project seeks Gold Bond stamps, but other brand such as Mor Valu, Frontier, S and H Green and Top Value stamps are being accepted and traded for the Gold Bond. Stamps and certificates can be sent to St. Francis Hospital, 800 E. Pikes Peak ave or drop them in boxes marked for "Hospital" at any Safeway Stores in Colorado Springs; or to Mrs. J. A. Cagnoni, 1929 Pine Grove. Mark envelopes "Trading Stamp Project" to facilitate handling.

Three Varieties Offered In Girl Scout Cookie Sale

The Girl Scout Cookie Sale is now underway. Brownie, Intermediate and Senior Girl Scouts, their parents, troop committee members and other interested adults are all selling the three kinds of cookies that are available. The cookies are 50 cents a box. Varieties are a crunchy Scotch oats sandwich cookie with a butternut filling - a delicious chocolate mint and a delightful assortment of crisp Vanilla and Cinnamon wafers.

The Council portion of the profit from the sale will be used to expand the outdoor program for all girls. This includes Day Camping, Troop Camping and Established camping at Sky High Ranch. The troop bonus will be used for troop outdoor program such as cookouts, overnights, hikes and camping trips.

The Girl Scout organization believes it is desirable for Girl Scout Troops to have the experience of raising and spending money. The troop that sells the most cookies per capita in each of the four districts will be awarded a framed certificate from the Wagon Wheel Council. Competition will be high as each girl endeavors to help her troop become the winner.

Household Hints

United Press International

Don't wring permanently pleated skirts or dresses. They should be drip dried.

Use thick suds to clean the wringer rolls on your washing machine. Then rinse and wipe dry. Always release the tension when the rolls are not in use.

Give ranges or grapefruit a hot bath before peeling. Pour boiling water over them and leave for five minutes. This will remove the white undercoat under the skin.

Make your own olive oil. Put four large unstuffed olives in a cup of salad oil and keep the tightly covered jar in the refrigerator.

A garlic skin will come off easily if hot water is poured over the garlic bud.

To make ribbons look like new after washing, starch them with a diluted mixture of starch and wrap them around a clean drinking glass to dry.

Woman's Board Launches Trading Stamp Project

The Women's Board of St. Francis Hospital will have its much - needed tissue processing machine in the near future. The members started the project several months ago with an appeal for trading stamps.

This week they are happy to announce that 575 Gold Bond trading stamp books have been collected so far. The goal is 900 books. Mrs. J. A. Cagnoni, chairman of the project, expressed her gratitude for the books received to date.

"We still have a way to go," she said." The machine is needed here to diagnose skin tissue. Since the yuletide shopping is over, we appeal to those who are able to aid in our project. If everyone would share a few stamps we know we could complete this worthy project by April of this year."

The project seeks Gold Bond stamps, but other brand such as Mor Valu, Frontier, S and H Green and Top Value stamps are being accepted and traded for the Gold Bond. Stamps and certificates can be sent to St. Francis Hospital, 800 E. Pikes Peak ave or drop them in boxes marked for "Hospital" at any Safeway Stores in Colorado Springs; or to Mrs. J. A. Cagnoni, 1929 Pine Grove. Mark envelopes "Trading Stamp Project" to facilitate handling.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Memo to All Teenagers

DEAR ABBY: You hear a lot about teen-aged girls going wrong. Here's the other side of the story: I am a male, age 20, and I have a four-year-old son to support. I've never been married. I went with a nice 16-year-old girl and we thought we were in love. We got serious and before we knew it we had gone further than we had intended to. I would have married her but I was scared. And I didn't want to be tied down at the age of 16. Annie (not her real name) died nine months later in the delivery room. She left me and her parents with a ten-pound bundle. Her last wish was for me to take care of the baby. Annie was a wonderful girl. I have been running from the idea that I killed her ever since. I joined the Army to forget, but I can't. I haven't dated a girl since. I don't think I ever will. Annie's parents are raising the boy and I still haven't the courage to face them and ask them to forgive me. Abby, please keep preaching to teen - agers that playing with grown-up ideas is asking for trouble. —SINGLE FATHER

DEAR FATHER: For every girl who gets "in trouble," there is a boy. But seldom does one have the courage to step forward and take the blame. If your letter makes one boy or girl think twice —it's worth the space in this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY: Tell the woman who can't watch television during the day because her husband takes a tube out of the set before he goes to work in the mornings to take another tube out after he leaves. So when he comes home at night and replaces the tube he took out so "he" can watch television, it still won't work. —SANDY

DEAR SANDY: And what has she gained: Then neither of them will be able to watch it. You remind me of the man who drilled a hole in the bottom of the boat so the other guy would sink.

DEAR ABBY: Be fair and print this for "Bachelor Girl, Age 32." First of all, the assumption that widows and divorcees are "common retreads and warmed over has-beens," and that all 32-year-old bachelor girls are respectable, is the biggest bunch of baloney I've heard yet. My wife was a divorcee when we met. Because of her first experience in marriage she was far more understanding, tolerant and mature than any "single" girl I'd ever gone with. We have been happily married for 12 years and have three beautiful children. I wouldn't trade my wife's discarded fingernail clippings for all the "respectable," never - married, 32-year-old bachelor girls in the world.—MARRIED A DIVORCEE

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

The first time I washed my washable draw-drapes I was disappointed in the results. They lost their stiffness at the top and the pleats drooped. I had better luck the second time and here's how I did it:

After washing them I rolled them in a big bath towel and let them sit for about ten minutes. I removed them from the towel and rehung them. Now here is what does the trick . . .

Draw the drapes "closed." Pinch pleat together with your fingers and slip rust proof bobby pin over the "top" of each pleat.

Use rubber-tipped bobby pins to prevent any damage to the fabric and make sure there is no rust on the pins as this could mark the drapes.

While the drapes are still damp, spray them lightly and evenly with a spray starch starting at the top.

When you have sprayed the complete drape . . . spray across the top again! During the time the drapes are drying, run your hands down the edges of the drapes, holding them between your thumb and forefinger . . . exerting slight pressure. This prevents puckering.

When the drapes are completely dry remove the bobby pins, spread them out, and the pleats of your drapes are as good as new! —Sandy

Dear Heloise:

One of your readers sent in a way to crush cookies by stepping on them. May I submit "Georgia's method of making her stuffing"?

We like dry bread stuffing so I keep a paper bag in my bread drawer. I drop all of our leftover bread into this bag, which is kept "open" so the bread will dry out.

Put the dry bread in a brown paper bag, then in a plastic bag. Put on "flat" shoes, then lay both bags on the floor (with the bread in it) and put your left foot on the twisted opening to keep the crumbs inside. Then . . . stomp with the right foot!

Dump into a large bowl, run your hand through the bread crumbs, and take out any large pieces. Put them back into the bag with more bread until you have enough bread crumbs to make your stuffing. —Georgia Kasum

Speakeasy For Sausage

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sausage speakeasies and bootleggers sprang up during the reign of Roman emperor Constantine in the early days of the Chrisfian church.

The American Meat Institute says Constantine had banned sausages at church request because they were used in pagan temple rituals. They also were hawked in the streets for the holidays of Luperculus, the goat god, and Floriana, the flower goddess.

Sticky Stuff Said to Hold World Together

Robert J. Leander, a man who makes his living in adhesives, says the burgeoning tape business has long since grown out of the confines of the home.

"A large part of the tape business today really is out of this world," he said in an interview. He cited use of exotic tapes on the satellite launching pads at Cape Canaveral as one example.

Withstanding short - term heat of up to five-thousand degrees, the tape rides along with missiles and jet aircraft.

Down to earth, the sticky tapes have found a myriad of applications up to and including patching and holding together a cracked auto windshield.

Leander, president of Mystick Adhesive Products Inc., described how development of tapes for the military leads to better tapes for use on the homefront.

During World War II, for example, the tape engineer came up with a cloth-backed water-roof tape to protect military hardware against the elements.

The tapes, postwar, were put to multiple uses in homes.

More recently, tape scientists have successfully utilized such test-tube products as mylar, telflon and plastics to produce space age tapes capable of withstanding both high and low temperature extremes.

In time, he predicted, these, too, will find a purpose on the homefront.

Memo to All Teenagers

DEAR ABBY: You hear a lot about teen-aged girls going wrong. Here's the other side of the story: I am a male, age 20, and I have a four-year-old son to support. I've never been married. I went with a nice 16-year-old girl and we thought we were in love. We got serious and before we knew it we had gone further than we had intended to. I would have married her but I was scared. And I didn't want to be tied down at the age of 16. Annie (not her real name) died nine months later in the delivery room. She left me and her parents with a ten-pound bundle. Safer Football Player Bench Is Invented

DALLAS (UPI)—As a former star lineman on the Auburn University football team, G. W. Clapp of Dallas is vitally interested in making and keeping the game as safe as possible.

But while most others working on football safety are concerned Clapp, a technical artist with Ling-Temco-Vought, Inc., is working on something different.

The injury set Clapp thinking about a design project for a class in Auburn's school of Architecture and the Arts.

He came up with a new style players bench, radical in design and construction.

The bench is made of aluminum, designed to slide away easily if hit by a player. Curves and pads eliminate dangerous sharp corners.

The finished bench weighs only 27 pounds, compared to 120 pounds for ordinary wooden benches. It seats the same number of players. Structurally, it is as strong or stronger than the wooden bench.

The bench frame is collapsible and the entire setup can be stored in 20 per cent of the space required for wooden benches.

The seat and backrest padding—all interchangable—is attached to the aluminum frame to allow greatest blood circulation among the players sitting on the bench.

The design won an aluminum company (Alcoa) design competition, and Clapp now has high hopes for successful marketing of the bench.

But Clapp says he is primarily interested in one thing:

'Virus Tennis' Is Explained by UPI Humorist

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This year my family has managed to make the long winter days and nights seem longer by playing a little game that we call "virus tennis."

The fun began several weeks ago when my older daughter brought home a matched set of viruses that she had picked up in school.

"Catch, mother," she called, tossing one to my wife, who lobbed it on to me. I gave it a backhand spin that my younger daughter took on the first bounce and returned with a forehand drive to her sister.

Almost before we knew it, we were playing regularly.

At first, we were unable to keep more than one virus in the air at one time.

But as the winter progressed, we were batting around several different viruses simultaneously.

As our form improved, we switched from "singles" to "doubles". That is, rather than have just one player in bed with a virus, we had two.

The youngest member of the household, being only a year old, was too small to play, so we let him be the "virus boy." This is the equivalent of a "ball boy" in lawn tennis.

He would chase the viruses the rest of us had missed and bring them back to us.

I understand the game has enjoyed wide popularity, but in case it hasn't caught on yet in your area, here's the way it is played:

One player is called the "server." He tosses a virus into the air and propels it by means of a cough or sneeze toward the second player, who is called the "receiver."

To be a valid serve, the virus must land in the receiver's upper respiratory tract. When that happens on the first serve, it is called an "ace." If it misses, it is called a "fault," and the server must serve again.

Scoring systems vary, but in general the following rules are used: One point for a runny nose, two points for an earache, three points for a sore throat and four points for a temperature of 100 degrees or more.

Bonus points are given if the receiver is (1) bed-ridden for at least 24 hours, and-or (2) calls a doctor. Players who take flu shots before the season opens have a 50-point handicap.

My oldest daughter is the leading scorer in our house, but she has an advantage over the rest of us. She plays a lot at school.

Five states—Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska, Pennsylvania and South Dakota — account for more than 36 per cent of all the school systems in the nation.

Women Are More Alert To Cancer, Study Reveals

"A nagging wife may save your life." This advice has lately been sounded to men thruout the land by the American Cancer Society for an extra - special reason.

A study it made has disclosed that women are more alert to the menace of cancer than men. And in many instances wives have prodded procrastinating husbands until they had an essential physical examination. Thus the presence of cancer was revealed in time for them to have effective treatment.

"Since 1949 more men than women have been dying of cancer," Dr. Robert F. Dillon, director of public education of the El Paso County Unit of the American Cancer Society explained today, "and in recent years the death rate amoung women has been declining. More than 10,000 women are being saved from death by cancer each year who would have died of that disease a decade ago.

Saving those lives has been the result of better methods of detection and treatment, plus a growing year round educational effort by the American Cancer Society and its 1,000,000 volunteers. And American Women themselves have made a large contribution to this victory by their increasing response to self-protective measures against cancer.

"Breast cancer is a case in point. It is almost exclusively a woman's disease, the second most common type of cancer affecting women. The incidence of breast cancer increases raipdly after age 35, but it can strike at any time.

Some 50,000 women a year develop that form of cancer, and it claims about 20,000 lives annually. Yet physicians have been tragically aware that half of such victims were lost needlessly.

They say that the cure rate could be doubled merely by early detection."

Nearly always, Dr. Dillon continued, breast cancer starts as an easy - to - reach tumor, a growth that often can be cured if treated before it has begun to spread. So such cases should not be regarded as hopeless.

The problem confronting the medical fraternity a few years ago was to find some means of helping women to recognize a tell tale lump in either breast at the earliest possible moment.

That problem was solved when doctors developed the idea of breast self - examination, and thus gave women personal responsibility for early detection of breast cancer.

"Thru this easily learned technique," Dr. Dillon added, "a breast - lump even as small as a pea can be detected quickly. Usually the smaller a malginant lump when found, the greater the chance of cure.

But the presence of a breast-lump by no means indicates cancer. Most breast growths are benign. However, diagnosis is a doctor's province, and he alone can make sure whether a lump spells cancer or not.

"Any woman can readily learn the technique of breast self-examination. That method has been made especially easy to understand thru a film entitled 'Breast Self - Examination,' produced jointly by the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute of the U.S. Public Health Service.

"In just fifteen minutes, it shows a woman how to act as a police force of one for her own protection. In the last four years more than 5,000,000 women have won the security and peace of mind that this film offers against breast cancer."

The American Cancer Society Unit here is arranging free local showing, the times and places of which will shortly be announced.

Three Accident Victims in Good Condition

Three persons are listed in fairly good condition today at St. Francis Hospital where they were taken Saturday with injuries received in a head - on collision of two cars on West Busch Street.

Bobby L. Stutzman, 24, 409 E. Jefferson St., crawled several hundred feet with a broken ankle and other injuries to get help for the others injured in the early morning crash. Stuzman's other injuries include bruises of the eye and leg and cuts of the lip and right leg.

Also injured were Donald E. Cubbage, 34, 2529 W. Busch St., driver of the other car involved, and his wife, Mrs. Claire Cubbage, 42.

Cubbage received a broken right wrist and a broken leg, cuts and brusies of the lips and chest injuries. His wife is being treated for a broken left arm, cuts and brusises of the left leg and injuries to the back and chest.

Both cars in the accident which happened at 12:15 a.m. were declared total losses, Patrolman Neal J. Stratton, investigating officer, said.

Stratton issued a ticket for driving on the wrong side of the road to Cubbage who was driving a 1960 model car. Stutzman was driving a 1956 model automobile.

The accident was reported by Harry Honeycutt, 1422 Langmeyer St., who told police he was asleep when he heard a banging at the rear door of his home.

Police quoted Honeycutt as saying that when he investigated, he found Stutzman, injured, lying on the ground. He said Stutzman had been kicking the door.

Stratton said Honeycutt told him that Stutzman said he had been in a "bad accident." The injured man said that other people were injured but said he could not remember where the accident happened.

All three were rushed to the hospital. Cubbage was in a state of shock and could not tell police what happened. Stutzman said he didn't remember what happened stating "it was all like a dream." Stratton said.

Later police were able to piece together an accounting. They said Cubbage had apparently drifted over the center line. The lights from his car blinded Stutzman and Cubbage in turn was blinded by the lights from Stutzman's car. The accident ensued.

Purse Snatcher Misses Billfold

A purse snatcher got the purse he was after Sunday but that was about all.

Ruth Hood Cummings, 416 Adelaide Place, told police she noticed the man following her as she walked thru the underpass from Monument Valley Park to West St. Vrain Street.

She said she removed her billfold from the pocketbook intending to use the purse as a weapon if the man attempted to attack her. The next thing she knew, the man, a Negro, had snatched the purse out of her hands and raced off.

Teachers Attend Art Workshop Session Series

Elementary teachers in School District 11 are boldly splashing water paints on paper and discovering that no special talent is necesssary to enjoy art.

Later they will provide similar activities for their pupils and help them to see that art is not just for the talented few.

All the district's elementary teachers are attending a series of art workshops conducted by Robert Simpich, the district's supervisor of art education. The subject of the workshop sessions is color, and the emphasis is on trying things teachers can use in their own classrooms.

Even if it were possible to do so, there is no intention of trying to make artists of either teachers, or pupils, Simpich said. 'The purpose of the workshops is to show teachers how they can help children enjoy art and use it as a means of self-expression."

He explained that unlike other classes, the art classes place much less emphasis on acquiring knowledge. "Each person should be an individual, and in art, teachers encourage children to express their individuality. In a class of 30 children there should be 30 kinds of work."

Simpich hastens to add, however, that knowledge a child gains in art has some very practical applications. He points, for example, to the need of every person to deal with color and color arrangement in his daily activities.

Another of the benefits of art work is the development of a sense of discrimination and judgment that is applicable to the solution of problems unrelated to art. It is the development of abilities useful in problem solving which make art experiences valuable for all children, according to Simpich.

The workshops for teachers are planned to help them plan the kind of art activities that will produce these benefits for children. The workshops are part of the district's continuing program of in-service training.

Marine Recruiter To Visit Springs This Week

Capt. Pat S. Galligan, Marine Corps officer selection officer, stationed in Denver, will be in Colorado Springs Tuesday thru Thursday to interview students relative to Marine officer programs. He will be at Rastall Center, Colorado College, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

"Currently," stated Galligan, "the Marine Corps is understrength about 500 pilots. Therefore, we are particularly desirous in obtaining applicants for our flight training programs. There are programs for both prospective June graduates and underclassmen.

"The Marine Corps offers an outstanding in - college officer training program leading to a commission in either ground, aviation or law."

Unhurried Travelogue Shows British Scenes

By JOHN FETLER

The result of a "vagabond" camping trip thru England is seen in the current travelogue in the Theodore Fisher Horizons Unlimited series, which will be repeated tonight at the Fine Arts Center by George F. Anderson.

The travelogue is entertaining mainly because of Anderson's unhurried travel, via the screen, as one gets glimpes of the English and Scottish landscapes.

Anderson uses a few devices which help to tie the various scenes of the film together, such as the letter "L" which, it finally turns out — but we will not give away the secret.

In other words, Anderson seems to use thematic shots, which increases the familiarity for the audience in the travelogue. However, the film can stand considerable edititing, particularly of rhododendrons.

Glimpses of the ugly side of industrial England are so few as to almost non - existent, but then, of course this is a travelogue. However, it is a pity that not more scenes of historical sites were included, although conceivably this might be done in some future "historical" travelogue.

As a lecturer, Anderson again is unhurried, there is no high pressure, and for this reason entertaining. Anderson has a number of these qualities, therefore, as a travelogue artist, which he could emphasize further in his characterization.

Perhaps the best shots are those of Scotland and its picturesque lakes.

Symphony Pops Concert Proves Great Success

By JOHN FETLER

Walter Eisenberg has hit upon a new way of presenting the Symphony Orchestra to the community, by staging the Pops concert at the City Auditorium, at which some 2,300 persons — young and old - attended.

Also participating in the concent was the Colorado College chorale, with Donald Jenkins as the director and Ilse Reese and her dancers.

The music performed included a wide variety, and it seemed obvious that the audience seemed to be enjoying the music quite a bit.

This was helped along by Eisenberg's talents as a master of ceremonies. Although this kind of a thing is not, of course, done in the serious symphony concerts, here it seemed to be not only quite in place, but a positive ingredient in making the Pops concert a success.

We expected to find a more formal affair, with the orchestra perched on the barn - like stage of the auditorium. On the contrary, with cleverness, the orchestra was arranged in the middle, on one side, of the vast auditorium, so that the audience, in effect, came to sit quite informally and closely all around it. Not only did this help the accoustics, but created such a friendly atmosphere in the City Auditorium as we thought was impossible until we saw that it could be done.

This kind of a presentation should be kept in mind for future events — particularly for those musical events staged by the military.

Being a Pops concert, the orchestra seemed to be quite, flexible, enjoying the playing of the more popular numbers, such as from musical shows, etc.

From the attentiveness of the children — and adults — and from the number that attended this Sunday afternoon affair — as well as from the music, this Pops concert at the City auditorium must be pronounced an unqualified success in its field.

March Party Set For Democratic Party Workers

El Paso County Democratic Party workers, who had scarcely anything to cheer about after last November's election, will be invited to rejuvenate their esprit de corps at a party to be given in their honor next month.

Sponsoring agency will be the county Democratic Party organization. The social event will be given Saturday, March 16, from 8 p.m. until midnight in the General Palmer room of the Antlers Hotel.

John Bennett, Democratic county chairman, who made the announcement of the forthcoming event yesterday, emphasized that the party will not be a fund-raising effort.

Admission will be by invitation only. Guests will be some 850 persons who contributed work and money in behalf of Democratic candidates last fall.

The invitations, scheduled to be put in the mail next Saturday described the affair as an "All-Play No-Work" party.

"This will be our way of saying 'thank you' to the hundreds of people who gave time and effort and financial support for tre Democratic Party last fall," Bennett said.

Two Injured As Car Hits Pole Sunday

Two men suffered minor injuries early Sunday morning when the car in which they were riding jumped the curb on the 100 block of East Mill Street and struck a utility pole.

Gordon L. Miller, 22, 2411 N. Cascade Ave., suffered a nose injury but declined treatment. He was driving a car in which John P. Potter, 20, 2311 E. San Miguel, was a passenger.

Potter was treated for cut forehead at Ent dispensary and released.

Miller, who was issued a ticket for careless driving, told police another car crowded him, forcing him to veer off the road and crash into the pole. Damage to the car was estimated at $750. The accident happened at 12:15 a.m.

Valuable Items Taken From Car at Security

A camera, two pairs of cowboy boots, two bridles, a saddle blanket and various other items worth a total of $319 were stolen from a car belonging to Norman Witt of 915 N. Custer St., the sheriff's office said Sunday.

Deputy Sheriffs Bob Walters and Bernard Barry reported the vehicle was parked outside the Branding Iron, Security, between 8 p.m. and 2 a.m. Sunday. Witt said the car was unlocked.

John Van Druten Author of Play To Be Presented

London-born John van Druten is the author of the comedy-drama, "I Remember Mama," which will be presented by the Palmer High School Junior Class Thursday and Friday at the high school auditorium.

But it is his "I Remember Mama," which American threatregoers have taken to their hearts for the play reflects the joys and heartaches of most American families.

The play ran for two years in New York, had a smash road tour and was converted into a movie version. It tells the story of a Norwegian - American immigrant family in San Francisco at the turn of the century.

Van Druten once studied to be a lawyer, at his father's wish. For several years he worked as a solicitor and later as a university lecturer in law and, at the same time, wrote poetry.

Sir John Squire, editor of the London Mercury, convinced van Druten that he should follow a literary career and since then, he has written at least one play almost every year, and an autobiography called, "The Way to the Present," written in 1928.

Three Million Tourists Visit Colorado in '62

A University of Colorado Bureau of Business Research study just released indicates 3,131,000 tourists vacationed in Colorado in 1962.

Of this total, 2,348,000 were from out of state. The remaining 783,000 were Colorado residents.

They spent an estimated $246,504,000, of which out-of-state visitors spent $192,923,000 and Colorado tourists spent $53,581,000.

The bureau's report is one of its Tourist Travel Studies series, entitled "A Method of Estimating Tourists and Expenditures in Colorado." Written by L. J. Crampon, bureau director, the book is on sale for $1.25 and is available from the Bureau of Business Research, University of Colorado.

Crampon reports 1,713,000 persons stayed in hotels, motels, resorts, guest ranches or trailer courts. Another 1,033,000 stayed in private homes. Campgrounds attracted 197,000 persons, another 157,000 stayed in their own cottages or cabins and the remaining 31,000 persons stayed in tourist homes.

Tourists spent an estimated $39,457,000 in Denver County in 1962, $26,310,000 in El Paso County and $23,587,000 in Larimer County.

Crampon's figures are based on a new formula he devised to provide a census of the tourist industry in Colorado. The method uses sleeping capacity of tourist facilities and geographic check points.

PLANNING MEDICAL PROGRAM—Dr. Keith Sheldon, neurologist, and Dr. J. A. O'Donnell, orthopedist, plan their part in the Senior Seminar program on "How to Stem Problems of the Muscular and Nervous Systems" to be held Wednesday afternoon at the Little Theater of the City Auditorium.

ADC Captain First to Log 1,000 Hours in Sabreliner

An Air Defense Command pilot assigned to ADC headquarters here last week became the first man to log 1,000 hours at the controls of the T-39 Sabreliner, Air Force trainer and utility transport built by North American Aviation.

Capt. Kenny D. Cobb, 29, ADC senior T-39 flight examiner, passed the 1,000 hour mark on a flight last week from Colorado Springs to Los Angeles where he met with North American Aviation representatives to discuss T-39 flying standardization.

When he touched down at Los Angeles International Airport he had a 20 minute start toward his second thousand hours.

On hand to meet him, and to present him with certificate number one in the T-39 One Thousand Hour Club, was Bob Hoover, customer relations manager for North American's Los Angeles Division.

Capt. Cobb's crew members on the milestone flight were Capt. Charles J. Kazilek, 37, 4614th Support Group, co - pilot; and Crew Chief T. Sgt. Thomas D. Hesslink, 27, 4614th Consolidated Aircraft Maintenance Sq. Both are assigned to Peterson Field here.

Capt. Cobb, who holds an Air Force senior pilot rating, has flown all but 600 of his some 4,000 flying hours in jet aircraft. An undeviating insistence on professionalism in the cockpit is reflected in his outstanding flying record and the high respect in which he is held by fellow pilots.

He frequently accompanies the ADC commander on flights in the T-39 and as senior flight examiner instructs ADC pilots in the flight characteristics of the twin - jet aircraft.

Relatively new on the Air Force scene, the T-39 first made its appearance on Air Force runways in 1961. Today it is flown by pilots thruout the Air Force and has rapidly gained a reputation as a fast, safe and dependable trainer - utility transport and command mission support aircraft.

In its military configuration the T-39 can carry four passengers, or equivalent cargo, at 550 miles per hour and at altitudes up to 45,000 feet for a distance of some 1700 miles.

Fully pressurized, it is distinguished by twin jets mounted outboard in pods aft of the cabin section.

Captain Cobb, a native of Boaz, Ala., has been assigned to the Hq. ADC flight section at Peterson Field since transferring from T-39 instructor duty at Randolph AFB, Tex. in the summer of 1962.

Three Doctors On Senior Seminar Panel

Avoiding and solving the problems of muscular and nervous disorders in those of retirement age will be the topic of the Senior Seminar this Wednesday between 3:00 and 4:15 p.m., in the Little Theater of the City Auditorium.

This second in the series of five Senior Seminars is open to the public and free of charge. A. Earl Bryson, president of the Senior Coordinating Council, will moderate the panel.

Three physicians, representing the El Paso County Medical Society, have volunteered to speak. They are Dr. Keith Sheldon, neurologist, Dr. J. A. O'Donnell, orthopedist, and Dr. Robert Zimmerman, internist.

This session will be followed on succeeding Wednesdays by a series on Cancer, finances and recreation. The seminar is designed for those in or near retirement and for relatives and friends of the retired.

Heart Fund Drive Workers Turn In Collections

Heart Fund workers yesterday turned in $6,031.45 collected toward the $25,000 goal to fight the greatest killer, heart disease. About 100 workers throughout the city have not turned in their money but reported they would be finished late today or tomorrow.

So far this month a total of $10,535.13 has been received. Tellers of the Colorado Commercial Bank yesterday volunteered to count the money as it was turned in and worked until midnight tallying.

"Because of the beautiful weather yesterday," Mrs. Pauline Sammons, Heart Sunday chairman, said, "many people were not at home. The workers left envelopes at each house already addressed so that donations can be mailed in."

"If anyone was not contacted, or did not receive an envelope, they should mail their contribution to the Heart Fund, Colorado Commercial Bank."

This years Heart Fund goal is $5,000 higher than last year to help cover the cost of $11,000 for the cholesterol research program. The research among high school boys will be conducted by Doctors Ralph Adams, John Hays and John Rice who are donating their time.

Sherman Frisch Services Held Today

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. today at Our Chapel of Memories for Sherman "Scotty" Frisch, 411 S. Cascade Ave., who died Wednesday at a local hospital. Dr. W. G. Schaefer officiated. Burial was in Evergreen Cemetery. Pallbearers were O. F. Shepard, Roland Olson, Eldon Frisch Jr. and Guy Smith.

Mr. Frisch was 66 and was a chicken rancher. He has been a resident of Colorado since 1917 and of Colorado Springs since 1922. He was born in Edmunson, Mo., March 18, 1863. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Glad[illegible] A. Salsbery, of Colorado Spings, and three brothers, Ernest Frisch, Springfield, Mo., E. H. Frisch, Kansas City, Mo., and C. R. Frisch, Colorado Springs.

Ramon Nevarez Found Dead Sunday Morning

An autopsy was to be performed today on the body of a 33-year-old local man who was found dead Sunday morning in his car by his wife.

However, County Coroner Dr. Raoul Urich, who will perform the autopsy, told police after an examination Sunday that he believed the death of Ramon Luiz Nevarez was due to natural causes.

Nevarez was found lying on the front seat of the car which was parked in the garage at his home, 2504 W. Vermijo St., by his wife, Iris.

Mrs. Nevarez told police she had gone to the garage about 7:30 a.m. Sunday to see if the car was there. She said she awoke and found her husband was not in the house.

Police quoted the woman as saying she at first thought her husband was asleep and then she thought he was ill. She loosened his clothing and called a friend, Jose Garcia Cox, 1220 Falcon St.

Cox told police he ascertained Naverez was dead when he arrived and called them.

Police said Cox told them Nevarez had been at his house Saturday for dinner and stayed to watch the fights on television. Cox said Nevarez left his house about 9:15 p.m.

Mrs. Nevarez was quoted by police as saying she had gone to bed after receiving a phone call from her husband stating that he was going to stay and watch the fights.

Cox said Nevarez appeared to be in good spirits and in good health when he left for home Saturday night.

Dr. Urich, after an examination of the body said Nevarez apparently died sometime Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

Sidney Harth To Be Symphony Guest Violinist

Sidney Harth will appear as guest artist Thursday evening, March 7 with the Colorado Springs Symphony Orchestra in the fifth concert of the 1962-63 season.

The internationally famous violinist has won a wide reputation for the sweep and intensity of his playing in concerts and competitions in this country and abroad.

He is already familiar to Colorado Springs audiences thru the Colorado College Summer Concert Series of 1957 and 1958.

Walter Eisenberg, conductor of the Colorado Springs Symphony, has announced that the program of March 7 will include the Classical Symphony by Prokofiev and Pictures at an Exhibition by Moussorgsky - Ravel.

With the orchestra, Harth will perform the Third Violin Concerto in B minor by Saint - Saens.

82-Year-Old Woman Injured In Accident

An 82-year-old local woman is in good condition today at Memorial Hospital where she was taken Sunday following a two-car accident at the intersection of Wahsatch Avenue and Willamette Street.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Stephen R. Grove, 75, 921 N. Meade St., which collided at 10:37 a.m. with a car driven by Robert L. Montgomery, 18, 820 E. Monument St.

Grove was issued a ticket for failing to yield the right of way at a stop sign. Damage totaled $300.

Battery Stolen From Car Sunday

A $25 battery was stolen from a car belonging to Arthur Miller of 2053 S. Corona St. the sheriff's office reported Sunday.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Dietsche said the vehicle was parked outside Miller's home, and that the theft must have happened early Sunday morning as Miller said he was up until after midnight and heard no noise.

$200 Damage as Tires Slashed at Night Spot

The sheriff's office reported Sunday that four tires on a car belonging to Robert Cimino of 3109 Virginia Ave. had been slashed causing $200 damage.

According to Deputy Sheriffs Bob Walters and Bernard Barry the car was parked outside the Navajo Hogan. The officers checked the parking lot at 11:30 p.m. Saturday and the tires were not damaged at that time.

Women Are More Alert To Cancer, Study Reveals

"A nagging wife may save your life." This advice has lately been sounded to men thruout the land by the American Cancer Society for an extra - special reason.

A study it made has disclosed that women are more alert to the menace of cancer than men. And in many instances wives have prodded procrastinating husbands until they had an essential physical examination. Thus the presence of cancer was revealed in time for them to have effective treatment.

"Since 1949 more men than women have been dying of cancer," Dr. Robert F. Dillon, director of public education of the El Paso County Unit of the American Cancer Society explained today, "and in recent years the death rate amoung women has been declining. More than 10,000 women are being saved from death by cancer each year who would have died of that disease a decade ago.

Saving those lives has been the result of better methods of detection and treatment, plus a growing year round educational effort by the American Cancer Society and its 1,000,000 volunteers. And American Women themselves have made a large contribution to this victory by their increasing response to self-protective measures against cancer.

"Breast cancer is a case in point. It is almost exclusively a woman's disease, the second most common type of cancer affecting women. The incidence of breast cancer increases raipdly after age 35, but it can strike at any time.

Some 50,000 women a year develop that form of cancer, and it claims about 20,000 lives annually. Yet physicians have been tragically aware that half of such victims were lost needlessly.

They say that the cure rate could be doubled merely by early detection."

Nearly always, Dr. Dillon continued, breast cancer starts as an easy - to - reach tumor, a growth that often can be cured if treated before it has begun to spread. So such cases should not be regarded as hopeless.

The problem confronting the medical fraternity a few years ago was to find some means of helping women to recognize a tell tale lump in either breast at the earliest possible moment.

That problem was solved when doctors developed the idea of breast self - examination, and thus gave women personal responsibility for early detection of breast cancer.

"Thru this easily learned technique," Dr. Dillon added, "a breast - lump even as small as a pea can be detected quickly. Usually the smaller a malginant lump when found, the greater the chance of cure.

But the presence of a breast-lump by no means indicates cancer. Most breast growths are benign. However, diagnosis is a doctor's province, and he alone can make sure whether a lump spells cancer or not.

"Any woman can readily learn the technique of breast self-examination. That method has been made especially easy to understand thru a film entitled 'Breast Self - Examination,' produced jointly by the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute of the U.S. Public Health Service.

"In just fifteen minutes, it shows a woman how to act as a police force of one for her own protection. In the last four years more than 5,000,000 women have won the security and peace of mind that this film offers against breast cancer."

The American Cancer Society Unit here is arranging free local showing, the times and places of which will shortly be announced.

Three Accident Victims in Good Condition

Three persons are listed in fairly good condition today at St. Francis Hospital where they were taken Saturday with injuries received in a head - on collision of two cars on West Busch Street.

Bobby L. Stutzman, 24, 409 E. Jefferson St., crawled several hundred feet with a broken ankle and other injuries to get help for the others injured in the early morning crash. Stuzman's other injuries include bruises of the eye and leg and cuts of the lip and right leg.

Also injured were Donald E. Cubbage, 34, 2529 W. Busch St., driver of the other car involved, and his wife, Mrs. Claire Cubbage, 42.

Cubbage received a broken right wrist and a broken leg, cuts and brusies of the lips and chest injuries. His wife is being treated for a broken left arm, cuts and brusises of the left leg and injuries to the back and chest.

Both cars in the accident which happened at 12:15 a.m. were declared total losses, Patrolman Neal J. Stratton, investigating officer, said.

Stratton issued a ticket for driving on the wrong side of the road to Cubbage who was driving a 1960 model car. Stutzman was driving a 1956 model automobile.

The accident was reported by Harry Honeycutt, 1422 Langmeyer St., who told police he was asleep when he heard a banging at the rear door of his home.

Police quoted Honeycutt as saying that when he investigated, he found Stutzman, injured, lying on the ground. He said Stutzman had been kicking the door.

Stratton said Honeycutt told him that Stutzman said he had been in a "bad accident." The injured man said that other people were injured but said he could not remember where the accident happened.

All three were rushed to the hospital. Cubbage was in a state of shock and could not tell police what happened. Stutzman said he didn't remember what happened stating "it was all like a dream," Stratton said.

Later police were able to piece together an accounting. They said Cubbage had apparently drifted over the center line. The lights from his car blinded Stutzman and Cubbage in turn was blinded by the lights from Stutzman's car. The accident ensued.

Purse Snatcher Misses Billfold

A purse snatcher got the purse he was after Sunday but that was about all.

Ruth Hood Cummings, 416 Adelaide Place, told police she noticed the man following her as she walked thru the underpass from Monument Valley Park to West St. Vrain Street.

She said she removed her billfold from the pocketbook intending to use the purse as a weapon if the man attempted to attack her. The next thing she knew, the man, a Negro, had snatched the purse out of her hands and raced off.

Teachers Attend Art Workshop Session Series

Elementary teachers in School District 11 are boldly splashing water paints on paper and discovering that no special talent is necesssary to enjoy art.

Later they will provide similar activities for their pupils and help them to see that art is not just for the talented few.

All the district's elementary teachers are attending a series of art workshops conducted by Robert Simpich, the district's supervisor of art education. The subject of the workshop sessions is color, and the emphasis is on trying things teachers can use in their own classrooms.

Even if it were possible to do so, there is no intention of trying to make artists of either teachers, or pupils, Simpich said. 'The purpose of the workshops is to show teachers how they can help children enjoy art and use it as a means of self-expression."

He explained that unlike other classes, the art classes place much less emphasis on acquiring knowledge. "Each person should be an individual, and in art, teachers encourage children to express their individuality. In a class of 30 children there should be 30 kinds of work."

Simpich hastens to add, however, that knowledge a child gains in art has some very practical applications. He points, for example, to the need of every person to deal with color and color arrangement in his daily activities.

Another of the benefits of art work is the development of a sense of discrimination and judgment that is applicable to the solution of problems unrelated to art. It is the development of abilities useful in problem solving which make art experiences valuable for all children, according to Simpich.

The workshops for teachers are planned to help them plan the kind of art activities that will produce these benefits for children. The workshops are part of the district's continuing program of in-service training.

Marine Recruiter To Visit Springs This Week

Capt. Pat S. Galligan, Marine Corps officer selection officer, stationed in Denver, will be in Colorado Springs Tuesday thru Thursday to interview students relative to Marine officer programs. He will be at Rastall Center, Colorado College, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

"Currently," stated Galligan, "the Marine Corps is understrength about 500 pilots. Therefore, we are particularly desirous in obtaining applicants for our flight training programs. There are programs for both prospective June graduates and underclassmen.

"The Marine Corps offers an outstanding in - college officer training program leading to a commission in either ground, aviation or law."

Unhurried Travelogue Shows British Scenes

By JOHN FETLER

The result of a "vagabond" camping trip thru England is seen in the current travelogue in the Theodore Fisher Horizons Unlimited series, which will be repeated tonight at the Fine Arts Center by George F. Anderson.

The travelogue is entertaining mainly because of Anderson's unhurried travel, via the screen, as one gets glimpes of the English and Scottish landscapes.

Anderson uses a few devices which help to tie the various scenes of the film together, such as the letter "L" which, it finally turns out — but we will not give away the secret.

In other words, Anderson seems to use thematic shots which increases the familiarity for the audience in the travelogue. However, the film can stand considerable edititing, particularly of rhododendrons.

Glimpses of the ugly side of industrial England are so few as to almost non - existent, but then, of course this is a travelogue. However, it is a pity that not more scenes of historical sites were included, although conceivably this might be done in some future "historical" travelogue.

As a lecturer, Anderson again is unhurried, there is no high pressure, and for this reason entertaining. Anderson has a number of these qualities, therefore, as a travelogue artist, which he could emphasize further in his characterization.

Perhaps the best shots are those of Scotland and its picturesque lakes.

Symphony Pops Concert Proves Great Success

By JOHN FETLER

Walter Eisenberg has hit upon a new way of presenting the Symphony Orchestra to the community, by staging the Pops concert at the City Auditorium, at which some 2,300 persons — young and old - attended.

Also participating in the concent was the Colorado College chorale, with Donald Jenkins as the director and Ilse Reese and her dancers.

The music performed included a wide variety, and it seemed obvious that the audience seemed to be enjoying the music quite a bit.

This was helped along by Eisenberg's talents as a master of ceremonies. Although this kind of a thing is not, of course, done in the serious symphony concerts, here it seemed to be not only quite in place, but a positive ingredient in making the Pops concert a success.

We expected to find a more formal affair, with the orchestra perched on the barn - like stage of the auditorium. On the contrary, with cleverness, the orchestra was arranged in the middle, on one side, of the vast auditorium, so that the audience, in effect, came to sit quite informally and closely all around it. Not only did this help the accoustics, but created such a friendly atmosphere in the City Auditorium as we thought was impossible until we saw that it could be done.

This kind of a presentation should be kept in mind for future events — particularly for those musical events staged by the military.

Being a Pops concert, the orchestra seemed to be quite, flexible, enjoying the playing of the more popular numbers, such as from musical shows, etc.

From the attentiveness of the children — and adults — and from the number that attended this Sunday afternoon affair — as well as from the music, this Pops concert at the City auditorium must be pronounced an unqualified success in its field.

March Party Set For Democratic Party Workers

El Paso County Democratic Party workers, who had scarcely anything to cheer about after last November's election, will be invited to rejuvenate their esprit de corps at a party to be given in their honor next month.

Sponsoring agency will be the county Democratic Party organization. The social event will be given Saturday, March 16, from 8 p.m. until midnight in the General Palmer room of the Antlers Hotel.

John Bennett, Democratic county chairman, who made the announcement of the forthcoming event yesterday, emphasized that the party will not be a fund-raising effort.

Admission will be by invitation only. Guests will be some 850 persons who contributed work and money in behalf of Democratic candidates last fall.

The invitations, scheduled to be put in the mail next Saturday, described the affair as an "All-Play No-Work" party.

"This will be our way of saying 'thank you' to the hundreds of people who gave time and effort and financial support for tre Democratic Party last fall," Bennett said.

Two Injured As Car Hits Pole Sunday

Two men suffered minor injuries early Sunday morning when the car in which they were riding jumped the curb on the 100 block of East Mill Street and struck a utility pole.

Gordon L. Miller, 22, 2411 N. Cascade Ave., suffered a nose injury but declined treatment. He was driving a car in which John P. Potter, 20, 2311 E. San Miguel, was a passenger.

Potter was treated for cut forehead at Ent dispensary and released.

Miller, who was issued a ticket for careless driving, told police another car crowded him, forcing him to veer off the road and crash into the pole. Damage to the car was estimated at $750. The accident happened at 12:15 a.m.

Valuable Items Taken From Car at Security

A camera, two pairs of cowboy boots, two bridles, a saddle blanket and various other items worth a total of $319 were stolen from a car belonging to Norman Witt of 915 N. Custer St., the sheriff's office said Sunday.

Deputy Sheriffs Bob Walters and Bernard Barry reported the vehicle was parked outside the Branding Iron, Security, between 8 p.m. and 1 a.m. Sunday. Witt said the car was unlocked.

John Van Druten Author of Play To Be Presented

London-born John van Druten is the author of the comedy-drama, "I Remember Mama," which will be presented by the Palmer High School Junior Class Thursday and Friday at the high school auditorium.

But it is his "I Remember Mama," which American threatregoers have taken to their hearts for the play reflects the joys and heartaches of most American families.

The play ran for two years in New York, had a smash road tour and was converted into a movie version. It tells the story of a Norwegian - American immigrant family in San Francisco at the turn of the century.

Van Druten once studied to be a lawyer, at his father's wish. For several years he worked as a solicitor and later as a university lecturer in law and, at the same time, wrote poetry.

Sir John Squire, editor of the London Mercury, convinced van Druten that he should follow a literary career and since then, he has written at least one play almost every year, and an autobiography called, "The Way to the Present," written in 1928.

Three Million Tourists Visit Colorado in '62

A University of Colorado Bureau of Business Research study just released indicates 3,131,000 tourists vacationed in Colorado in 1962.

Of this total, 2,348,000 were from out of state. The remaining 783,000 were Colorado residents.

They spent an estimated $246,504,000, of which out-of-state visitors spent $192,923,000 and Colorado tourists spent $53,581,000.

The bureau's report is one of its Tourist Travel Studies series, entitled "A Method of Estimating Tourists and Expenditures in Colorado." Written by L. J. Crampon, bureau director, the book is on sale for $1.25 and is available from the Bureau of Business Research, University of Colorado.

Crampon reports 1,713,000 persons stayed in hotels, motels, resorts, guest ranches or trailer courts. Another 1,033,000 stayed in private homes. Campgrounds attracted 197,000 persons, another 157,000 stayed in their own cottages or cabins and the remaining 31,000 persons stayed in tourist homes.

Tourists spent an estimated $39,457,000 in Denver County in 1962, $26,310,000 in El Paso County and $23,587,000 in Larimer County.

Crampon's figures are based on a new formula he devised to provide a census of the tourist industry in Colorado. The method uses sleeping capacity of tourist facilities and geographic check points.

Three Doctors On Senior Seminar Panel

Avoiding and solving the problems of muscular and nervous disorders in those of retirement age will be the topic of the Senior Seminar this Wednesday between 3:00 and 4:15 p.m., in the Little Theater of the City Auditorium.

This second in the series of five Senior Seminars is open to the public and free of charge. A. Earl Bryson, president of the Senior Coordinating Council, will moderate the panel.

Three physicians, representing the El Paso County Medical Society, have volunteered to speak. They are Dr. Keith Sheldon, neurologist, Dr. J. A. O'Donnell, orthopedist, and Dr. Robert Zimmerman, internist.

This session will be followed on succeeding Wednesdays by a series on Cancer, finances and recreation. The seminar is designed for those in or near retirement and for relatives and friends of the retired.

This will be followed by a financial report to be given by John Yeonopolus treasurer of the 'Y'.

The annual Service to Youth Award will be presented by Bill Marshall, which will be followed by the main address of the evening to be delivered by Howard Kustermann, general secretary of the Dallas YMCA.

The meeting will close with a benediction to be given by Dr. Ben Lehmberg, pastor of First Methodist Church.

Reservations for the meeting may be made up until Thursday, by calling the YMCA at 633-4643.

Heart Fund Drive Workers Turn In Collections

Heart Fund workers yesterday turned in $6,031.45 collected toward the $25,000 goal to fight the greatest killer, heart disease. About 100 workers throughout the city have not turned in their money but reported they would be finished late today or tomorrow.

So far this month a total of $10,535.13 has been received. Tellers of the Colorado Commercial Bank yesterday volunteered to count the money as it was turned in and worked until midnight tallying.

"Because of the beautiful weather yesterday," Mrs. Pauline Sammons, Heart Sunday chairman, said, "many people were not at home. The workers left envelopes at each house already addressed so that donations can be mailed in."

"If anyone was not contacted, or did not receive an envelope, they should mail their contribution to the Heart Fund, Colorado Commercial Bank."

This years Heart Fund goal is $5,000 higher than last year to help cover the cost of $11,000 for the cholesterol research program. The research among high school boys will be conducted by Doctors Ralph Adams, John Hays and John Rice who are donating their time.

Sherman Frisch Services Held Today

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. today at Our Chapel of Memories for Sherman "Scotty" Frisch, 411 S. Cascade Ave., who died Wednesday at a local hospital. Dr. W. G. Schaefer officiated. Burial was in Evergreen Cemetery. Pallbearers were O. F. Shepard, Roland Olson, Eldon Frisch Jr. and Guy Smith.

Mr. Frisch was 66 and was a chicken rancher. He has been a resident of Colorado since 1917 and of Colorado Springs since 1923. He was born in Edmunson, Mo., March 18, 1863. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Glad A. Salsbery, of Colorado Spings, and three brothers, Ernest Frisch, Springfield, Mo., E. H. Frisch, Kansas City, Mo., and C. B. Frisch, Colorado Springs.

Ramon Nevarez Found Dead Sunday Morning

An autopsy was to be performed today on the body of a 33-year-old local man who was found dead Sunday morning in his car by his wife.

However, County Coroner Dr. Raoul Urich, who will perform the autopsy, told police after an examination Sunday that he believed the death of Ramon Luiz Nevarez was due to natural causes.

Nevarez was found lying on the front seat of the car which was parked in the garage at his home, 2504 W. Vermijo St., by his wife, Iris.

Mrs. Nevarez told police she had gone to the garage about 7:30 a.m. Sunday to see if the car was there. She said she awoke and found her husband was not in the house.

Police quoted the woman as saying she at first thought her husband was asleep and then she thought he was ill. She loosened his clothing and called a friend, Jose Garcia Cox, 1220 Falcon St.

Cox told police he ascertained Naverez was dead when he arrived and called them.

Police said Cox told them Nevarez had been at his house Saturday for dinner and stayed to watch the fights on television. Cox said Nevarez left his house about 9:15 p.m.

Mrs. Nevarez was quoted by police as saying she had gone to bed after receiving a phone call from her husband stating that he was going to stay and watch the fights.

Cox said Nevarez appeared to be in good spirits and in good health when he left for home Saturday night.

Dr. Urich, after an examination of the body said Nevarez apparently died sometime Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

Sidney Harth To Be Symphony Guest Violinist

Sidney Harth will appear as guest artist Thursday evening, March 7 with the Colorado Springs Symphony Orchestra in the fifth concert of the 1962-63 season.

The internationally famous violinist has won a wide reputation for the sweep and intensity of his playing in concerts and competitions in this country and abroad.

He is already familiar to Colorado Springs audiences thru the Colorado College Summer Concert Series of 1957 and 1958.

Walter Eisenberg, conductor of the Colorado Springs Symphony, has announced that the program of March 7 will include the Classical Symphony by Prokofiev and Pictures at an Exhibition by Moussorgsky - Ravel.

With the orchestra, Harth will perform the Third Violin Concerto in B minor by Saint - Saens.

82-Year-Old Woman Injured In Accident

An 82-year-old local woman is in good condition today at Memorial Hospital where she was taken Sunday following a two-car accident at the intersection of Wahsatch Avenue and Willamette Street.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Stephen R. Grove, 75, 921 N. Meade St., which collided at 10:37 a.m. with a car driven by Robert L. Montgomery, 18, 820 E. Monument St.

Grove was issued a ticket for failing to yield the right of way at a stop sign. Damage totaled $300.

Battery Stolen From Car Sunday

A $25 battery was stolen from a car belonging to Arthur Miller of 2053 S. Corona St. the sheriff's office reported Sunday.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Dietsche said the vehicle was parked outside Miller's home, and that the theft must have happened early Sunday morning as Miller said he was up until after midnight and heard no noise.

$200 Damage as Tires Slashed at Night Spot

The sheriff's office reported Sunday that four tires on a car belonging to Robert Cimino of 3109 Virginia Ave. had been slashed causing $200 damage.

According to Deputy Sheriffs Bob Walters and Bernard Barry the car was parked outside the Navajo Hogan. The officers checked the parking lot at 11:30 p.m. Saturday and the tires were not damaged at that time.

Pirates Gain at Least DPL Title Tie In Gift Game With Mt. Carmel, 14-2

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

DENVER — It could only happen in the Denver Parochial League!

The Pirates of St. Mary's won a basketball game over lowly Mt. Carmel, 14-2, in an "encounter" that saw the Eagles only take three shots thruout the contest. It was quite obvious that Mt. Carmel team didn't want to take another pasting as they did against Annunciation as the latter team scored 100 points in that game. So they elected to take the easy route to defeat and played a stalling game while the mighty Pirates stood by like wooden Indians and accepted the stalemate merely for the sake of trying to win their first league title in the school's history.

Annunciation moved into second place with a 12-4 record after their stunning victory over Mullen while the Pirates control the top spot with 14-2.

Sunday's "Victory" over Mt Carmel automatically presented the Bucs with at least a tie for the loop title even if the Pirates drop their next two encounters against Regis next Friday and Cathedral on Sunday. Both games will be plyed at the Pirate gym.

After two minutes of shoddy performances on the part of both teams Sunday, St. Mary's finally got on the scoreboard. But to the bewilderment of the Pirates and the spectators that's the only scoring either team did in the first period as the little men from Mt. Carmel went thru their passing maneuvers like puppets; undaunted by the harassment of the displeased basketball spectators.

The second period was a reinactment of the previous quarter with the Eagles freezing the ball, altho Mickey Elliott and Richie Jewett wakened from their trance in time to break up the monotonous stalling to rally along with towering "Big John" O'Connell to net the Pirates a whopping six points in the second period.

Spectators welcomed the intermission period for a change of pace at the refreshment stand as the "game" halftime score was 8-0 in favor of the Colorado Springs team. During those two periods the Eagles controlled the ball exclusively and daringly took their two shots with less than 10 seconds in both periods.

The second half was a carbon copy of the first two quarters as the persistent Mt. Carmel quintet went thru the motions of a basketball team. Dave Suer proved the Eagles' "hero" in the closing seconds of the third period with a desperation shot that saved his team from being shutout completely.

Everyone in the St. Joseph's gym was sitting on pins and needles awaiting the Pirates to come out of their zone defense coma, which proved useless against the stalling Eagles. But Ed Murphy elected to coast along with his stingy zone defense and allowed the Eagles to make a mocking stock out of the Paroke league leaders.

The game developed into such a ridiculous state that several alert basketball buffs elected to put on their own show. The four youngsters stole the spotlight as they passed the ball around in the stands. This proved more interesting than the main event.

Understandably, the Pirates needed this victory to win at least a tie for the DPL title regardless of the outcome of their next two games against Regis and Cathedral. Perhaps the Bucs aren't capable of playing a man-to-man defense or a press zone defense, but to the sparce audiance they were a laughing stock that represented Colorado Springs and the current DPL leaders.

During the late stages of the encounter, O'Connell and several other Pirates completely gave in to their smaller opponents and all but walked off the court.

Scoring-wise, O'Connell "paced" the Pirates with six points, Jewett got four and Rome and Elliott each collected wo points.

After the game the Pirate dressing room was the scene of celebration and bravos for each others' performance instead of a wake; which would rightly be expected if the Bucs realized they were humiliated by such a lesser team. Granted, the Pirates won on the scoreboard but paid an expensive price — they lost their championship pride!

Tigers Travel to Alamosa To Meet Indians Tonight

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writerx

ALAMOSA—Colorado College's basketball team arrived at this southern Colorado outpost today where the Indians of Adams State are prepared to make a last stand in their quest for a Rocky Mountain Conference title.

For a team that played dead for some 11 weeks of a 13 week season, Red Eastlack's Tigers suddenly have a great deal to say about the final outcome of this winter's RMC race. CC snapped a 21 game losing streak in Colorado Springs last Monday and Tuesday by handing league leader Western State a double defeat. Just to prove the Tigers play no favorites, they'd like to come up with at least one victory in the two night stand here, a feat which would hand the crown to the Mountaineers.

Western State and Adams State set up this improbable finish by splitting a two game set in Gunnison last weekend. The series ended WSC's conference schedule and left Adams with a chance to tie for the title if the Indians can sweep this final two game set from CC. The Tigers return home after the series to wind up the season in two contests with Colorado State College Friday and Saturday.

Regardless of what occurs here, the Tigers cannot hope to escape the cellar this season but a strong finish could signal better days ahead when a new campaign opens next December. Eastlack feels the club has a good chance of downing CSC this weekend but the team would probably be willing to settle for a split here. Even that will be difficult to attain with the Indians backed against the wall.

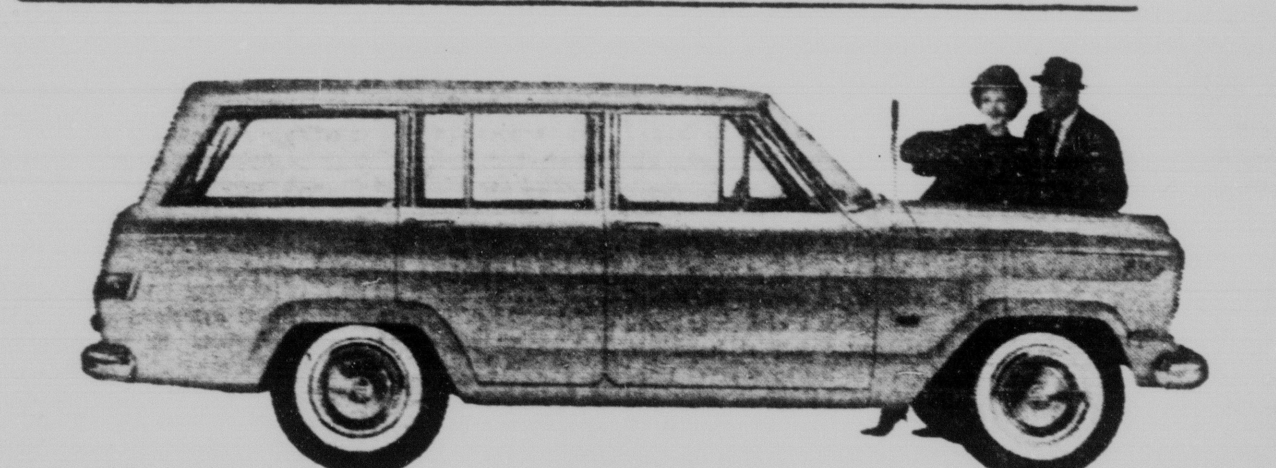
THE INSIDE STORY...



ON THE NEW 'JEEP' WAGONEER!

Different? Definitely!

1. Handles Loads Other Wagons Can't! The rear opening is Higher (cargo height 3 ft. 5 in.), Wider (4 ft. 7 in.), and with the tailgate open it has a cargo length of over 9 ft. 2. Automatic Transmission and 4-Wheel Drive. The 'Jeep' Wagoneer is the only station wagon to offer the extra traction and safety of 4-wheel drive, with the extra convenience of optional automatic transmission. 3. Single Selector Knob for 4-Wheel Drive. Easy to operate. Pull it back when you need 4-wheel drive traction, push it forward when you don't. Unique signal light on the dashboard tells you when you're in 2 or 4-wheel drive. 4. Independent Front Suspension. First in any 4-Wheel Drive Wagon. Optional independent front suspension with torsion bar action smooths out even the biggest bumps. 5. America's only Automotive Overhead Camshaft Engine. The Tornado-OHC engine offers longer engine life, lower maintenance costs, lower gasoline bills than any comparable conventional engine. And it gives you plenty of reserve passing power when you need it. 6. Higher, Wider, Easier-to-Enter Doors. The Wagoneer's front doors swing out a full 82-degrees, making it easy to get in and out. Ample head-room, hip-room and leg-room assure comfort for six passengers—even on long journeys. The New Jeep Wagoneer is the first station wagon ever built to offer the comfort, silence, speed and smoothness of a passenger car—plus the safety and traction of 4-wheel drive. It's the one family wagon you can drive almost anywhere, in almost any weather. The Wagoneer is available in 4- and 2-door models, with 4- or 2-wheel drive. Step in! Size it up! Try it out at your 'Jeep' Dealer's today!

More NCAA Berths Filled

By JIM HACLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cincinnati has won its shot at a third consecutive national college basketball championship and the line of challengers to the mighty Bearcats is gradually growing longer.

Arizone State, St. Joseph's of Philadelphia and Texas captured conference titles Saturday night with them, automatic berths in the NCAA tournament. In addition, all 10 at-large spots in the coast-to-coast classic have been filled, with Pitt clinching the last one Saturday night.

Still to be settled in the closing two weeks of the regular season are no less than 11 conference races, with NCAA trips contingent upon each. Some of these league battles are snarled to a fare-thee-well, promising a scramble of down to the wire finishes—and perhaps a playoff or two to get into the national playoffs.

The other big post-season affair —the National Invitation—may wait until the conference races are decided before naming the last few clubs to its field. The 26th NIT will be a 12-team tourney of major independents and perhaps as many as three conference entries.

St. Joseph's swept to its fifth straight Middle Atlantic crown with a 66-49 victory over LaSalle, at the Philadelphia Palestra. Texas' 92-76 decision at Southern Methodist and Texas Tech's 74-73 home victory over Rice combined to clinch the Southwest championship for the Longhorns.

Pitt earned the remaining NCAA at-large berth by swamping Penn State 83-67 at Pittsburgh.

Cincinnati, its Missouri Valley title already secure, had a scare at home in a 55-54 squeaker over Tulsa. The top-ranked bearcats had to come from 14 points back in the second half to get their 21st victory in 22 starts.

Wichita, seventh-ranked and an NIT entry, was topped at Bradley 65-64 in another Missouri Valley game.

Duke's Blue Devils, No. 2 nationally, completed a perfect regular season in the Atlantic Coast Conference, rapping North Carolina 106-93. Art Heyman thrilled the home crowd with 40 points and 24 rebounds as Duke won its 15th straight and finshed with a 14-0 mark in the ACC. The conference tourney starts Thursday with the Blue Devils a heavy choice to take the title and the NCAA spot.

The Southern Conference has its three-day tourney beginning Thursday, with regular season champion West Virginia the choice. The Mountaineers crushed George Washington 104-86 Saturday night at West Virginia.

Two NCAA-bound independents in the nation's top ten posted Saturday night victories. Third-ranked Loyola of Chicago got by at Houston 62-58 and 10th-ranked New York University won at St. Francis of New York, 76-62.

BIG TEN—Ohio State and Illinoise at the top with 8-2 records, Minnesota and Indiana longshots. The fifth-ranked Buckeyes won their 47th in a row at home Saturday, 83-70 over Iowa, and the sixth-ranked Illini also won at home, 89-77 against Iowa.

BIG EIGHT — Kansas State ahead at 8-2 but Colorado, Oklahoma State, Iowa State close behing. The Wildcats jumped in front by winning at home over Iowa State 62-50.

SOUTHEASTERN — Eighth ranked Mississippi State, 99-64 winner over LSU, in the lead but unlikely to go to the NCAA because of policy against integrated athletics. Ninth-ranked Auburn, 78-59 loser at Kentucky, and Georgia Tech tied for second. Tech beat Georgia 66-58 in overtime.

BIG SIX — Stanford at 6-3 with three to go, all on the road, and Washington 6-4 ith two road games left. This one could be a deadlock.

IVY LEAGUE — Penn and Princeton at 9-3 and Yale at 8-3 the contenders, with definite chance of a three-way tie. All three won Saturday, Princeton 74-60 at Harvard, Penn 82-63 at Dartmouth and Yale 61-60 in overtime at Cornell.

MID - AMERICAN — Bowling Green and Toledo 8-3, with Ohio University and Miami of Ohio 8-4 and finished with conference play. Bowling Green entertains Marshall tonight while Toledo plays at Western Michigan Wednesday. On Saturday, Bowling green downed Western Michigan and Toledo clipped Marshall 63-58.

WEST COAST ATHLETIC — San Francisco leads at 7-1, St. Mary's is 7-2 and Santa Clara 6-2. San Francisco's four remaining games include two with Santa Clara and one with St. Mary's, meaning the Dons will have to win it on their own. St. Mary's beat Los Angeles Loyola 81-74 Saturday, Santa Clara whipped San Jose 77-57.

OHIO VALLEY—Morehead, 8-3, winds up at Eastern Kentucky Tuesday night, Tennessee Tech finished 8-4 with an 84-61 romp over Murray Saturday.

YANKEE — Rhode Island, 8-1 and Connecticut, 7-1, tangle at the Uconn court Saturday, Connecticut also has a home conference game Tuesday, with New Hampshire.

Champion Charges Butting

Fullmer-Tiger Rematch Anticipated for June

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Gene Fullmer remains unfinished business for middleweight champion Dick Tiger today—but settlement is expected in a big-money match in June.

Figures in the $100,000 bracket are flying as fast as the punches thrown Saturday night in Convention Center where Tiger retained his crown on a draw decision after 15 rounds of battling.

Fullmer, of West Jordan, Utah, who lost his title to Tiger in San Francisco last Oct. 23, declared, "I'm ready for the rematch. I thought I beat him Saturday night and there's no reason I can't do it again."

Tiger thought he had won. He said he was shocked at referee Vern Bybee, who scored it a 69-69 draw while judge John Romero scored for Fullmer, 70-68. Judge Pat Diskin ruled for Tiger, 71-67. The Associated Press had it even at 70-70 under the Nevada scoring system of five points to the winner of a round and four or less to the loser.

At a news conference Tiger criticized the man who fought him to a standoff.

"He shouldn't use tricks," Tiger said of Fullmer's strategy of jabbing and dancing away. "I am the champion. I'll never use tricks."

In the San Francisco fight, Fullmer employed his usual style. He bulled his way in—and took a licking. So he switched styles for this one.

Mentioned as possible sites for the third match in the series are Los Angeles, Las Vegas, New York, Bozeman, Mont., Edmonton, Alta., Syracuse, N.Y., and even the champion's home country, Nigeria.

The draw was the third for Fullmer in championship fights. While he held the crown, he fought even matches against Joey Giardello and Sugar Ray Robinson.

Tiger was unhappy about several things. Pointing to a bandage on a cut above his eye, he declared, "It was his head that did that."

The champion claimed he scored a knockdown in the ninth round. The extra points might have given him the fight but the referee ruled that Fullmer had slipped.

At one point Tiger tossed Fullmer bodily from the ring. The champ charged, "He was using elbows and butts so I threw him out."

"He just got a little flustered," Fullmer said.

DU Icers Retain Hockey Lead

By United Press International

Denver University played it rough and tumble to keep the undisputed lead in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association last week with a 4-1 victory over Michigan Tech.

North Dakota, following the Pioneers with 10-5-1 for the season, lost two to the DU icers on the previous weekend but managed to down Minnesota last week 4-3.

Elsewhere last week, Michigan State kept Michigan solidly in the cellar, 3-13-2, with a 2-1 win.

Colorado College, 6-8, was idle last week, still savoring their Feb. 9 6-5 victory over Denver. It was the first time they beat Denver in 22 tries.

Denver's tough stance Saturday came after losing 3-1 to Tech Friday night. The third-period action may have set a record for penalties in league play.

In all 46 minutes in penalties were charged; 25 against Tech and 21 against DU. Denver marked the one-millionth paid admission Saturday.

Tiny Lund Wins Daytona Race

Lund, driving a 1963 Ford to which he had been assigned only 10 days ago, won the fifth annual Daytona 500 late model stock car race in a late-charging dash that carried him to the biggest pay window of his life.

He finished the long grind completely out of gas, going the last quarter mile on pure momentum. But he finished 24 seconds ahead of Fred Lorenzen of Charlotte, N.C., and 26 seconds ahead of Ned Jarrett of Conover, N.C.

Seven of the nine fastest miles in thoroughbred racing history have been run in June.

K-State Atop Big Eight Loop But Faces CU, O-State

By JIM VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Kansas State is alone at the top in Big Eight basketball for the first time all season with a six-game winning streak, but coach Tex Winter's team is in an uneasy position because the schedule favors Colorado and Oklahoma State.

K-State dealt Iowa State's title hopes a severe blow with a 62-50 victory at Manhattan Saturday night. It marked Winter's 200th coaching victory—the first 25 in two seasons at Marquette.

This left K-State with an 8-2 record. Colorado's defending champions revived with a 49-40 victory over Oklahoma State at Boulder and moved up to second at 8-3. Oklahoma State is third at 7-3. Iowa State 8-4.

Colorado is favored to knock Iowa State out of the race tonight at Boulder and extend its home court winning streak to 24 games. Oklahoma State should get by last-place Nebraska at Lincoln and stay alive.

The race seems certain to go down to the final night, March 9, when Colorado plays at K-State and Kansas at Oklahoma State. A championship tie is a strong possibility. A playoff then would be set by the conference to determine its NCAA representative.

K-State's task is a hard one because the Wildcats face a difficult weekend road trip to meet Oklahoma State at Stillwater Saturday and Iowa State at Ames next Monday. Before then, the Wildcats should get by Kansas at Manhattan Wednesday.

In other games this week, Missouri plays at Kansas Friday and Oklahoma at Nebraska Saturday. The Sooners clinched at least a tie for fifth place by edging Missouri 68-67 at Columbia Saturday on a free throw by little Eddie Evans with one second left.

Kansas trailed by five points at half time but came back to hand Nebraska its 10th straight defeat, 45-39 at Lincoln.

Colorado's run of seven points midway in the last half made it 43-28 and broke open the game. Ken Charlton, Colorado's Big Eight scoring leader with two bad knees, was held to eight points and his average fell to 20.0.

Willie Murrell of K-State had 21 and is a close second at 19.0, followed by George Unseld, Kansas, at 17.3, and Larry Hawk, Oklahoma State, 17.0. Hawk was limited to four points by Colorado.

Bob Price led Missouri with 27 points but Evans stole the ball from him as the Tigers were playing for one closing shot.

Springs Stars Win Ice Tourney

The Colorado Springs All-Stars, composed of players from the Young America Hockey League, won the two-day Schoolboy Hockey Tournament in Denver over the weekend, defeated the Denver Country Club in the finals, 3-2. Taking third was Whit's Aces from Colorado Springs on a 4-3 decision from the Cullen Thompson Valiants of Denver.

Tom Brown of the All-Stars scored the winning goal after 12 minutes of sudden death overtime play in the championship game at Zeckendorf Plaza Rink.

Tim Boddington and Rocky Whitworth, son of coach Harry Whitworth, combined to score in the final minute of play for the Aces' win. Whit's Aces trailed all the way until the last minute of action.

In the first round, the All-Stars defeated Cullen Thompson and Denver Country Club topped Whit's Aces.

Regional basketball prestige took a bump as visiting Oklahoma City University dumped Regis of Denver Saturday night, 88-71.

The invasion foreshadows a match between OCU and another independent from the region, State University, in the first round NCAA playoffs at Lubbock, Tex., March 9.

This week, Air Force, dumped by CSU 85-51 last week, travels to meet another NCAA first round contender, Texas Western, who will take on the Southwest Conference champion March 9 at Lubbock.

Mighty Bill Green looked impressive against the Cadets last week, picking up 30 points. Green has led the Aggies to a 17-4 record for their season.

Air Force will carry an 8-11 record to Regis Wednesday night and travels to Texas Western Saturday.

After bringing a 14-6 record into the Air Force game Wednesday Regis will entertain Denver University Saturday. Denver was inactive last week.

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

DENVER — It could only happen in the Denver Parochial League!

The Pirates of St. Mary's won a basketball game over lowly Mt. Carmel, 14-2, in an "encounter" that saw the Eagles only take three shots thruout the contest. It was quite obvious that Mt. Carmel team didn't want to take another pasting as they did against Annunciation as the latter team scored 100 points in that game. So they elected to take the easy route to defeat and played a stalling game while the mighty Pirates stood by like wooden Indians and accepted the stalemate merely for the sake of trying to win their first league title in the school's history.

Annunciation moved into second place with a 12-4 record after their stunning victory over Mullen while the Pirates control the top spot with 14-2.

Sunday's "Victory" over Mt Carmel automatically presented the Bucs with at least a tie for the loop title even if the Pirates drop their next two encounters against Regis next Friday and Cathedral on Sunday. Both games will be plyed at the Pirate gym.

After two minutes of shoddy performances on the part of both teams Sunday, St. Mary's finally got on the scoreboard. But to the bewilderment of the Pirates and the spectators that's the only scoring either team did in the first period as the little men from Mt. Carmel went thru their passing maneuvers like puppets; undaunted by the harassment of the displeased basketball spectators.

The second period was a reinactment of the previous quarter with the Eagles freezing the ball, altho Mickey Elliott and Richie Jewett wakened from their trance in time to break up the monotonous stalling to rally along with towering "Big John" O'Connell to net the Pirates a whopping six points in the second period.

Spectators welcomed the intermission period for a change of pace at the refreshment stand as the "game" halftime score was 8-0 in favor of the Colorado Springs team. During those two periods the Eagles controlled the ball exclusively and daringly took their two shots with less than 10 seconds in both periods.

The second half was a carbon copy of the first two quarters as the persistent Mt. Carmel quintet went thru the motions of a basketball team. Dave Suer proved the Eagles' "hero" in the closing seconds of the third period with a desperation shot that saved his team from being shutout completely.

Everyone in the St. Joseph's gym was sitting on pins and needles awaiting the Pirates to come out of their zone defense coma, which proved useless against the stalling Eagles. But Ed Murphy elected to coast along with his stingy zone defense and allowed the Eagles to make a mocking stock out of the Paroke league leaders.

The game developed into such a ridiculous state that several alert basketball buffs elected to put on their own show. The four youngsters stole the spotlight as they passed the ball around in the stands. This proved more interesting than the main event.

Understandably, the Pirates needed this victory to win at least a tie for the DPL title regardless of the outcome of their next two games against Regis and Cathedral. Perhaps the Bucs aren't capable of playing a man-to-man defense or a press zone defense, but to the sparce audiance they were a laughing stock that represented Colorado Springs and the current DPL leaders.

During the late stages of the encounter, O'Connell and several other Pirates completely gave in to their smaller opponents and all but walked off the court.

Scoring-wise, O'Connell "paced" the Pirates with six points, Jewett got four and Rome and Elliott each collected wo points.

After the game the Pirate dressing room was the scene of celebration and bravos for each others' performance instead of a wake; which would rightly be expected if the Bucs realized they were humiliated by such a lesser team. Granted, the Pirates won on the scoreboard but paid an expensive price — they lost their championship pride!

Tigers Travel to Alamosa To Meet Indians Tonight

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writerx

ALAMOSA—Colorado College's basketball team arrived at this southern Colorado outpost today where the Indians of Adams State are prepared to make a last stand in their quest for a Rocky Mountain Conference title.

For a team that played dead for some 11 weeks of a 13 week season, Red Eastlack's Tigers suddenly have a great deal to say about the final outcome of this winter's RMC race. CC snapped a 21 game losing streak in Colorado Springs last Monday and Tuesday by handing league leader Western State a double defeat. Just to prove the Tigers play no favorites, they'd like to come up with at least one victory in the two night stand here, a feat which would hand the crown to the Mountaineers.

Western State and Adams State set up this improbable finish by splitting a two game set in Gunnison last weekend. The series ended WSC's conference schedule and left Adams with a chance to tie for the title if the Indians can sweep this final two game set from CC. The Tigers return home after the series to wind up the season in two contests with Colorado State College Friday and Saturday.

Regardless of what occurs here, the Tigers cannot hope to escape the cellar this season but a strong finish could signal better days ahead when a new campaign opens next December. Eastlack feels the club has a good chance of downing CSC this weekend but the team would probably be willing to settle for a split here. Even that will be difficult to attain with the Indians backed against the wall.

More NCAA Berths Filled

By JIM HACLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cincinnati has won its shot at a third consecutive national college basketball championship and the line of challengers to the mighty Bearcats is gradually growing longer.

Arizone State, St. Joseph's of Philadelphia and Texas captured conference titles Saturday night with them, automatic berths in the NCAA tournament. In addition, all 10 at-large spots in the coast-to-coast classic have been filled, with Pitt clinching the last one Saturday night.

Still to be settled in the closing two weeks of the regular season are no less than 11 conference races, with NCAA trips contingent upon each. Some of these league battles are snarled to a fare-thee-well, promising a scramble of down to the wire finishes—and perhaps a playoff or two to get into the national playoffs.

The other big post-season affair—the National Invitation—may wait until the conference races are decided before naming the last few clubs to its field. The 26th NIT will be a 12-team tourney of major independents and perhaps as many as three conference entries.

St. Joseph's swept to its fifth straight Middle Atlantic crown with a 66-49 victory over LaSalle, at the Philadelphia Palestra. Texas' 92-76 decision at Southern Methodist and Texas Tech's 74-73 home victory over Rice combined to clinch the Southwest championship for the Longhorns.

Cincinnati, its Missouri Valley title already secure, had a scare at home in a 55-54 squeaker over Tulsa. The top-ranked bearcats had to come from 14 points back in the second half to get their 21st victory in 22 starts.

Wichita, seventh-ranked and an NIT entry, was topped at Bradley 65-64 in another Missouri Valley game.

Duke's Blue Devils, No. 2 nationally, completed a perfect regular season in the Atlantic Coast Conference, rapping North Carolina 106-93. Art Heyman thrilled the home crowd with 40 points and 24 rebounds as Duke won its 15th straight and finshed with a 14-0 mark in the ACC. The conference tourney starts Thursday with the Blue Devils a heavy choice to take the title and the NCAA spot.

The Southern Conference has its three-day tourney beginning Thursday, with regular season champion West Virginia the choice. The Mountaineers crushed George Washington 104-86 Saturday night at West Virginia.

Two NCAA-bound independents in the nation's top ten posted Saturday night victories. Third-ranked Loyola of Chicago got by at Houston 62-58 and 10th-ranked New York University won at St. Francis of New York, 76-62.

BIG TEN—Ohio State and Illinoise at the top with 8-2 records, Minnesota and Indiana longshots. The fifth-ranked Buckeyes won their 47th in a row at home Saturday, 83-70 over Iowa, and the sixth-ranked Illini also won at home, 89-77 against Iowa.

BIG EIGHT — Kansas State ahead at 8-2 but Colorado, Oklahoma State, Iowa State close behing. The Wildcats jumped in front by winning at home over Iowa State 62-50.

SOUTHEASTERN — Eighth ranked Mississippi State, 99-64 winner over LSU, in the lead but unlikely to go to the NCAA because of policy against integrated athletics. Ninth-ranked Auburn, 78-59 loser at Kentucky, and Georgia Tech tied for second. Tech beat Georgia 66-58 in overtime.

IVY LEAGUE — Penn and Princeton at 9-3 and Yale at 8-3 the contenders, with definite chance of a three-way tie. All three won Saturday, Princeton 74-60 at Harvard, Penn 82-63 at Dartmouth and Yale 61-60 in overtime at Cornell.

MID - AMERICAN — Bowling Green and Toledo 8-3, with Ohio University and Miami of Ohio 8-4 and finished with conference play. Bowling Green entertains Marshall tonight while Toledo plays at Western Michigan Wednesday. On Saturday, Bowling green downed Western Michigan and Toledo clipped Marshall 63-58.

WEST COAST ATHLETIC — San Francisco leads at 7-1, St. Mary's is 7-2 and Santa Clara 6-2. San Francisco's four remaining games include two with Santa Clara and one with St. Mary's, meaning the Dons will have to win it on their own. St. Mary's beat Los Angeles Loyola 81-74 Saturday, Santa Clara whipped San Jose 77-57.

OHIO VALLEY—Morehead, 8-3, winds up at Eastern Kentucky Tuesday night, Tennessee Tech finished 8-4 with an 84-61 romp over Murray Saturday.

YANKEE — Rhode Island, 8-1 and Connecticut, 7-1, tangle at the Uconn court Saturday, Connecticut also has a home conference game Tuesday, with New Hampshire.

Champion Charges Butting

Fullmer-Tiger Rematch Anticipated for June

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Gene Fullmer remains unfinished business for middleweight champion Dick Tiger today—but settlement is expected in a big-money match in June.

Figures in the $100,000 bracket are flying as fast as the punches thrown Saturday night in Convention Center where Tiger retained his crown on a draw decision after 15 rounds of battling.

Fullmer, of West Jordan, Utah, who lost his title to Tiger in San Francisco last Oct. 23, declared, "I'm ready for the rematch. I thought I beat him Saturday night and there's no reason I can't do it again."

Tiger thought he had won. He said he was shocked at referee Vern Bybee, who scored it a 69-69 draw while judge John Romero scored for Fullmer, 70-68. Judge Pat Diskin ruled for Tiger, 71-67. The Associated Press had it even at 70-70 under the Nevada scoring system of five points to the winner of a round and four or less to the loser.

At a news conference Tiger criticized the man who fought him to a standoff.

"He shouldn't use tricks," Tiger said of Fullmer's strategy of jabbing and dancing away. "I am the champion. I'll never use tricks."

In the San Francisco fight, Fullmer employed his usual style. He bulled his way in—and took a licking. So he switched styles for this one.

Mentioned as possible sites for the third match in the series are Los Angeles, Las Vegas, New York, Bozeman, Mont., Edmonton, Alta., Syracuse, N.Y., and even the champion's home country, Nigeria.

The draw was the third for Fullmer in championship fights. While he held the crown, he fought even matches against Joey Giardello and Sugar Ray Robinson.

Tiger was unhappy about several things. Pointing to a bandage on a cut above his eye, he declared, "It was his head that did that."

The champion claimed he scored a knockdown in the ninth round. The extra points might have given him the fight but the referee ruled that Fullmer had slipped.

At one point Tiger tossed Fullmer bodily from the ring. The champ charged, "He was using elbows and butts so I threw him out."

"He just got a little flustered," Fullmer said.

DU Icers Retain Hockey Lead

By United Press International

Denver University played it rough and tumble to keep the undisputed lead in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association last week with a 4-1 victory over Michigan Tech.

North Dakota, following the Pioneers with 10-5-1 for the season, lost two to the DU icers on the previous weekend but managed to down Minnesota last week 4-3.

Elsewhere last week, Michigan State kept Michigan solidly in the cellar, 3-13-2, with a 2-1 win.

Colorado College, 6-8, was idle last week, still savoring their Feb. 9 6-5 victory over Denver. It was the first time they beat Denver in 22 tries.

Denver's tough stance Saturday came after losing 3-1 to Tech Friday night. The third-period action may have set a record for penalties in league play.

In all 46 minutes in penalties were charged; 25 against Tech and 21 against DU. Denver marked the one-millionth paid admission Saturday.

Tiny Lund Wins Daytona Race

Lund, driving a 1963 Ford to which he had been assigned only 10 days ago, won the fifth annual Daytona 500 late model stock car race in a late-charging dash that carried him to the biggest pay window of his life.

He finished the long grind completely out of gas, going the last quarter mile on pure momentum. But he finished 24 seconds ahead of Fred Lorenzen of Charlotte, N.C., and 28 seconds ahead of Ned Jarrett of Conover, N.C.

Seven of the nine fastest miles in thoroughbred racing history have been run in June.

K-State Atop Big Eight Loop But Faces CU, O-State

By JIM VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Kansas State is alone at the top in Big Eight basketball for the first time all season with a six-game winning streak, but coach Tex Winter's team is in an uneasy position because the schedule favors Colorado and Oklahoma State.

K-State dealt Iowa State's title hopes a severe blow with a 62-50 victory at Manhattan Saturday night. It marked Winter's 200th coaching victory—the first 25 in two seasons at Marquette.

This left K-State with an 8-2 record. Colorado's defending champions revived with a 49-40 victory over Oklahoma State at Boulder and moved up to second at 8-3. Oklahoma State is third at 7-3, Iowa State 8-4.

Colorado is favored to knock Iowa State out of the race tonight at Boulder and extend its home court winning streak to 24 games. Oklahoma State should get by last-place Nebraska at Lincoln and stay alive.

The race seems certain to go down to the final night, March 9, when Colorado plays at K-State and Kansas at Oklahoma State. A championship tie is a strong possibility. A playoff then would be set by the conference to determine its NCAA representative.

K-State's task is a hard one because the Wildcats face a difficult weekend road trip to meet Oklahoma State at Stillwater Saturday and Iowa State at Ames next Monday. Before then, the Wildcats should get by Kansas at Manhattan Wednesday.

In other games this week, Missouri plays at Kansas Friday and Oklahoma at Nebraska Saturday. The Sooners clinched at least a tie for fifth place by edging Missouri 68-67 at Columbia Saturday on a free throw by little Eddie Evans with one second left.

Kansas trailed by five points at half time but came back to hand Nebraska its 10th straight defeat, 45-39 at Lincoln.

Colorado's run of seven points midway in the last half made it 43-28 and broke open the game. Ken Charlton, Colorado's Big Eight scoring leader with two bad knees, was held to eight points and his average fell to 20.0.

Willie Murrell of K-State had 21 and is a close second at 19.0, followed by George Unseld, Kansas, at 17.3, and Larry Hawk, Oklahoma State, 17.0. Hawk was limited to four points by Colorado.

Bob Price led Missouri with 27 points but Evans stole the ball from him as the Tigers were playing for one closing shot.

Sun Devils Win First WAC Title

By DICK STUART
Associated Press Sports Writer

Arizona State University's basketball team has won the first Western Athletic Conference championship, and now points toward another goal.

The Sun Devils, 22-2 overall and ranked fourth nationally, need only victories over Creighton tonight and Arizona next Monday to better last season's 23-4 record.

Victories No. 21 and 22 came last weekend at the expense of Wyoming and New Mexigo, giving A-State an 8-1 WAC mark with just Arizona to play.

Brigham Young University's title hopes vanished last Saturday when the Cougars dropped a 106-100 decision to Utah in over time. BYU is in second place at 5-3.

A-State stopped Wyoming by limiting sharpshooting Flynn Robinson, the WAC's top scorer, to four points the first half. Robinson broke loose for 23 after intermission, but 21 points by 6-foot-8 Art Becker and 20 by 6-5 Joe Caldwell saved A-State's 82-72 victory.

New Mex	2	6	.250	14	9	.609	1471	1317

The same script was used against New Mexico, with Becker and Caldwell reversing their point totals and keeping 6-8 Ira Harge in check the first half for a 76-62 victory.

Harge had to battle two and three defenders to finish with 22 points. Teammate Cide Williams also had 22.

Arizona climbed from the WAC cellar with victories over New Mexico 49-46, and Wyoming 84-63. New Mexico's losses to Arizona and A-State dropped the Lobos into last placed.

Utah played its finest game of the season against BYU with Bo Crain's 21 points and Allen Homes 19 overcoming a 24-point showing by Cougar senior Gary Batchelor.

This week, Utah, BYU, Wyoming and New Mexico battle for second place in the final WAC standings.

The schedule:

Monday—Creighton at Arizona State.

Former Kansas Football Star Killed in Accident

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Navy Lt (JG) Samuel W. Simpson, 24, an outstanding football player at the University of Kansas in 1961, was killed Sunday in an automobile crash on the King's River bridge. He had been based at Lemoore Naval Air Station and formerly lived at Worland Wyo.

Highway Patrol Sgt. C. R. Lindholm said Simpson, alone in a small sports car, was traveling fast on Highway 198 when his car veered on the bridge and smashed headon into an approaching highway patrol car occupied by two officers.

Patrolman Aubrey Carter, 31, of Hanford, was knocked unconscious. His partner, Ronald Stroll, 33, of Lemoore, was cut and bruised.

Simpson's car bounced off the patrol vehicle and hit a bridge railing. He was thrown into the river. Strolled pulled the body out. He said Simpson apparently was killed by the crash impact.

Simpson was the son of Mrs. Anna Pearl Simpson, a chief telephone operator at Worland.

Alal Brooks Wins Singapore Tourney

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Alal Brooks, 21, of Johannesburg, South Africa, shot a nine-under-par 64 to win the Singapore Open golf championship Sunday. Brooks finished with a 72-hole total of 276.

Beatty to Rest After Fast Mile

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)—After running four of the six indoor under 4-minute miles on record, Jim Beatty has decided to leave the lodge for the rest of the indoor season and his rivals couldn't have had happier news.

Beatty, the barrel-chested little Los Angeles Track Club ace, whipped to a 3:59 flat mile in the National AAU track and field championships last Saturday and he wasn't even pushing. Last year he went under 4 minutes twice and less than two weeks ago, he lowered the indoor record to 3:58.6, with young Tom O'Hara of Loyola of Baltimore chasing him home.

O'Hara also broke the 4-minute mark. Last year, Siegfried Herrmann of East Germany made the club.

How far down can Beatty bring the indoor record? The possibilities are fantastic. Consider that he had to lead the pack all the way in the AAU mile. This is distasteful to top runners. They like someone to pull them.

Also consider that Beatty hit the three-quarters in exactly 3 minutes. He is capable of running the last quarter under 57 seconds. With someone to pull him out and a fast final quarter, 3:56 does not seem beyond him.

"I think I can hit 3:57," said the 28-year-old insurance adjuster. "But I'm not going to run the mile any more this winter. I'm going after Peter Snell's 8:34.4 2-mile record in the Chicago Daily News Relays."

Beatty already holds the world outdoor record — indoor records are recognized only in the United States—of 8:29.8.

"I wish some of the other guys in the AAU race had pushed me in that last quarter," Beatty said. "It might have been better."

Actually, Wilold Baran of Poland kept after him for three quarters. But he couldn't keep up the killing pace and wound up fourth in 4:02.6. Jim Grelle, Beatty's Los Angeles Track Club teammate, was second in 4 minutes flat and Bill Dotson of Lawrence, Kan., was third in 4:00.2.

The biggest disappointment in the meet was Pentii Nikula of Finland, who cleared a fantastic 16 feet 8¾ inches in the pole three weeks ago. Nikula just got over 15 feet after missing it twice, passed at 15-6 and failed at 16 even. Dave Tork won at 15-6 on fewer misses over Rolando Cruz, John Belitza and Henry Wadsworth.

Valery Brumel of the Soviet Union whipped John Thomas again, clearing 7-3½ in the high jump, a half-inch under his record, to 7 even for the Boston University senior. Brumel's teammate, Igor Ter-Ovanesyan turned back Ralph Boston in the broad jump for the third time in three meetings this winter, 26-6½ to 25-9¾.

Lt. Jack Yerman of the U.S. Army won the 600 in 1:09.4, just a tenth of a second over the indoor record, and Bill Crothers of the University of Toronto kept his winter record clean with a 2:09.8 victory in the 1,000.

Laker Fans Rough Up Referee

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some Los Angeles pro basketball fans apparently aren't content with deriding the referee when their team loses.

Take Sunday night in Los Angeles when the invading Boston Celtics routed the Lakers 119-109 in the National Basketball Association. At halftime with Boston ahead 66-51 some in the crowd of 14,828 trapped referee Norm Drucker near the dressing room. He was mauled and kicked in the shins before rescued by police.

Drucker said he wasn't hurt enough to keep him from officiating in the second half. He had been roundly booed by some Laker rooters because of calls they thought favored the Celtics.

In NBA Sunday afternoon games the Detroit Pistons beat the Cincinnati Royals 119-110 at Baltimore, the St. Louis Hawks drubbed the San Francisco Warriors 127-106 and the Syracuse Nats whipped the New York Knicks 143-126. Detroit beat Cincinnati 105-102 and San Francisco downed Chicago 92-88 saturday night.

Mays Remains Enthusiastic Despite Tiring '62 Season

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wondrous Willie Mays is nearing his 32nd birthday and the bone-tiring 1962 campaign is still a vivid memory, but he's heading into his 13th major league baseball season with characteristic exuberance.

"It's new year — let's go," Yipped Willie Sunday as he checked into the San Francisco Giants' spring camp at Casa Grande, Ariz., and took his first cuts at bat.

Willie moved into the exclusive $100,000 salary class this year after sparking the Giants to the National League pennant last season. He proved a major key to San Francisco's success, despite a mid-September collapse from exhaustion that kept him out of three vital games in the drive to catch the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Joe Pepitone, heir apparent to Bill Skowron as the New York Yankees' first baseman, may have inherited something else from the Moose—back trouble.

Skowron, traded to the Dodgers this winter, was bothered by an aching back off-and-on while with the Yankees.

Skowron, signed with the Dodgers for an estimated $30,000. Outfielder Frank Howard, the only player on the club unsigned, has agreed to terms verbally.

Two transplanted sluggers went after the ball with a vengeance Sunday. Dick Stuart, swapped from Pittsburgh to Boston, rapped eight out of the park in his first Red Sox drill and John Orsino, traded by the Giants to Baltimore, stole the show in Orioles batting practice with four over the fence.

The colorful outfielder, a .322 hitter for Cleveland in 1961, batted .244 last season. It is believed he took about a $4,000 cut in pay, to $38,500.

Art Wall Regains Touch to Win Caracas Tourney

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Art Wall, the pro from Pocono Manor, Pa., who has been plagued by a variety of ailments in recent years, may have regained the touch that made him golf's top money winner and won him the U.S. Masters title in 1959.

"I feel now I have broken the barrier and my luck will change," the 39-year-old Wall said Sunday after his first tourney victory in 2½ years. He won the Caracas Open with a 72-hole total of 274, 6-under-par.

Wall, whose last tourney victory was in the Canadian Open in July 1960, stood off the pressure of fast-closing young George Knudson of Toronto and put together a 1-under-par 69 on the final round to go with previous rounds of 67, 70 and 68.

Wall, who topped the money-winners with $59,167.60 in 1959 and was the PGA's "Golfer of the Year" that year, picked up $1,300 for his victory on the third stop of the Caribbean tour.

Knudson, who was second with a 276, won $1,100 and moved into the lead for the cup, emblematic of the over-all winner on the tour with 75 points. He had Sunday's best round, a 66, closing from five strokes back.

Austria's Gruber Wins Marathon Race

NEW YORK (UPI) — Austria's Adolph Gruber, a three-time Olympian and twice European champion, won the 26-mile, 385-yard Cherry Tree marathon Sunday. Gruber, who was timed in 2:37.40, finished about 350 yards ahead of John Gerlepp of the Millrose Athletic Club in the run through the streets of the Bronx.

Nebraska, Mizzou Pose Threat to Kansas Squad

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Talented Nebraska, strong on the track but weak in field events, and a balanced Missouri team will challenge defending champion Kansas for the Big Eight indoor track crown at Kansas City Friday and Saturday.

Nebraska scored 30 points in the high and low hurdles and 60-yard dash last year in losing the title to Kansas by less than one point. The Cornhuskers will have to score heavily in these three events and get maximum production from distance runner Mike Fleming to win again.

Missouri has strength all along the line. The Tigers won't be forced to double their best men in two events as often as Nebraska and Kansas to win. Gregory Pelster, middle distance standout, is top man.

Kansas has reasonable balance but is well below its traditional power in the distance runs. Best Jayhawker bets for gold medals are Yul Yost, 32, a Yugloslavian refugee, who has thrown 57 feet 3¾ inches in the shot put, and Floyd Manning, who went 15-1½ in the pole vault Saturday. Oklahoma's outdoor shot put champion, Dick Inman, has knee troubles.

Most of all Kansas lacks—for the first time in Bill Easton's 16 years as coach—a single standout runner who can run where most needed and beat any opposition in the conference. Kansas has won 11 of the last 13 championships.

Pelster is a good bet for a new meet record in the 600-yard run. He holds the mark of 11:11.1 set last year and surpassed this with 1:10.6 in the Michigan State Relays this year.

The other meet record most in danger is 6 feet 7½ inches in the high jump by Missouri's Bob Lang in 1956.

The defending champion, Iowa State's Larry Eilért, already has jumped 6-7¾. So has Missouri's Ross Tunnell. Leander Durley, Colorado sophomore, went 6-10 as a Freshman. Russ Laverty of Oklahoma State has jumped 6-7.

Other returning champions are Fleming in the two mile, teammate Fred Wilke in the 60-yard low hurdles, Kirk Hagen of Kansas in the 1,000-yard run and Charles Strong of Oklahoma State a double winner in the 440-yard dash and broad jump. Strong has been slowed by a pulled groin muscle and Hagen by illness.

Wilke will be competing against a strong field. Fleming may pass up the two-mile and go for a double in the mile and 1,000. The mile favorite will be Kansas State's Pat McNeal, who has run 4:12.7.

Gale Sayers, Kansas all-conference football halfback must place high in two events for the Jayhawks to stay in the title picture. Sayers has a 6.2 clocking in the dash, compared to the meet record of 6.1. But he will have fierce competition in the low hurdles and broad jump and his competition in these two events could hurt his dash chances.

Canadian Team Wins Ski Relay

CRESTED BUTTE, Colo. (AP)—Canada's four cross country skiers won the 10-kilometer relay Sunday in the finale of the North American Nordic Championships.

The Canadian quartet of Don MacLeod, Erving Servold, Franz Portmann and Clarence Servold, skied the arduous route in 3 hours 2 minutes 38, a full 12 minutes ahead of runnerup Western State College of Gunnison, Colo.

Western's team of Eddie Demers, Benny New, Jim Matson and John Matson was clocked in 3:14.42. Colorado University was third in 3:19.35.

Tom Upham, CU sophomore from Auburn, Maine, captured the combined title for best all-around performance in cross-country and jumping. The other combined placings were Erving Servold, Ottawa, Canada, John Matson, Western State, and Jennings Cress of Western State.

In Southern Rocky Mountain Ski Association competition, Bud Werner of Colorado University twisted through a 32-gate course in 1 minute 32.4 seconds to win the giant slalom championship. The trail had a drop of 1800 feet. Bill Marolt of CU was second in 1:36.3 and Kenneth Phelps of Western State was third in 1:37.5.

Colorado University's Barbara Ferries captured the women's SRMSA giant slalom title with a time of 1 minute 51 seconds over a shorter course. Teammate Sandra Shellworth was second in 1:55.2 and another CU co-ed, Linda Fisher, was third in 2:31.8.

Giant slalom:

Women's A Class—1. Barbara Ferries, Colorado, 1 minute 51 seconds. 2. Sandra Shellworth, Colorado, 0:55.2. 3. Linda Fisher, Colorado, 2:31.8. 4. Judy Melling, Colorado, 2:34.9. 5. Kristina Horn, Colorado, disqualified.

Men's A Class—1. Bud Werner, Colorado, 1 minute 32.4. 2. Bill Marolt, Colorado, 1:36.3. 3. Kenneth Phelps, Western State, 1:37.5. 4. Dave Gorsuch, Western State, 1:38.6. 5. Spider Sabich, Colorado, 1:39.4. 6. Jim Heuga, Colorado, 1:41.5. 7. Art Bookstrom, Denver, 1:43.1. 8. Jim Barrows, Colorado, 1:43.8. 9. Bill Sweitzer, Western State, 1:45.3. 10. Roche Bush, Colorado, 1:47.0.

10-kilometer 4-member team results:

1. Canada (Don MacLeod, Erving Servold, Franz Portmann, Clarence Servold), 3 hours 2 minutes 38 seconds. 2. Western State College (Eddie Demers, Benny New, Jim Matson, John Matson) 3:14.42. 3. Colorado University (John Southard, Tom Upham, Mike Canatsey, Mike Gallagher), 3:19.5. 4. Southern Rocky Mountain Ski Association (Melvin Matis, Ron Grifford, Mike Elliott, Peter Lahderpera), 3:21.12. 5. Army biathalon team. 6. Western State College No. 2. 7. Colorado University No. 2. 8. Central United States Ski Association. 9. Air Force Academy.

Sweden's Sjoeberg Cops Ski Meet Sunday

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. (UPI)—Sweden's Kjell Sjoeberg, currently undefeated on his American tour, captured the open invitational ski meet Sunday with leaps of 197 and 211 feet.

Harry Bergqvist, who was unseated as Sweden's best jumper by Sjoeberg, finished second with jumps of 177 and 183 feet on the 65-meter Class A event.

U.S. Skating Champion Litz Injures Ankle

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Tommy Litz, the 17-year-old U.S. men's senior figure skating champion, hobbled by an ankle injury, plans to attend the world championships this week in Italy. However, his father says it is doubtful he will be able to compete.

Floyd Litz, the father, said Sunday, Tommy and he plan to leave New York this evening for the championships which begin Thursday at Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy.

"We're going to go over," the senior Litz said, "but we don't know if he can skate."

The ankle was "improved tremendously," the father said, but whether enough to allow the boy to skate is another question.

Rice Gridder Fails to Report Cage Bribe Offer

HOUSTON (UPI)—A Rice University football player has lost his scholarship because he failed to report the attempted bribe of two Rice basketball players.

Athletic Director Jess Neely said Sunday that Louis Mazzurana of San Antonio knew of the attempted bribe, but did not report it.

Mazzurana, a tackle on the Rice varsity, was the second student penalized in connection with the reported bribe made to basketball guards Herb Steinkamp and Dick Cramer.

A sophomore student whose identity was not divulged, was expelled for offering the players $500 each to shave points in last week's Baylor-Rice game.

Neely said Mazzurana's scholarship was lifted, "because he knew about this thing (the offer) and did not report it."

Mazzurana's mother said in San Antonio that her son had been a roommate of Steinkamp.

Steinkamp and Cramer said the offer was made Feb. 14. They said the expelled student offered them the money to keep Rice's margin of victory under 14 points over Baylor. Rice won the game by four points.

The basketball players reported the bribe offer to trainer Eddie Wojecke on Feb. 15 and to coach Johnnie Frankie the next day.

Mazzurana retained his eligibility to play football next season, but he would have to play without a scholarship.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation entered the bribe case to determine whether out-of-state connections were involved. It would involve a federal violation if the bribe offer could be connected to gamblers whose operations crossed state lines.

Harris County Dist. Atty. Frank Briscoe said he would probably take no action unless he received a complaint. Rice University has not filed a complaint under state law.

The New York Mets were in 38 one-run games last season. They dropped 30.

Sun Devils Win First WAC Title

By DICK STUART
Associated Press Sports Writer

Arizona State University's basketball team has won the first Western Athletic Conference championship, and now points toward another goal.

The Sun Devils, 22-2 overall and ranked fourth nationally, need only victories over Creighton tonight and Arizona next Monday to better last season's 23-4 record.

Victories No. 21 and 22 came last weekend at the expense of Wyoming and New Mexico, giving A-State an 8-1 WAC mark with just Arizona to play.

Brigham Young University's title hopes vanished last Saturday when the Cougars dropped a 106-100 decision to Utah in over time. BYU is in second place at 5-3.

A-State stopped Wyoming by limiting sharpshooting Flynn Robinson, the WAC's top scorer, to four points the first half. Robinson broke loose for 23 after intermission, but 21 points by 6-foot-8 Art Becker and 20 by 6-5 Joe Caldwell saved A-State's 82-72 victory.

WESTERN ATHLETIC

	Conference			All Games
	W	L	Pct	W	L	Pct	Pts	OP
Ariz. St.	8	1	.889	22	2	.917	1947	1650
BYU	5	3	.625	11	13	.458	1846	1877
Utah	4	4	.500	11	13	.458	1738	1772
Wyoming	3	5	.375	11	13	.458	1685	1786

New Mex	2	6	.250	14	9	.609	1471	1317

The same script was used against New Mexico, with Becker and Caldwell reversing their point totals and keeping 6-8 Ira Harge in check the first half for a 76-62 victory.

Harge had to battle two and three defenders to finish with 22 points. Teammate Cide Williams also had 22.

Arizona climbed from the WAC cellar with victories over New Mexico 49-46, and Wyoming 84-63. New Mexico's losses to Arizona and A-State dropped the Lobos into last placed.

Utah played its finest game of the season against BYU with Bo Crain's 21 points and Allen Homes 19 overcoming a 24-point showing by Cougar senior Gary Batchelor.

This week, Utah, BYU, Wyoming and New Mexico battle for second place in the final WAC standings.

The schedule:

Monday—Creighton at Arizona State.

Beatty to Rest After Fast Mile

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)—After running four of the six indoor under 4-minute miles on record, Jim Beatty has decided to leave the lodge for the rest of the indoor season and his rivals couldn't have had happier news.

Beatty, the barrel-chested little Los Angeles Track Club ace, whipped to a 3:59 flat mile in the National AAU track and field championships last Saturday and he wasn't even pushing. Last year he went under 4 minutes twice and less than two weeks ago, he lowered the indoor record to 3:58.6, with young Tom O'Hara of Loyola of Baltimore chasing him home.

O'Hara also broke the 4-minute mark. Last year, Siegfried Herrmann of East Germany made the club.

How far down can Beatty bring the indoor record? The possibilities are fantastic. Consider that he had to lead the pack all the way in the AAU mile. This is distasteful to top runners. They like someone to pull them.

Also consider that Beatty hit the three-quarters in exactly 3 minutes. He is capable of running the last quarter under 57 seconds. With someone to pull him out and a fast final quarter, 3:56 does not seem beyond him.

"I think I can hit 3:57," said the 28-year-old insurance adjuster. "But I'm not going to run the mile any more this winter. I'm going after Peter Snell's 8:34.4 2-mile record in the Chicago Daily News Relays."

Beatty already holds the world outdoor record — indoor records are recognized only in the United States—of 8:29.8.

"I wish some of the other guys in the AAU race had pushed me in that last quarter," Beatty said. "It might have been better."

Actually, Wilold Baran of Poland kept after him for three quarters. But he couldn't keep up the killing pace and wound up fourth in 4:02.6. Jim Grelle, Beatty's Los Angeles Track Club teammate, was second in 4 minutes flat and Bill Dotson of Lawrence, Kan., was third in 4:00.2.

The biggest disappointment in the meet was Pentii Nikula of Finland, who cleared a fantastic 16 feet 8¾ inches in the pole three weeks ago. Nikula just got over 15 feet after missing it twice, passed at 15-6 and failed at 16 even. Dave Tork won at 15-6 on fewer misses over Rolando Cruz, John Belitza and Henry Wadsworth.

Valery Brumel of the Soviet Union whipped John Thomas again, clearing 7-3½ in the high jump, a half-inch under his record, to 7 even for the Boston University senior. Brumel's teammate, Igor Ter-Ovanesyan turned back Ralph Boston in the broad jump for the third time in three meetings this winter, 26-6½ to 25-9¾.

Lt. Jack Yerman of the U.S. Army won the 600 in 1:09.4, just a tenth of a second over the indoor record, and Bill Crothers of the University of Toronto kept his winter record clean with a 2:09.8 victory in the 1,000.

Laker Fans Rough Up Referee

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some Los Angeles pro basketball fans apparently aren't content with deriding the referee when their team loses.

Take Sunday night in Los Angeles when the invading Boston Celtics routed the Lakers 119-109 in the National Basketball Association. At halftime with Boston ahead 66-51 some in the crowd of 14,828 trapped referee Norm Drucker near the dressing room. He was mauled and kicked in the shins before rescued by police.

Drucker said he wasn't hurt enough to keep him from officiating in the second half. He had been roundly booed by some Laker rooters because of calls they thought favored the Celtics.

In NBA Sunday afternoon games the Detroit Pistons beat the Cincinnati Royals 119-110 at Baltimore, the St. Louis Hawks drubbed the San Francisco Warriors 127-106 and the Syracuse Nats whipped the New York Knicks 143-126. Detroit beat Cincinnati 105-102 and San Francisco downed Chicago 92-88 saturday night.

Mays Remains Enthusiastic Despite Tiring '62 Season

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wondrous Willie Mays is nearing his 32nd birthday and the bone-tiring 1962 campaign is still a vivid memory, but he's heading into his 13th major league baseball season with characteristic exuberance.

"It's new year — let's go," Yipped Willie Sunday as he checked into the San Francisco Giants' spring camp at Casa Grande, Ariz., and took his first cuts at bat.

Willie moved into the exclusive $100,000 salary class this year after sparking the Giants to the National League pennant last season. He proved a major key to San Francisco's success, despite a mid-September collapse from exhaustion that kept him out of three vital games in the drive to catch the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Joe Pepitone, heir apparent to Bill Skowron as the New York Yankees' first baseman, may have inherited something else from the Moose—back trouble.

Skowron, traded to the Dodgers this winter, was bothered by an aching back off-and-on while with the Yankees.

Skowron, signed with the Dodgers for an estimated $30,000. Outfielder Frank Howard, the only player on the club unsigned, has agreed to terms verbally.

Two transplanted sluggers went after the ball with a vengeance Sunday. Dick Stuart, swapped from Pittsburgh to Boston, rapped eight out of the park in his first Red Sox drill and John Orsino, traded by the Giants to Baltimore, stole the show in Orioles batting practice with four over the fence.

Jim Piersall, reportedly at loggerheads with the Washington Senators over 1963 salary, strolled into camp Sunday and signed after only a brief talk with George Selkirk, the club's general manager.

The colorful outfielder, a .322 hitter for Cleveland in 1961, batted .244 last season. It is believed he took about a $4,000 cut in pay, to $38,500.

Former Kansas Football Star Killed in Accident

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Navy Lt. (JG) Samuel W. Simpson, 24, an outstanding football player at the University of Kansas in 1961, was killed Sunday in an automobile crash on the King's River bridge. He had been based at Lemoore Naval Air Station and formerly lived at Worland Wyo.

Highway Patrol Sgt. C. R. Lindholm said Simpson, alone in a small sports car, was traveling fast on Highway 198 when his car veered on the bridge and smashed headon into an approaching highway patrol car occupied by two officers.

Patrolman Aubrey Carter, 31, of Hanford, was knocked unconscious. His partner, Ronald Stroll, 33, of Lemoore, was cut and bruised.

Simpson's car bounced off the patrol vehicle and hit a bridge railing. He was thrown into the river. Strolled pulled the body out. He said Simpson apparently was killed by the crash impact.

Simpson was the son of Mrs. Anna Pearl Simpson, a chief telephone operator at Worland.

Alal Brooks Wins Singapore Tourney

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Alal Brooks, 21, of Johannesburg, South Africa, shot a nine-under-par 64 to win the Singapore Open golf championship Sunday. Brooks finished with a 72-hole total of 276.

Art Wall Regains Touch to Win Caracas Tourney

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Art Wall, the pro from Pocono Manor, Pa., who has been plagued by a variety of ailments in recent years, may have regained the touch that made him golf's top money winner and won him the U.S. Masters title in 1959.

"I feel now I have broken the barrier and my luck will change," the 39-year-old Wall said Sunday after his first tourney victory in 2½ years. He won the Caracas Open with a 72-hole total of 274, 6-under-par.

Wall, whose last tourney victory was in the Canadian Open in July 1960, stood off the pressure of fast-closing young George Knudson of Toronto and put together a 1-under-par 69 on the final round to go with previous rounds of 67, 70 and 68.

Wall, who topped the money-winners with $59,167.60 in 1959 and was the PGA's "Golfer of the Year" that year, picked up $1,300 for his victory on the third stop of the Caribbean tour.

Knudson, who was second with a 276, won $1,100 and moved into the lead for the cup, emblematic of the over-all winner on the tour with 75 points. He had Sunday's best round, a 66, closing from five strokes back.

Austria's Gruber Wins Marathon Race

NEW YORK (UPI) — Austria's Adolph Gruber, a three-time Olympian and twice European champion, won the 26-mile, 385-yard Cherry Tree marathon Sunday. Gruber, who was timed in 2:37.40, finished about 350 yards ahead of John Gerlepp of the Millrose Athletic Club in the run through the streets of the Bronx.

Nebraska, Mizzou Pose Threat to Kansas Squad

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Talented Nebraska, strong on the track but weak in field events, and a balanced Missouri team will challenge defending champion Kansas for the Big Eight indoor track crown at Kansas City Friday and Saturday.

Nebraska scored 30 points in the high and low hurdles and 60-yard dash last year in losing the title to Kansas by less than one point. The Cornhuskers will have to score heavily in these three events and get maximum production from distance runner Mike Fleming to win again.

Missouri has strength all along the line. The Tigers won't be forced to double their best men in two events as often as Nebraska and Kansas to win. Gregory Pelster, middle distance standout, is top man.

Kansas has reasonable balance but is well below its traditional power in the distance runs. Best Jayhawker bets for gold medals are Yul Yost, 32, a Yugloslavian refugee, who has thrown 57 feet 3¼ inches in the shot put, and Floyd Manning, who went 15-1½ in the pole vault Saturday. Oklahoma's outdoor shot put champion, Dick Inman, has knee troubles.

Most of all Kansas lacks—for the first time in Bill Easton's 16 years as coach—a single standout runner who can run where most needed and beat any opposition in the conference. Kansas has won 11 of the last 13 championships.

Pelster is a good bet for a new meet record in the 600-yard run. He holds the mark of 1:11.1 set last year and surpassed this with 1:10.6 in the Michigan State Relays this year.

The other meet record most in danger is 6 feet 7½ inches in the high jump by Missouri's Bob Lang in 1956.

The defending champion, Iowa State's Larry Eilert, already has jumped 6-7¾. So has Missouri's Ross Tunnell. Leander Durley, Colorado sophomore, went 6-10 as a Freshman. Russ Laverty of Oklahoma State has jumped 6-7.

Other returning champions are Fleming in the two mile, teammate Fred Wilke in the 60-yard low hurdles, Kirk Hagen of Kansas in the 1,000-yard run and Charles Strong of Oklahoma State a double winner in the 440-yard dash and broad jump. Strong has been slowed by a pulled groin muscle and Hagen by illness.

Wilke will be competing against a strong field. Fleming may pass up the two-mile and go for a double in the mile and 1,000. The mile favorite will be Kansas State's Pat McNeal, who has run 4:12.7.

Gale Sayers, Kansas all-conference football halfback must place high in two events for the Jayhawks to stay in the title picture. Sayers has a 6.2 clocking in the dash, compared to the meet record of 6.1. But he will have fierce competition in the low hurdles and broad jump and his competition in these two events could hurt his dash chances.

Canadian Team Wins Ski Relay

CRESTED BUTTE, Colo. (AP)—Canada's four cross country skiers won the 10-kilometer relay Sunday in the finale of the North American Nordic Championships.

The Canadian quartet of Don MacLeod, Erving Servold, Franz Portmann and Clarence Servold, skied the arduous route in 3 hours 2 minutes 38, a full 12 minutes ahead of runnerup Western State College of Gunnison, Colo.

Western's team of Eddie Demers, Benny New, Jim Matson and John Matson was clocked in 3:14.42. Colorado University was third in 3:19.35.

Tom Upham, CU sophomore from Auburn, Maine, captured the combined title for best all-around performance in cross-country and jumping. The other combined placings were Erving Servold, Ottawa, Canada, John Matson, Western State, and Jennings Cress of Western State.

In Southern Rocky Mountain Ski Association competition, Bud Werner of Colorado University twisted through a 32-gate course in 1 minute 32.4 seconds to win the giant slalom championship. The trail had a drop of 1800 feet. Bill Marolt of CU was second in 1:36.3 and Kenneth Phelps of Western State was third in 1:37.5.

Colorado University's Barbara Ferries captured the women's SRMSA giant slalom title with a time of 1 minute 51 seconds over a shorter course. Teammate Sandra Shellworth was second in 1:55.2 and another CU co-ed, Linda Fisher, was third in 2:31.8.

Giant slalom:

Women's A Class—1, Barbara Ferries, Colorado, 1 minute 51 seconds. 2, Sandra Shellworth, Colorado, 0:55.2. 3, Linda Fisher, Colorado, 2:31.8. 4, Judy Melling, Colorado, 2:34.9. 5, Kristina Horn, Colorado, disqualified.

Men's A Class—1, Bud Werner, Colorado, 1 minute 32.4. 2, Bill Marolt, Colorado, 1:36.3. 3, Kenneth Phelps, Western State, 1:37.5. 4, Dave Gorsuch, Western State, 1:38.6. 5, Spider Sabich, Colorado, 1:39.4. 6, Jim Heuga, Colorado, 1:41.5. 7, Art Bookstrom, Denver, 1:43.1. 8, Jim Barrows, Colorado, 1:43.8. 9, Bill Sweitzer, Western State, 1:45.3. 10, Roche Bush, Colorado, 1:47.0.

10-kilometer 4-member team results:

1, Canada (Don MacLeod, Erving Servold, Franz Portmann, Clarence Servold), 3 hours 2 minutes 38 seconds. 2, Western State College (Eddie Demers, Benny New, Jim Matson, John Matson) 3:14.42. 3, Colorado University (John Southard, Tom Upham, Mike Canatsey, Mike Gallagher), 3:19.5. 4, Southern Rocky Mountain Ski Association (Melvin Matis, Ron Gridford, Mike Elliott, Peter Lahderpera), 3:21.12. 5, Army biathalon team. 6, Western State College No. 2. 7, Colorado University No. 2. 8, Central United States Ski Association. 9, Air Force Academy.

Sweden's Sjoeberg Cops Ski Meet Sunday

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. (UPI)—Sweden's Kjell Sjoeberg, currently undefeated on his American tour, captured the open invitational ski meet Sunday with leaps of 197 and 211 feet.

Harry Bergqvist, who was unseated as Sweden's best jumper by Sjoeberg, finished second with jumps of 177 and 183 feet on the 65-meter Class A event.

U.S. Skating Champion Litz Injures Ankle

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Tommy Litz, the 17-year-old U.S. men's senior figure skating champion, hobbled by an ankle injury, plans to attend the world championships this week in Italy. However, his father says it is doubtful he will be able to compete.

Floyd Litz, the father, said Sunday, Tommy and he plan to leave New York this evening for the championships which begin Thursday at Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy.

"We're going to go over," the senior Litz said, "but we don't know if he can skate."

The ankle was "improved tremendously," the father said, but whether enough to allow the boy to skate is another question.

Rice Gridder Fails to Report Cage Bribe Offer

HOUSTON (UPI)—A Rice University football player has lost his scholarship because he failed to report the attempted bribe of two Rice basketball players.

Athletic Director Jess Neely said Sunday that Louis Mazzurana of San Antonio knew of the attempted bribe, but did not report it.

Mazzurana, a tackle on the Rice varsity, was the second student penalized in connection with the reported bribe made to basketball guards Herb Steinkamp and Dick Cramer.

A sophomore student whose identity was not divulged, was expelled for offering the players $500 each to shave points in last week's Baylor-Rice game.

Neely said Mazzurana's scholarship was lifted, "because he knew about this thing (the offer) and did not report it."

Mazzurana's mother said in San Antonio that her son had been a roommate of Steinkamp.

Steinkamp and Cramer said the offer was made Feb. 14. They said the expelled student offered them the money to keep Rice's margin of victory under 14 points over Baylor. Rice won the game by four points.

The basketball players reported the bribe offer to trainer Eddie Wojecke on Feb. 15 and to coach Johnnie Frankie the next day.

Mazzurana retained his eligibility to play football next season, but he would have to play without a scholarship.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation entered the bribe case to determine whether out-of-state connections were involved. It would involve a federal violation if the bribe offer could be connected to gamblers whose operations crossed state lines.

Harris County Dist. Atty. Frank Briscoe said he would probably take no action unless he received a complaint. Rice University has not filed a complaint under state law.

The New York Mets were in 38 one-run games last season. They dropped 38.

Public Health and hospital expenditures by all governments in the nation in 1961 totaled $5.6 billion, according to the Census Bureau.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

(© 1963: By the Chicago Tribune)

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

INFECTIONS OF OUTER EAR CANAL

The ear canal is a dead end passageway, lined with skin and covered with wax. The open end is exposed to the air but it is difficult for germs to take up squatter's rights, as the waxy secretions contain enough acid to discourage infection.

This mechanism is likely to break down when the humidity and temperature are high. The combination of warmth and moisture plugs the wax producing glands and deprives the skin of the ear of its normal, oily, water repellent protective coating. This is why some swimmers and persons going to the tropics develop infections of the outer ear (otitis externa).

Hot and dry climates also may be bothersome, especially when the lining becomes dry and scaly. The irritation or trauma produced by rubbing or scratching may eliminate the protective wax. Additional damage takes place when matches, toothpicks, or hairpins are used. Any opening through the wax and skin invites infection.

The inflamed canal itches, debris accumulates, and a messy discharge occurs. Many complain of soreness and a feeling of fullness in the ear. Successful treatment lies in tracking down the causative organism, by having the discharge examined by the laboratory. When this is determined, it is easy to pit the appropriate antibiotic or antiseptic against the responsible agent.

Bacteria are common causes. Fungi are considered when the ear canal is moist. Occasionally the trouble stems from allergy.

Many ear specialists have found that the condition improves if the canal is kept clean and dry. They remove all the scales and debris with the utmost care at frequent intervals until healing occurs. Others rely on one of the many ointments or solutions containing antibiotics, antiseptics, or steroids. VoSol Otic, VoSol-HC, and Otobione are some of the products employed.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Emotional Eruptions

P. C. writes: I have been suffering from neurodermatitis for several months and am getting no better. My doctor advises me to have patience and not worry. What causes this condition?

Reply

Neurodermatitis is a skin reaction to nervousness. Unless the emotional cause is eliminated, the effect remains. Some individuals improve after a vacation; others must rid themselves of the factors that are making them jittery. Still others must make adjustments to the situations of life.

Barefoot or Shod?

Mrs. L. Y. writes: Is it better for babies who are learning to walk to go barefoot around the house or wear shoes?

Reply

It makes no difference. Properly fitted shoes will protect and support the feet. On the other hand, walking barefoot on carpets, rugs, lawn, or beach strengthens the tot's arches and helps the feet develop properly.

Oil and Fat

Mrs. B. writes: Is it true that safflower oil, taken daily, will break down the fatty tissues of the body and make you lose weight?

Reply

No. The true story is: Reduce calories to reduce weight.

Today's Health Hint

Goren on Bridge

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South, both vulnerable with both 60 part scores, you hold:

Spades, A-J-9-2; Hearts, 7; Diamonds, K-2; Clubs, K-Q-10-8-6-3.

The bidding has proceeded:

East	South
1 Dia.	?

What do you bid?

A.—While this hand has the offensive power to justify a take-out double, we prefer a simple overcall of two clubs, first, because that is enough to complete the game and, secondly, a double may result in embarrassing heart bids from partner if he happens to have length in that suit. Furthermore, a simple overcall of two clubs may make it convenient for you to compete with spades on the next round if partner does not participate immediately.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

Spades, A-K-J-9-4; Hearts, K-J-9-6-3; Diamonds, 7; Clubs, K-6.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 Spd.	Pass
3 Clbs.	Pass	3 Hrts.	Pass
4 Spds.	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Despite partner's previous pass, we would feel very bullish about slam prospects. Any hand in which partner holds two aces should give us a splendid play for a slam in spades, and it doesn't much matter which aces they are. We would, therefore, bid four notrump, which in this case is a clear-cut Blackwood bid and, even if partner has only one ace, a bid of five spades should certainly be safe.

Q. 3—Partner opens with one heart and you hold:

Spades, Q-4-2; Hearts, 10-7-5-3; Diamonds, 6-5; Clubs, K-5-2.

What is your response?

A.—Despite the fact that you have ample trump support you must refuse to raise to two hearts. This hand lacks the seven points in support of such declaration. Some action, however, must be taken since you have the necessary high card strength to keep the bidding open. The proper procedure is to respond with one notrump. Observe that in support of hearts this hand is worth only six points (a point is deducted when raising with a 4-3-3-3).

Q. 4—As South you hold:

Spades, K-Q-8-6-5-2; Hearts, J-8; Diamonds, J-9-6-4; Clubs, 3.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 Hrt.	2 Hrts.	3 Hrts.

What do you bid now?

A.—This is a very fine spade holding facing a partner who has made a game demand bid. It is well to paint a picture of your hand in one call. That would be a bid which says, "Partner, I have a very good spade suit." Our choice is, therefore, four spades. With this knowledge, partner should be able to judge the trick taking possibilities of the hand.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

Spades, 6-4-3; Hearts, 7-5; Diamonds, 9-2; Clubs, 9-8-7-6-5-4.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 N.T.	Dbl.	?

What do you bid?

A.—Two clubs. With this hopeless hand containing a six card suit, the rescue bid is indicated, for there is too good a likelihood that West will leave in the contract of one notrump doubled.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

Spades, A-K-7-2; Hearts, 5-3; Diamonds, A-6-5-3-2; Clubs, 10-4.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 Dia.	Pass	2 Hrts.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—You have already fully described your hand, and a bid of three notrump is clearly indicated. It would be poor strategy to bid three diamonds at this point. Such a bid would show a rebidable suit and partner, relying on a better diamond suit, might be induced to take more drastic action.

Q. 7—Partner opens with one spade and you hold:

Spades, 6; Hearts, A-Q-J-9-6; Diamonds, A-K-J-8-4-2; Clubs, 2.

What is your response?

A.—While the hand has the power to justify a jump shift despite the lack of spade support, our vote is not for three diamonds, for the reason that we wish to conserve bidding space in order to show a six-five distribution. This will necessitate bidding the hearts twice after having shown diamonds, and a jump shift would use up too much room. Bid two diamonds.

Q. 8—Your partner has opened with a bid of two diamonds and you hold:

Spades, Q-J-5-3; Hearts, K-J-8-4; Diamonds, J-9; Clubs, 10-8-4.

What is your response?

A.—With eights points in high cards, including one-half quick trick, you have the textbook ingredients for a response of three notrump. A bid of two spades or hearts is not approved, for a suit response to an opening demand bid should show a better suit than either of these.

REGISTERS COMPLAINTS

"I wish he would not keep calling me 'sir'," said Morton. "I wish he would not keep reminding me that he went to law school with my youngest son."

State, Local, Social Security Taxes Climbing

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising state, local and Social Security taxes may nibble away a large chunk — possibly half — of President Kennedy's proposed tax cuts by the time they would take effect.

The $2.2-billion increase in Social Security rates on Jan. 1 and the $500-million like in postal rates on Jan. 7 will offset most of the $3.1 billion in individual and corporate tax savings proposed by Kennedy for 1963.

With most of the 47 state legislatures meeting this year considering tax increases totaling perhaps $2.5 billion, much of the $3.2-billion reduction envisaged in the Kennedy program for 1964 would be wiped out.

Not all the legislatures are expected to raise taxes but it's true that a four-year cycle of such action has developed, and 1963 is the year for it. Thirty-three states raised taxes in 1959.

Three other factors will be working, tax experts report, to dilute the income-boosting, investment-stimulating and job-creating benefits of Kennedy's net $10.3 billion, three-year tax reduction.

1. Part of the taxpayers' savings would be picked up automatically by the 19 states whose taxpayers can deduct federal income taxes from their taxable income. In these states a cut in federal taxes means more income would be subject to state tax.

2. In 13 states whose tax systems are tied to the federal system, the laws require that citizens compute their taxable income on about the same basis as they do for the federal income tax. The revenue-boosting reforms which Kennedy seeks — including curtailed personal deductions—would become part of these state systems, unless the state rules are changed. The federal rate cuts would not necessarily be carried over into the state systems, so state tax liability would be increased.

3. Cities and other local governments not only are pressing state legislatures to raise taxes and funnel more revenue to the cities, but many are considering new taxes of their own.

Pittsburgh wants the Pennsylvania Legislature to let the city levy a 1 per cent income tax on non-residents who work in Pittsburgh. St. Paul has been weighing a 1 per cent income tax if the Minnesota Legislature does not enact a state sales tax to be shared with the cities. Buffalo, N.Y., has asked legislation enabling it to levy a 1 per cent payroll tax.

Only three states raised taxes in 1962—Michigan, Mississippi and New Mexico—but state and local government costs went on rising almost everywhere. In many cases the feasible limit of borrowing has been reached.

A survey made by the Tax Foundation, Inc., New York, a privately supported, non-profit research organization, indicated that by early January revenue-raising proposals were being considered seriously in 33 states.

For reasons not fully explained, the years preceding national elections have become the big ones for state tax-boosting.

The Tax Foundation notes that in 1955 32 states enacted new or higher taxes. In 1959 there were 33. The number dipped to 7 in 1960, rose to 24 in 1961, and dwindled to 3 in 1962.

Last year's reprieve, says the foundation, "was by all indications the lull before the storm and not the beginning of any trend." It predicts: "The storm is likely to break in 1963, when scores of major tax proposals are expected to appear on legislative agendas."

The foundation's survey identified specific proposals totaling about $1.7 billion of new state revenues but dollar estimates were not available, or were available only in part, for 18 of the 33 states.

Since then, governors' budget messages and other state legislative proposals have filled in some gaps. It now appears that the grand total of spending proposals would exceed $2.5 billion, most of which would be felt in calendar 1964.

Such a total would mean offsetting Kennedy's second-year reductions to almost the same considerable extent as this year's federal tax relief would be offset by the Social Security and postal rate increases.

A good many legislatures almost certainly will reject or reduce the proposed tax increases, or resort to borrowing. Some states, where taxes are linked to the federal income tax, may find increased revenues will eliminate the need for new or higher state levies.

The 19 states where some or all of the federal tax is deductible from state-taxable income—so that state taxes will rise if federal taxes fall—are:

Alabama, Arizona, Colorado, Delaware, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, and Utah.

The states whose tax laws would mean higher state tax collections if the federal rule for deductions is tightened are:

A similar ule for deductions applies in Alaska and West Virginia, but their taxpayers would come out ahead in the long run. Their state tax is figured as a simple percentage of the federal tax they pay; a federal cut would also mean state tax relief.

The hunt for new revenues is leading state legislatures to consider not only sales and income taxes but a bewildering list of levies covering cigarettes, liquor, gasoline, insurance premiums, corporation income, and use taxes.

Other popular devices include raising markups in state liquor stores, reassessing property, raising fees for state services and business licenses, and extending sales taxes to new products.

Shifting to a withholding system for state income taxes is gaining popularity. When it starts, taxpayers not only must pay the past year's taxes but make current payments out of their paychecks, as Virginia citizens are now doing.

Italians, Dutch Strike Back at French Decision

By NEL SLIS

BRUSSELS (AP)—Italy and the Netherlands took the lead today in striking back at France as the ruling body of the European Common Market gathered for the first time since the French vetoed Britain's entry into the group.

Both the Italians and Dutch made plain that they would not now sign a new treaty for trade and aid with 18 African states, all but two of them former French colonies.

The delay means that for another year at least Frenchmen will have to pay higher prices for African coffee and African bananas, among other things.

Under the new agreement, aid to African producers from a six-nation $730-million fund would have taken the place of subsidies France has paid. The fund is also to help the Africans develop new crops and industries.

The Common Market Council of Ministers is meeting for a two-day session in an atmosphere tense with resentments. The other five members—West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—are angry with the French for blackballing Britain. The French feel that the others are ganging up on them.

The African treaty was to have been signed this week at Yaounde, Cameroon. Now it seems likely to be deferred at least until the end of May. By that time Italy and The Netherlands will have elected new parliaments.

Informed sources said deferment of the agreement angered French representative Jean Marc Boegner, who said, "This will be unfortunate for the Common Market."

The African treaty is close to the hearts of the French because it would tie the whole former French empire in Africa to the Common Market. The other European nations do not oppose it but they want to show their annoyance with the French.

Ambassador George Damas of Gabon said the 18 new nations hoped they would not be made to suffer from reprisals taken by some Common Market members.

"After all, this is exclusively a European crisis," he said. "I hope that at least we will get assurances that it will be signed eventually."

The ministers also will take up relations with the Middle East. Iran wants a special trade agreement with the six nations of the Common Market.

Turkey, which considers itself a European country, wants formal association with the Common Market. Israel also wants a special trade agreement, but the talks have so far come to no conclusion.

Mail-Order Aids to Solve Many Problems Abroad

By LEIF ERICKSON

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—"How could we make it for ourselves?" asked nurse Ada Yarnall, writing from Kenieba in the new West African republic of Mali.

Miss Yarnall asked precisely the kind of questions and described exactly the kind of problems DATA International was created to solve.

She also asked: Could she possibly compound from her region's native crops a baby cereal to combat the infant malnutrition everywhere evident among the district's children?

The answers Miss Yarnall needed were produced promptly by DATA International, a big-sounding computer-age name for a simple idea conceived by Wil Rose, 31, a wounded Marine veteran of the Korean War.

Let Americans overseas report the problems they see to an exchange office that can transmit the problems to Americans at home who know the solutions.

The answers delivered by letter and diagrams show and tell the people in remote countries how to lick their problems by what they can do themselves.

The mail-order peace corps which Rose started in 1958 now enrolls 2,000 problem hunters in 108 countries and 1,000 volunteer consultants at home ready and willing to deliver the solutions without charge.

DATA International has a budget of $60,000 a year, supplied by private donations. Aside from seven paid staff members in its headquarters at 437 California Avenue, Palo Alto, DATA's biggest expense item is airmail postage.

Rose, born on an East Townsend, Ohio, farm, and trained in communications engineering and photography, brought back his problem-solution exchange idea from a documentary film assignment which took him through Europe and the Near East. The film was a Los Angeles State College project.

"Everywhere I went Americans asked me if I knew about such—and-such, so they could help their new neighbors," Rose explained.

"They knew that somewhere back home there were answers to the problems they saw, but they didn't know exactly where.

"All they needed was a clearing house, and that's what we are."

DATA's steadily growing export volume of practical person-to-person help around the world won California Junior Chamber of Commerce recognition for Rose last year as one of the state' five outstanding young men.

Letters from Mali, Madagascar, the Congo, the Philippines, and almost anywhere give clear testimony to the impact of DATA's problem-solving services.

Father Roland Bernier of the Mission Catholique at Ankavandra, Madagascar, sent a million thanks for suggestions on bridging a flood-scarred creek.

"The people here are very much impressed by all the work you have been doing for them," the mission priest wrote. "If a poll were taken here on American popularity and goodwill, I am sure it would hit 100 per cent."

Nurse Yarnall, expressing her thanks for the baby cereal recipes supplied by a team of nutrition experts, reported from her Mali mission: "We take in orphan babies who would otherwise die, and try to feed them as much as possible from native products.

"I am including a picture of five of our babies who would be dead if we had not been able to give them shelter."

Miss Yarnall's request for directions on preparing oil of cloves had been simple to handle. A DATA staff worker walked across the street to the drug store. The pharmacist wrote down the recipe.

Finding old-fashioned spinning wheels for Dorothy Rees in the Congo reached all the way to Gujarat University in Ahmedabad, India.

John Dillon was the DATA consultant able to suggest the Gujarat school as a spinning wheel source. The Gujarat registrar assured he could locate plenty of them.

The overseas problem hunters have called on DATA for ideas on controlling bats raiding guava groves in Mozambique.

DATA's load of incoming problems now has reached about 100 a month.

Rose advises Americans overseas: "Look for problems. That is the key. A man who has a problem is ready and willing to receive answers to his questions.

"Get him to ask."

A letter forwarding the questions to DATA headquarters will produce the answers.

Algerian Urchins Are Sent to School

ORAN, Algeria (UPI) — Some 200 Oran street urchins who earn their living by shining shoes were rounded up here, put out of business and into school.

The move followed last Sunday's herding of shoe shine boys in Algiers into an auditorium on order of Premier Ahmed Ben Bella. The youngsters learned they would be sent to government-paid vocational schools.

Ben Bella has said that the parents of the youngsters will receive a subsidy equal to what the children brought home to the families for their work.

NERVOUS DRUNK

LINCOLN, England (UPI)—Republican Harry Jessup told the court here that he giggled once when police stopped his car and again at the station because he was in a "nervous situation" not drunk. "It's like people laughing at funerals."

The judge levied fines and costs totaling $16—for drunk driving.

Public Health and hospital expenditures by all governments in the nation in 1961 totaled $5.6 billion, according to the Census Bureau.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

(© 1963: By the Chicago Tribune)

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

INFECTIONS OF OUTER EAR CANAL

The ear canal is a dead end passageway, lined with skin and covered with wax. The open end is exposed to the air but it is difficult for germs to take up squatter's rights, as the waxy secretions contain enough acid to discourage infection.

This mechanism is likely to break down when the humidity and temperature are high. The combination of warmth and moisture plugs the wax producing glands and deprives the skin of the ear of its normal, oily, water repellent protective coating. This is why some swimmers and persons going to the tropics develop infections of the outer ear (otitis externa).

Hot and dry climates also may be bothersome, especially when the lining becomes dry and scaly. The irritation or trauma produced by rubbing or scratching may eliminate the protective wax. Additional damage takes place when matches, toothpicks, or hairpins are used. Any opening through the wax and skin invites infection.

The inflamed canal itches, debris accumulates, and a messy discharge occurs. Many complain of soreness and a feeling of fullness in the ear. Successful treatment lies in tracking down the causative organism, by having the discharge examined by the laboratory. When this is determined, it is easy to pit the appropriate antibiotic or antiseptic against the responsible agent.

Bacteria are common causes. Fungi are considered when the ear canal is moist. Occasionally the trouble stems from allergy.

Many ear specialists have found that the condition improves if the canal is kept clean and dry. They remove all the scales and debris with the utmost care at frequent intervals until healing occurs. Others rely on one of the many ointments or solutions containing antibiotics, antiseptics, or steroids. VoSol Otic, VoSol-HC, and Otobione are some of the products employed.

Emotional Eruptions

P. C. writes: I have been suffering from neurodermatitis for several months and am getting no better. My doctor advises me to have patience and not worry. What causes this condition?

Reply

Neurodermatitis is a skin reaction to nervousness. Unless the emotional cause is eliminated, the effect remains. Some individuals improve after a vacation; others must rid themselves of the factors that are making them jittery. Still others must make adjustments to the situations of life.

Barefoot or Shod?

Mrs. L. Y. writes: Is it better for babies who are learning to walk to go barefoot around the house or wear shoes?

Reply

It makes no difference. Properly fitted shoes will protect and support the feet. On the other hand, walking barefoot on carpets, rugs, lawn, or beach strengthens the tot's arches and helps the feet develop properly.

Oil and Fat

Mrs. B. writes: Is it true that safflower oil, taken daily, will break down the fatty tissues of the body and make you lose weight?

Reply

No. The true story is: Reduce calories to reduce weight.

Goren on Bridge

By CHARLES H. GOREN

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q. 1—As South, both vulnerable with both 60 part scores, you hold:

Spades, A-J-9-2; Hearts, 7; Diamonds, K-2; Clubs, K-Q-10-8-6-3.

The bidding has proceeded:

East	South
1 Dia.	?

What do you bid?

A.—While this hand has the offensive power to justify a take-out double, we prefer a simple overcall of two clubs, first, because that is enough to complete the game and, secondly, a double may result in embarrassing heart bids from partner if he happens to have length in that suit. Furthermore, a simple overcall of two clubs may make it convenient for you to compete with spades on the next round if partner does not participate immediately.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

Spades, A-K-J-9-4; Hearts, K-J-9-6-3; Diamonds, 7; Clubs, K-6.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 Spd.	Pass
3 Clbs.	Pass	3 Hrts.	Pass
4 Spds.	Pass?

What do you bid now?

A.—Despite partner's previous pass, we would feel very bullish about slam prospects. Any hand in which partner holds two aces should give us a splendid play for a slam in spades, and it doesn't much matter which aces they are. We would, therefore, bid four notrump, which in this case is a clear-cut Blackwood bid and, even if partner has only one ace, a bid of five spades should certainly be safe.

Q. 3—Partner opens with one heart and you hold:

Spades, Q-4-2; Hearts, 10-7-5-3; Diamonds, 6-5; Clubs, K-5-2.

What is your response?

A.—Despite the fact that you have ample trump support you must refuse to raise to two hearts. This hand lacks the seven points in support of such declaration. Some action, however, must be taken since you have the necessary high card strength to keep the bidding open. The proper procedure is to respond with one notrump. Observe that in support of hearts this hand is worth only six points (a point is deducted when raising with a 4-3-3-3).

Q. 4—As South you hold:

Spades, K-Q-8-6-5-2; Hearts, J-8; Diamonds, J-9-6-4; Clubs, 3.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 Hrt.	2 Hrts.	3 Hrts.

What do you bid now?

A.—This is a very fine spade holding facing a partner who has made a game demand bid. It is well to paint a picture of your hand in one call. That would be a bid which says, "Partner, I have a very good spade suit." Our choice is, therefore, four spades. With this knowledge, partner should be able to judge the trick taking possibilities of the hand.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

Spades, 6-4-3; Hearts, 7-5; Diamonds, 9-2; Clubs, 9-8-7-6-5-4.

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 N.T.	Dbl.	?

What do you bid?

A.—Two clubs. With this hopeless hand containing a six card suit, the rescue bid is indicated, for there is too good a likelihood that West will leave in the contract of one notrump doubled.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

Spades, A-K-7-2; Hearts, 5-3; Diamonds, A-6-5-3-2; Clubs, 10-4.

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 Dia.	Pass	2 Hrts.	Pass
2 Spds.	Pass	3 Clbs.	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—You have already fully described your hand, and a bid of three notrump is clearly indicated. It would be poor strategy to bid three diamonds at this point. Such a bid would show a rebidable suit and partner, relying on a better diamond suit, might be induced to take more drastic action.

Q. 7—Partner opens with one spade and you hold:

Spades, 6; Hearts, A-Q-J-9-6; Diamonds, A-K-J-8-4-2; Clubs, 2.

What is your response?

A.—While the hand has the power to justify a jump shift despite the lack of spade support, our vote is not for three diamonds, for the reason that we wish to conserve bidding space in order to show a six-five distribution. This will necessitate bidding the hearts twice after having shown diamonds, and a jump shift would use up too much room. Bid two diamonds.

Q. 8—Your partner has opened with a bid of two diamonds and you hold:

Spades, Q-J-5-3; Hearts, K-J-8-4; Diamonds, J-9; Clubs, 10-8-4.

What is your response?

A.—With eights points in high cards, including one-half quick trick, you have the textbook ingredients for a response of three notrump. A bid of two spades or hearts is not approved, for a suit response to an opening demand bid should show a better suit than either of these.

State, Local, Social Security Taxes Climbing

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising state, local and Social Security taxes may nibble away a large chunk — possibly half — of President Kennedy's proposed tax cuts by the time they would take effect.

The $2.2-billion increase in Social Security rates on Jan. 1 and the $500-million like in postal rates on Jan. 7 will offset most of the $3.1 billion in individual and corporate tax savings proposed by Kennedy for 1963.

With most of the 47 state legislatures meeting this year considering tax increases totaling perhaps $2.5 billion, much of the $3.2-billion reduction envisaged in the Kennedy program for 1964 would be wiped out.

Not all the legislatures are expected to raise taxes but it's true that a four-year cycle of such action has developed, and 1963 is the year for it. Thirty-three states raised taxes in 1959.

Three other factors will be working, tax experts report, to dilute the income-boosting, investment-stimulating and job-creating benefits of Kennedy's net $10.3 billion, three-year tax reduction.

1. Part of the taxpayers' savings would be picked up automatically by the 19 states whose taxpayers can deduct federal income taxes from their taxable income. In these states a cut in federal taxes means more income would be subject to state tax.

2. In 13 states whose tax systems are tied to the federal system, the laws require that citizens compute their taxable income on about the same basis as they do for the federal income tax. The revenue-boosting reforms which Kennedy seeks — including curtailed personal deductions—would become part of these state systems, unless the state rules are changed. The federal rate cuts would not necessarily be carried over into the state systems, so state tax liability would be increased.

3. Cities and other local governments not only are pressing state legislatures to raise taxes and funnel more revenue to the cities, but many are considering new taxes of their own.

Pittsburgh wants the Pennsylvania Legislature to let the city levy a 1 per cent income tax on non-residents who work in Pittsburgh. St. Paul has been weighing a 1 per cent income tax if the Minnesota Legislature does not enact a state sales tax to be shared with the cities. Buffalo, N.Y., has asked legislation enabling it to levy a 1 per cent payroll tax.

Only three states raised taxes in 1962—Michigan, Mississippi and New Mexico—but state and local government costs went on rising almost everywhere. In many cases the feasible limit of borrowing has been reached.

A survey made by the Tax Foundation, Inc., New York, a privately supported, non-profit research organization, indicated that by early January revenue-raising proposals were being considered seriously in 33 states.

For reasons not fully explained, the years preceding national elections have become the big ones for state tax-boosting.

The Tax Foundation notes that in 1955 32 states enacted new or higher taxes. In 1959 there were 33. The number dipped to 7 in 1960, rose to 24 in 1961, and dwindled to 3 in 1962.

Last year's reprieve, says the foundation, "was by all indications the lull before the storm and not the beginning of any trend." It predicts: "The storm is likely to break in 1963, when scores of major tax proposals are expected to appear on legislative agendas."

The foundation's survey identified specific proposals totaling about $1.7 billion of new state revenues but dollar estimates were not available, or were available only in part, for 18 of the 33 states.

Since then, governors' budget messages and other state legislative proposals have filled in some gaps. It now appears that the grand total of spending proposals would exceed $2.5 billion, most of which would be felt in calendar 1964.

Such a total would mean offsetting Kennedy's second-year reductions to almost the same considerable extent as this year's federal tax relief would be offset by the Social Security and postal rate increases.

A good many legislatures almost certainly will reject or reduce the proposed tax increases, or resort to borrowing. Some states, where taxes are linked to the federal income tax, may find increased revenues will eliminate the need for new or higher state levies.

The 19 states where some or all of the federal tax is deductible from state-taxable income—so that state taxes will rise if federal taxes fall—are:

Alabama, Arizona, Colorado, Delaware, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, and Utah.

The states whose tax laws would mean higher state tax collections if the federal rule for deductions is tightened are:

A similar ule for deductions applies in Alaska and West Virginia, but their taxpayers would come out ahead in the long run. Their state tax is figured as a simple percentage of the federal tax they pay; a federal cut would also mean state tax relief.

The hunt for new revenues is leading state legislatures to consider not only sales and income taxes but a bewildering list of levies covering cigarettes, liquor, gasoline, insurance premiums, corporation income, and use taxes.

Other popular devices include raising markups in state liquor stores, reassessing property, raising fees for state services and business licenses, and extending sales taxes to new products.

Shifting to a withholding system for state income taxes is gaining popularity. When it starts, taxpayers not only must pay the past year's taxes but make current payments out of their paychecks, as Virginia citizens are now doing.

Italians, Dutch Strike Back at French Decision

By NEL SLIS

BRUSSELS (AP)—Italy and the Netherlands took the lead today in striking back at France as the ruling body of the European Common Market gathered for the first time since the French vetoed Britain's entry into the group.

Both the Italians and Dutch made plain that they would not now sign a new treaty for trade and aid with 18 African states, all but two of them former French colonies.

The delay means that for another year at least Frenchmen will have to pay higher prices for African coffee and African bananas, among other things.

Under the new agreement, aid to African producers from a six-nation $730-million fund would have taken the place of subsidies France has paid. The fund is also to help the Africans develop new crops and industries.

The Common Market Council of Ministers is meeting for a two-day session in an atmosphere tense with resentments. The other five members—West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—are angry with the French for blackballing Britain. The French feel that the others are ganging up on them.

The African treaty was to have been signed this week at Yaounde, Cameroon. Now it seems likely to be deferred at least until the end of May. By that time Italy and The Netherlands will have elected new parliaments.

Informed sources said deferment of the agreement angered French representative Jean Marc Boegner, who said, "This will be unfortunate for the Common Market."

The African treaty is close to the hearts of the French because it would tie the whole former French empire in Africa to the Common Market. The other European nations do not oppose it but they want to show their annoyance with the French.

Ambassador George Damas of Gabon said the 18 new nations hoped they would not be made to suffer from reprisals taken by some Common Market members.

"After all, this is exclusively a European crisis," he said. "I hope that at least we will get assurances that it will be signed eventually."

The ministers also will take up relations with the Middle East. Iran wants a special trade agreement with the six nations of the Common Market.

Turkey, which considers itself a European country, wants formal association with the Common Market. Israel also wants a special trade agreement, but the talks have so far come to no conclusion.

Mail-Order Aids to Solve Many Problems Abroad

By LEIF ERICKSON

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—"How could we make it for ourselves?" asked nurse Ada Yarnall, writing from Kenieba in the new West African republic of Mali.

Miss Yarnall asked precisely the kind of questions and described exactly the kind of problems DATA International was created to solve.

Nurse Yarnall wanted to know how to make oil of cloves for treating children's earaches and toothaches and sulphur ointment for scabies sores.

She also asked: Could she possibly compound from her region's native crops a baby cereal to combat the infant malnutrition everywhere evident among the district's children?

The answers Miss Yarnall needed were produced promptly by DATA International, a big-sounding computer-age name for a simple idea conceived by Wil Rose, 31, a wounded Marine veteran of the Korean War.

The idea: Americans overseas constantly see fellow humans baffled by problems long ago overcome by American ingenuity.

Let Americans overseas report the problems they see to an exchange office that can transmit the problems to Americans at home who know the solutions.

The answers delivered by letter and diagrams show and tell the people in remote countries how to lick their problems by what they can do themselves.

The mail-order peace corps which Rose started in 1958 now enrolls 2,000 problem hunters in 108 countries and 1,000 volunteer consultants at home ready and willing to deliver the solutions without charge.

DATA International has a budget of $60,000 a year, supplied by private donations. Aside from seven paid staff members in its headquarters at 437 California Avenue, Palo Alto, DATA's biggest expense item is airmail postage.

Rose, born on an East Townsend, Ohio, farm, and trained in communications engineering and photography, brought back his problem-solution exchange idea from a documentary film assignment which took him through Europe and the Near East. The film was a Los Angeles State College project.

"Everywhere I went Americans asked me if I knew about such-and-such, so they could help their new neighbors," Rose explained.

"They knew that somewhere back home there were answers to the problems they saw, but they didn't know exactly where.

"All they needed was a clearing house, and that's what we are."

DATA's steadily growing export volume of practical person-to-person help around the world won California Junior Chamber of Commerce recognition for Rose last year as one of the state' five outstanding young men.

Letters from Mali, Madagascar, the Congo, the Philippines, and almost anywhere give clear testimony to the impact of DATA's problem-solving services.

Father Roland Bernier of the Mission Catholique at Ankavandra, Madagascar, sent a million thanks for suggestions on bridging a flood-scarred creek.

"The people here are very much impressed by all the work you have been doing for them," the mission priest wrote. "If a poll were taken here on American popularity and goodwill, I am sure it would hit 100 per cent."

Nurse Yarnall, expressing her thanks for the baby cereal recipes supplied by a team of nutrition experts, reported from her Mali mission: "We take in orphan babies who would otherwise die, and try to feed them as much as possible from native products.

"I am including a picture of five of our babies who would be dead if we had not been able to give them shelter."

Miss Yarnall's request for directions on preparing oil of cloves had been simple to handle. A DATA staff worker walked across the street to the drug store. The pharmacist wrote down the recipe.

Finding old-fashioned spinning wheels for Dorothy Rees in the Congo reached all the way to Gujarat University in Ahmedabad, India.

John Dillon was the DATA consultant able to suggest the Gujarat school as a spinning wheel source. The Gujarat registrar assured he could locate plenty of them.

The overseas problem hunters have called on DATA for ideas on controlling bats raiding guava groves in Mozambique.

DATA's load of incoming problems now has reached about 100 a month.

Rose is convinced that DATA Internation's way of doing good for others avoids the resentment and contempt sometimes aroused against do-gooders.

Rose advises Americans overseas: "Look for problems. That is the key. A man who has a problem is ready and willing to receive answers to his questions.

"Get him to ask."

A letter forwarding the questions to DATA headquarters will produce the answers.

Algerian Urchins Are Sent to School

ORAN, Algeria (UPI) — Some 200 Oran street urchins who earn their living by shining shoes were rounded up here, put out of business and into school.

The move followed last Sunday's herding of shoe shine boys in Algiers into an auditorium on order of Premier Ahmed Ben Bella. The youngsters learned they would be sent to government-paid vocational schools.

Ben Bella has said that the parents of the youngsters will receive a subsidy equal to what the children brought home to the families for their work.

NERVOUS DRUNK

LINCOLN, England (UPI)—Republican Harry Jessup told the court here that he giggled once when police stopped his car and again at the station because he was in a "nervous situation" not drunk. "It's like people laughing at funerals."

The judge levied fines and costs totaling $145—for drunk driving.

Mikita Leads Black Hawks Past Boston

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stan Mikita, a crew-cut kid from Czechoslovakia, with the hottest hand in the National Hockey League, is one of the principal reasons the Chicago Black Hawks have all but broken Montreal's five-year hold on the regular season title.

The 22-year-old forward blasted in three goals—his second hat trick in three games—and added an assist Sunday night as the Black Hawks whipped past Boston 4-3 in Chicago and increased their lead to eight points over the idle Canadiens.

Veteran Gordie Howe assisted on each Detroit goal in the Red Wings' 3-2 triumph at New York and now trails Mikita by one point with 64.

Hershey Downs Providence Icers

By United Press International

The Cleveland Barons have not been much help to the various leaders in the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League.

The Barons, paced by Fred Hilts' two goals, defeated the Hershey Bears, 4-2, Sunday, allowing the Providence Reds to again tie for the lead in the Eastern Division race. It was just a week ago when the Barons defeated Providence and opened the path for Hershey to set the pace.

Buffalo, led by John McKenzie's two goals, trounced the Pittsburgh Hornets, 8-3, and Jean Ratelle of Baltimore, scored two goals in helping the Clippers to their 5-2 win over the Rochester Americans.

Mikita Leads Black Hawks Past Boston

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stan Mikita, a crew-cut kid from Czechoslovakia, with the hottest hand in the National Hockey League, is one of the principal reasons the Chicago Black Hawks have all but broken Montreal's five-year hold on the regular season title.

The 22-year-old forward blasted in three goals—his second hat trick in three games—and added an assist Sunday night as the Black Hawks whipped past Boston 4-3 in Chicago and increased their lead to eight points over the idle Canadiens.

Veteran Gordie Howe assisted on each Detroit goal in the Red Wings' 3-2 triumph at New York and now trails Mikita by one point with 64.

Hershey Downs Providence Icers

By United Press International

The Cleveland Barons have not been much help to the various leaders in the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League.

The Barons, paced by Fred Hilts' two goals, defeated the Hershey Bears, 4-2, Sunday, allowing the Providence Reds to again tie for the lead in the Eastern Division race. It was just a week ago when the Barons defeated Providence and opened the path for Hershey to set the pace.

Buffalo, led by John McKenzie's two goals, trounced the Pittsburgh Hornets, 8-3, and Jean Ratelle of Baltimore, scored two goals in helping the Clippers to their 5-2 win over the Rochester Americans.

NCAA Tourney Tickets Available

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Officials at Texas Tech have announced tickets will be available next week for the first round regional playoffs of the NCAA Basketball Tournament beginning March 9.

The initial games pit Colorado State University against Oklahoma State University and Texas Western against the Southwest Conference champion.

Welfare spending by local, state and the federal government in 1961 amounted to $4.7 billion, the Census Bureau has disclosed.

HERE'S A LETTER THAT WILL TAKE THAT FROWN OFF YOUR FACE, WINNIE!

BEN CASEY
YOU CAN TALK TO YOUR SISTER FOR JUST A MINUTE. SHE'S WEAK AND EXHAUSTED... SO PLEASE.
DR. CASEY HAS TOLD YOU ABOUT MY... DISABILITY?
YES, I KNOW...
I KNOW YOU'LL BE BRAVE FOR ME AND PATIENT WITH ME... WON'T YOU, RODNEY?
I'LL TRY... I WILL!

George Washington Doctored on Side

NEW YORK (UPI)—Although he was not a licensed physician, there is evidence that George Washington practiced medicine.

According to the book, "Doctors Philatelic," by Oscar Gottfried, the first President performed many medical acts.

"As the master of a large plantation, somewhat isolated," Gottfried says, "he was like a captain on a ship who must administer to his people."

"Washington once administered an infusion of scarlet pimpernel to prevent hydrophobia," Gottfried said.

"Cary and Company of London, England, sent him regularly such drugs as ipecacuanha jalap, diacordium, rhubarb and Venice treacle. He had in his library a number of books on medicine and surgery."

Washington was a contemporary of Benjamin Rush, one of the nation's earliest and greatest physicians. The general is said to have been instrumental in encouraging authorities to inoculate the American Army against smallpox.

Long U. S. Effort Is Forecast in Viet Nam

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The United States has put 12,000 men under 12 generals into South Viet Nam to help Vietnamese forces defeat Communist efforts to take over the country.

The U.S. Army chief of staff, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, says it will take "long, vigorous effort to turn the tide once and for all."

The Communist leadership apparently is banking on victory by attrition, believing the United States will not commit forces in such number as to risk general war in the effort to check the spread of communism in Southeast Asia.

The United States first became involved when the Communists showed, after the 1954 cease-fire that ended their war with France, that they were determined to bring South Viet Nam as well as North Viet Nam under the Red flag.

France once held dominion over Laos and Cambodia as well as Viet Nam. Before it was driven out, France spent $11 billion and suffered heavy losses in manpower.

It took the House and Senate nearly 17 months in 1929-30 to debate and enact the Smoot-Hawley tariff, one of the highest protective measures in history.

MEMO

TO: The people of Colorado.

Business leaders throughout America this week are reading the attached advertisement, one of a series which Colorado Interstate is publishing nationwide.

The purpose of these ads is to bring new job opportunities, new payrolls, new purchasing power -- in short, new prosperity -- to Colorado and the Rocky Mountain West.

We thought you might like to see how we're going about it.

Air Age Metropolis

As times and technology change, so does the geography of industry. That simple fact explains why Colorado Springs is a key industrial center of modern America. ■ Here, in the shadow of Pike's Peak, is the headquarters of the nation's huge, complex air defense network, NORAD — North American Air Defense Command. Close by is the magnificent new U. S. Air Force Academy. And throughout the Colorado Springs region is a solid and fast-growing stratum of nuclear-age-oriented industry. ■ Hewlett-Packard Company, for example, in 1962 opened a new plant in Colorado Springs (its second plant in Colorado), and now plans to bring here its entire Oscilloscope Division. Among other forward-looking enterprises established in the locality are Aircraft Mechanics, Inc., The Burroughs Corporation, Clifton Precision Products Company, Kaman Nuclear — a division of Kaman Aircraft Corporation, Maytag Electronics, Western Electrodynamics, Inc., and many more. ■ These firms were drawn to the Rocky Mountain West by many factors. A prominent consideration, of course, was the variety (and ready availability) of advanced research facilities throughout the area. Industry benefits, too, from Coloradoans' concern with higher education; Colorado College, in Colorado Springs, is one of 11 four-year colleges and universities in the State. Among other area assets: fast, easy transportation, ready access to major national markets, a sound governmental climate, a superior work force, and immediate availability of all needed services — including natural gas at rates among the nation's lowest. ■ You can easily obtain full information about Colorado Springs, and other Rocky Mountain West communities which offer exceptional profit potential for businesses like yours. Simply write, wire, or telephone Donald F. McMahon, Director of Area Development, Colorado Interstate Gas Company, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

COLORADO INTERSTATE GAS COMPANY A COMPANY ON THE GO

Colorado Interstate is proud to serve a great and growing area which offers so many advantages not only as a center for industry and commerce, but also as a wonderful place in which to live. A major factor influencing the decision of many businesses to relocate in Colorado and Wyoming is the availability of natural gas at rates which are among the lowest anywhere in the United States. As the pipeline company which has been supplying gas throughout this region for the past three decades, we intend to continue doing our full share to help your local utility company keep gas rates far below the national average.

Outboard Motor Is Vital For Work in Many Areas

By JACK WOLISTON
United Press International

Most persons think of outboard motors in terms of pleasure boating, but that's not so in many places in the world, especially in some of the underdeveloped areas of Africa, Asia and Latin America.

In those places a man looks at his outboard the way a contractor views his truck or a farmer his tractor. It is a vital tool which has the potential to raise the standard of living of himself, his family and perhaps his village.

This fact became clear to Fred Breer, vice president for world marketing of the McCulloch Corp., makers of Scott outboards, on a trip to Jamaica not long ago. This idyllic isle in the Caribbean is in the middle of one of the world's finest fishing areas, yet methods employed by local fishermen were painfully inefficient.

Fishing only by night (even the morning sun causes fish to spoil), natives rowed their boats up to four hours to reach the fishing grounds. They dropped their nets for only an hour or two and then had to row another four hours to reach land before sunup. The catch was so small the Jamaican government had to import fish.

Then, in an experiment, the government bought several hundred outboard motors and sold them to fishermen on the installment plan (they paid in fish, not money). With many extra hours to fish, the size of the catch soared and, relatively speaking, the fishermen became prosperous.

With the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization promoting greater sea harvests as the most likely source of food for hunger-plagued nations, Breer and other executives at McCulloch decided to produce motors specifically for work purposes. Three such models were displayed at the recent National Motor Boat Show in New York City—two gasoline-propelled models and another operating on either diesel fuel or kerosene.

The work motors differ from pleasure motors in roughly the same way truck motors and transmissions differ from standard automobile components. They are designed for propelling heavy boats against strong currents whereas pleasure motors are planned for light boats and high speeds.

Outsized gearboxes and propellers are the most distinguishing features. Breer said the work-type motor operates more economically than pleasure motors primarily because of its lower speed (15 m.p.h. maximum).

Whether the work-type boat motor will become much more widely used in underveloped countries depends on their governments, Breer says.

"The big problem is how to get the motors to the fishermen," he said. "A fisherman traditionally has no money and no credit.

"This is where the governments must come into it. If they look to fish as an important food source, its up to them to subsidize the motors for the fishermen."

Plans for subsidizing motor purchases for fishermen are now under consideration in Ghana and Nigeria, he said.

OSLO—Furniture sales are rising in Norway.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Although he was not a licensed physician, there is evidence that George Washington practiced medicine.

According to the book, "Doctors Philatelic," by Oscar Gottfried, the first President performed many medical acts.

"As the master of a large plantation, somewhat isolated," Gottfried says, "he was like a captain on a ship who must administer to his people."

"Washington once administered an infusion of scarlet pimpernel to prevent hydrophobia," Gottfried said.

"Cary and Company of London, England, sent him regularly such drugs as ipecacuanha jalap, diacordium, rhubarb and Venice treacle. He had in his library a number of books on medicine and surgery."

Washington was a contemporary of Benjamin Rush, one of the nation's earliest and greatest physicians. The general is said to have been instrumental in encouraging authorities to inoculate the American Army against smallpox.

Long U. S. Effort Is Forecast in Viet Nam

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The United States has put 12,000 men under 12 generals into South Viet Nam to help Vietnamese forces defeat Communist efforts to take over the country.

Nearly $1 million a day is going into the campaign.

The U.S. Army chief of staff, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, says it will take "long, vigorous effort to turn the tide once and for all."

The Communist leadership apparently is banking on victory by attrition, believing the United States will not commit forces in such number as to risk general war in the effort to check the spread of communism in Southeast Asia.

The United States first became involved when the Communists showed, after the 1954 cease-fire that ended their war with France, that they were determined to bring South Viet Nam as well as North Viet Nam under the Red flag.

France once held dominion over Laos and Cambodia as well as Viet Nam. Before it was driven out, France spent $11 billion and suffered heavy losses in manpower.

It took the House and Senate nearly 17 months in 1929-30 to debate and enact the Smoot-Hawley tariff, one of the highest protective measures in history.

MEMO
TO: The people of Colorado.
Business leaders throughout America this week are reading the attached advertisement, one of a series which Colorado Interstate is publishing nationwide.
The purpose of these ads is to bring new job opportunities, new payrolls, new purchasing power -- in short, new prosperity -- to Colorado and the Rocky Mountain West.
We thought you might like to see how we're going about it.

Air Age Metropolis

As times and technology change, so does the geography of industry. That simple fact explains why Colorado Springs is a key industrial center of modern America. ■ Here, in the shadow of Pike's Peak, is the headquarters of the nation's huge, complex air defense network, NORAD — North American Air Defense Command. Close by is the magnificent new U. S. Air Force Academy. And throughout the Colorado Springs region is a solid and fast-growing stratum of nuclear-age-oriented industry. ■ Hewlett-Packard Company, for example, in 1962 opened a new plant in Colorado Springs (its second plant in Colorado), and now plans to bring here its entire Oscilloscope Division. Among other forward-looking enterprises established in the locality are Aircraft Mechanics, Inc., The Burroughs Corporation, Clifton Precision Products Company, Kaman Nuclear — a division of Kaman Aircraft Corporation, Maytag Electronics, Western Electrodynamics, Inc., and many more. ■ These firms were drawn to the Rocky Mountain West by many factors. A prominent consideration, of course, was the variety (and ready availability) of advanced research facilities throughout the area. Industry benefits, too, from Coloradoans' concern with higher education; Colorado College, in Colorado Springs, is one of 11 four-year colleges and universities in the State. Among other area assets: fast, easy transportation, ready access to major national markets, a sound governmental climate, a superior work force, and immediate availability of all needed services — including natural gas at rates among the nation's lowest. ■ You can easily obtain full information about Colorado Springs, and other Rocky Mountain West communities which offer exceptional profit potential for businesses like yours. Simply write, wire, or telephone Donald F. McMahon, Director of Area Development, Colorado Interstate Gas Company, Colorado Springs, Colorado.

COLORADO INTERSTATE GAS COMPANY
A COMPANY ON THE GO

Colorado Interstate is proud to serve a great and growing area which offers so many advantages not only as a center for industry and commerce, but also as a wonderful place in which to live. A major factor influencing the decision of many businesses to relocate in Colorado and Wyoming is the availability of natural gas at rates which are among the lowest anywhere in the United States. As the pipeline company which has been supplying gas throughout this region for the past three decades, we intend to continue doing our full share to help your local utility company keep gas rates far below the national average.

Outboard Motor Is Vital For Work in Many Areas

By JACK WOLISTON
United Press International

Most persons think of outboard motors in terms of pleasure boating, but that's not so in many places in the world, especially in some of the underdeveloped areas of Africa, Asia and Latin America.

In those places a man looks at his outboard the way a contractor views his truck or a farmer his tractor. It is a vital tool which has the potential to raise the standard of living of himself, his family and perhaps his village.

This fact became clear to Fred Breer, vice president for world marketing of the McCulloch Corp., makers of Scott outboards, on a trip to Jamaica not long ago. This idyllic isle in the Caribbean is in the middle of one of the world's finest fishing areas, yet methods employed by local fishermen were painfully inefficient.

Fishing only by night (even the morning sun causes fish to spoil), natives rowed their boats up to four hours to reach the fishing grounds. They dropped their nets for only an hour or two and then had to row another four hours to reach land before sunup. The catch was so small the Jamaican government had to import fish.

Then, in an experiment, the government bought several hundred outboard motors and sold them to fishermen on the installment plan (they paid in fish, not money). With many extra hours to fish, the size of the catch soared and, relatively speaking, the fishermen became prosperous.

With the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization promoting greater sea harvests as the most likely source of food for hunger-plagued nations, Breer and other executives at McCulloch decided to produce motors specifically for work purposes. Three such models were displayed at the recent National Motor Boat Show in New York City—two gasoline-propelled models and another operating on either diesel fuel or kerosene.

The work motors differ from pleasure motors in roughly the same way truck motors and transmissions differ from standard automobile components. They are designed for propelling heavy boats against strong currents whereas pleasure motors are planned for light boats and high speeds.

Outsized gearboxes and propellers are the most distinguishing features. Breer said the work-type motor operates more economically than pleasure motors primarily because of its lower speed (15 m.p.h. maximum).

Whether the work-type boat motor will become much more widely used in underveloped countries depends on their governments, Breer says.

"The big problem is how to get the motors to the fishermen," he said. "A fisherman traditionally has no money and no credit.

"This is where the governments must come into it. If they look to fish as an important food source, its up to them to subsidize the motors for the fishermen."

Plans for subsidizing motor purchases for fishermen are now under consideration in Ghana and Nigeria, he said.

CHINA ISSUES WARNING

TOKYO (UPI)—The Communist New China News Agency said a U. S. military plane intruded Red air space off Kwangtung Province here and a spokesman for the Foreign Ministry was authorized to issue its 231st warning to the United States over the "provocation."
